A VERY FINE MUMMY.

Body of Priest Unearthed After Four Thousand Years. The German Oriental society has been most successful in its explorations at Abu-Sir in Egypt, and most interesting "finds" were distributed among the Berlin museums during the month of October. One of the most important discoveries was a perfectly preserved mummy of Jen Em Jechvet, the high priest of the temple, who died about 2,000 years before Christ. The body was found in a family vault, which also contained the remains of his priest and reader and their wives. Only three tombs of such an age have been found in good preservation during the last century, and this is the first time that the contents have been brought safely to Europe. Jen lay in his coffin enveloped in a brown linen shroud, just as he had been placed there 4,000 years ago. In accordance with the fashion of the time, he has small side whiskers, and a longer tuft on his chin, and his eyes are made to appear unnaturally long by means of the careful application of rouge. The wig, which is large and parted down the middle, has a bluish tint verging on green, and must originally have been the color of lapis lazuli, in imitation of the hair worn by Egyptian gods. The mummy was lying slightly on the left side, as Egyptians sleep today, and the head rested on a support such as is still in use in the Soudan. The eyes are turned toward the rising sun. Two staffs were found beside the body, and a little wooden

The word "govern" was on the board and the pupils were asked to name derivatives therefrom. Governor was easy, and there were many who could give such examples of its use, as, "Mr. Bates is Governor. Garfield's Nomination.

At the Republican national convention in 1880 the Blaine Half-Breeds (to use the nomenclature of the day) and the Grant Stalwarts, 806 in number, hugged each other in a death grapple. They crushed each other and Garfield scampered off with the nomination for president. When leaving Washington to attend the convention as leader of the Sherman delegates, Garfield was asked by John Randolph Tucker of Virginia: "Whom are you going to nominate?" Garfield is said to have loved Ran. Tucker. They were far asunder in politics, but there were love and affection and intellectual kinship between the Virginian and the Ohioan. Garfield put his arm around Tucker's shoulders and whispered: "Keep your eyes on me." And so it was. Garfield became President and Blaine took the secretaryship of state, "to keep his hand on the helm," his friends said. "To watch the Peruvian guano beds," his enemies replied .- Washington Letter to Rich-

HEN one considers the | after seven rows have been startedlarge number of persons who take pleasure in games of solitaire it does not seem unlikely that a new variety will arouse some interest. One is herewith presented. It is granted that there are subtler species of brain toil, but nothing is more capable of relaxing the mind after a period of hard work than a game of solitaire, and, indeed, several far more desperate forms of dissipation might easily be imagined. So let us see what can be gotten out of "Diamond.'

First shuffle the cards well, and select the one from the top of the deck. This card is to form the apex of the diamond, and we will suppose it, for the sake of example, to be a five. (Fig. 1.)

Next remove from the deck the three cards preceding it, in this case two, three and four (of any suit, for suits do not enter into this game at all), and then place at the bottom of the deck the card following the apex card—a six.

We are now ready to begin.

Deal off the cards four at a time, turning them face upward in one heap at the side, until a six appears. When it does, place it at the left over the five (Fig. 2), just covering one-half of the five, while leaving the index of that card plainly visible.

the deck to insure the appearance of at least one of that denomination on the first deal, without which there would be no beginning to the game. Of course it may not be wanted in case two sixes show up before the cards are all dealt out on the first deal.)

The next card that we want is either another six (Fig. 3) or a seven (Fig. 4), or both (Fig. 5), if the last be possible, the right cards being picked up as often as they become exposed, as they are dealt off four at a time. The removal of one wanted card from the deck frequently exposes another. On the first deal there will be no remainder, but whenever there is a remainder of one, or two, or three cards, they are placed on top of the deck and another deal is made on the side, as before. We will thus on top of the original five in time get two sixes, three sevens and four eights.

Now, we know that we cannot get five nines, for the obvious reason that there are not that many in the deck, but the fifth card (which we call an | four rows have no extra cards. "extra") of that row is supplied by

The original building, erected by King Harald Blaatand in the tenth century, was of wood. This was followed in the next century by a building consisting of a nave and two aisles, constructed of limestone. The present building is believed to have been commenced in 1210, when Peter Suneson was bishop of Roskilde. All the Danish royal family are laid to rest in Roskilde; the word "buried" is scarcely applicable, for the royal remains merely stand in great coffins in the various chapels on the north and south sides of the cathedral.

