ABOUT THE COVER

Pictured is Taylor's exhibit at the Marion Industrial Exposition held at the Marion Auditorium September 26-28, under the sponsorship of the Marion Industrial Management club of the Y. M. C. A.

The purpose of the Exposition was to present to the people of Grant County a full scale representation of the products of the industries of this area.

Taylor participated in the occasion to acquaint business leaders and the Grant County public with the pre-professional and business training offered at Taylor and to show that Taylor is a progressive and expanding institution.

On display at the right side of the Taylor booth were a decade scaler (Geiger Counter) equipped to test radio activity of radium dial watches and a model of the new dining hall and food service center.

Displayed on the left side of the exhibit was an Auto-type machine which automatically typed letters containing information about Taylor. In back of the Auto-type was a chemistry distillation exhibit in operation.

Taylor personnel who attended the booth were Dr. Nussbaum, Professors Krueger and Van Valkenburg, Edith Miller, Will Cleveland, and students Nancy Longren and Ruth Dillon.

The Taylor exhibit drew considerable attention and during the three day affair an estimated 35,000 persons attended.
FLU EPIDEMIC FORCES CHANGE IN HOMECOMING DATE, PROGRAM

In an unprecedented move the Taylor administration postponed Homecoming Day, including the Hanover game and the Jerome Hines concert due to a flu epidemic which broke out during the first week of October. Homecoming was rescheduled for November 9 and was held in connection with the annual Parent’s Day which was previously scheduled for that date.

Because of the large number of guests expected, a cafeteria dinner was scheduled in place of the Alumni Banquet.

Half-time ceremonies of the football game included the presentation of the queen, parade of floats, presentation of float prizes and Taylor’s new marching band under the direction of Prof. Dale Shepfer.

The football clash with Hanover has been rescheduled for November 16 at 1:00 P