One of the chapels is dedicated to famous kings, who lived in the latter part of the sixteenth and first half of the seventeenth centuries. The chapel was built partly after the king's own design between 1615 and 1620, but the mural paintings were added later by Christian VIII. In the naval battle of Femarn the king lost an eye, and fell fainting from loss of blood.

Christian IV.'s coffin is of oak, covered with black velvet and ornamented with silver plates on the sides, and a crucifix and the king's sword on the top. The coffin nearest his is that of Queen Anna Catherina, the first consort of Christian IV., and another belongs to the Prince Christian, who was elected successor, but died before his father.

During Queen Alexandra's recent visit to Denmark most of the members of the royal party at Bernstoff visited Roskilde cathedral on the anniversary day of the death of the late Queen of Denmark. The principal advantage of this di version is that it is by no means easy to get a diamond of the first water. its acquisition being quite rare, in fact, and it is safe to say that the player will extract a distinct amount of innocent enjoyment if he does get it. A rich mine of gold, silver or cop- | anything else for the existence of that per is discovered; it is developed, the ore is mined and milled, and this is the foundation of a little city. The birth and progress of cities among the mountains of the West from beginnings like this is one of the most interesting and picturesque phases of American growth. In other parts of the country are found towns which depend entirely or largely for their population and their existence on a single industry. Health foods are made in Battle Creek, Mich.; shoes come from Lynn, Mass.; collars are nearly all manufactured in Troy, N. Y.; Gloversville, N. Y., is the glove city of the country, and there are several other instances of the same fact; but no cities are so exclusively devoted to a single industry as the mining cities of the west. Denver itself was at the outset little more than a great mining camp; Cripple Creek is a mining center; a single mine, the Ana-little city among the Rocky mountains. And not far from Ouray and near the great continental divide, is the newest mining town site, possessing the alluring name of Goldmont. These mining towns spring up rapidly. Their growth is like the increase in the fortunes of men who discover gold. To-day there is a barren waste; to-morrow there is a mining camp with its shanties and tents; and next day there is a city.

In Colorado the mine is father of the town. The result of a rich discovery is the opening of a mine, the building of a mill, and the employ. ment of armies of men. These men must live and have their homes and provide for their families, so the town is started. Its location leads to the further development of mines within its district, and these mines become tributary to the town. Instead of founding smaller villages the population of the surrounding country becomes tributary to the city, which Book of Comfort for Mourners. Quite a successful business by preparing obituary albums has been built up by a New York man. He has 1,500 daily newspapers from different cities of the country, and clips from them obituary notices. Then he approaches surviving relatives to see if they will not buy an album prepared from these notices, and the letters of condolence they may have received. He has fixed prices for everything. Each obituary clipping is 5 cents. Telegrams and cards are 10 cents. Mrs. John W. Mackay has two or three albums prepared from the notices about her husband. There were over 6,000 clippings about him. Samuel D. Babcock and Bert Reiss were also subjects for voluminous albums.

We observe in this figure that the extra cards in each row run backward from the apex, while the key cards, at the left-hand corners, run forward. Note also here that there is no special relative position for the extra cards in each row, so long as the left-hand corners are properly consecutive. We cannot start a row with an extra card. It is not necessary to complete one row before starting on another. On the other hand, it is not permitted to place a card over another where the former would be disturbed by the placing of a third one beneath it. For instance, should the game be at the stage indicated by Fig. 7, another nine (or the extra card of that row, viz., the seven) could not be placed because it would have to be disturbed by the arrival of another eight when the latter turned up. Nor could another ten (or its extra, a six) get in until another nine had been placed. Nor another queen (or its extra, a four) until another jack had been placed. In the figure referred to, only an eight and a jack have right of admission.

Humanity is always ready to lend a hand-but it is often empty.

There are plenty of people who have become depressed and discouraged, because that dry, hacking cough hangs to them continually. They have taken much medicine, mostly of the advertised quack sort, nothing like Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, the discovery of a then noted German physician 60 years ago. We do not say that this will cure a case where the lungs are badly diseased, for it will not, and up to this date there is nothing that will cure under these conditions; but on the other hand, if the lungs are not hard hit, the patient should take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Breast Tea, a cup full every night on going to bed, have it hot, drink slowly, then every other night rub the throat and top portion of the lungs with St Jacobs Oil, cover with oil silk, let it remain an hour, then remove. Eat good, plain, nourishing food, live in the open air as much as possible. By all means sleep as near out of doors as possible, that is, windows wide open, except in the very severe weather. Take a cold sponge bath every morning; then immediately rub the body vigorously with a coarse towel. Take Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops every other day according to directions. One can buy the three remedies for $1.25 of any reliable druggist. Begin the treatment at once and see how much better you will be almost within a week's time.

Record to Be Proud Of.

The record of Alderman Gilbert Finch, who has just been elected first magistrate of Tunbridge Wells, England, is one of which he may justly be proud. He began life at the age of 7 as a plowboy, nine years afterward he became a gardener's assistant, and then a domestic servant. Gradually working his way up, he afterward started business on his own account, and so Mr. Finch steadily forged ahead until to-day he holds his present proud position.

At last, after many return visits to the artist, extending possibly over several years, the entire body is covworld. The ancient Britons, who pricked a decoration of wood into their bodies, connected the custom in some mysterious way with their religion, and it was so commonly practiced by them as to be described as a "vice" by the historians who wrote on the subject during and after the Norman conquest.

To-day we fined the practice quite common, both for religious and decorative purposes, in such widely separated parts of the globe as Japan, Palestine, Central and South America, Jurmah, Borneo, New Zealand, and over the whole of the Pacific islands; whilst many of the African races, as well as some of the North American Indians, are decorated in this fashion. as their forefathers have been for countless generations. In very early days the Romans and Gauls practised the art quite commonly.

Slowly but surely the custom is dying out among most of the uncivilized races, as the missionaries of all creeds fight hard against the practice wherever it is met with. They appear to think that tattooing is in some way

THE CARRIAGE OF WOMEN

Good Advice Given the Fair Sex by an Exchange.

The women who carries herself well is more apt to command respect than the woman who trudges along with her head inclined forward and her shoulders in a stooping position. The possessor of a graceful, erect carriage unconsciously impresses us as having characteristic worth. There are many noble hearted women who really do themselves injustice by the awkward way they carry themselves. It is very hard for others to see beauty and grace of heart in an unlovely outward appearance. It is the exterior of the rose that gives fitting expression to its hidden sweetness.

Although there are many beautiful women with worthless hearts, still that fact does not weaken the other fact that spiritual nobleness and a fair body are a consistent, harmonious association. Everything that appertains to the elevation of the soul affects for the better the aspect of the body, beautifying and refining it. Just as rare jewels need fitting caskets to rest in, so it is only meet that lovely souls should be inclosed in bodies that are beautiful and fair .- Pittsburg Observer.

A Problem Solved.

Cabbel, Kans., Dec. 22nd.-This part of Kansas has solved the great question, How can Kidney Troubles be cured, and as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and other ailments resulting from Diseased Kidneys are common to all parts of the country the news is of great interest.

The cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. Hundreds of people will tell you this of their own experience. Take J. B. Cunningham for example. He had Kidney Trouble of long standing. He sought relief in vain. He had tried Doctors and Medicines of different kinds.

Finally he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and he stopped right there. No one who tries Dodd's Kidney Pills for Kidney Complaint ever needs to look any further. Here is what Mr. Cunningham says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills are all right for Kidney Trouble. I have used them and know for they have done me more good than anything I ever used."

Odd Tavern Signs.

It is probable that not England, but Germany holds the record for out-ofthe way tavern signs and fantastic inn names. The most absurd results are usually obtained by the name of some animal joined with a more or less unsuitable object. The "Comfortable Chicken," and the "Cold Frog," both of them in Berlin, are certainly left in the shade by the "Angry Ant," (Ort, in Westphalia,) which sells splendid beer, and the "Stiff Dog" (Berlin.)

Old Days in New Mexico.

Delegate Rodey of New Mexico acknowledges that in the old days, when the territory was new, a good many desperadoes lived there, but he urgently insists that they have all moved away or died, principally died, of course. When Arthur was in the White House he appointed a man to a place in the territory. The delegate did not know the appointee, so he rushed to a telegraph office and wired his closest friend in New Mexico: 'Who is So-and-So? Wire me complete list of criminal charges against nim," taking it for granted that the party had a record as a lawbreaker.

CHILDREN THE ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is-Syrup of Figs-and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle-Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere of all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember, the full name of the Company-CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO .- is printed on the front of every pack-
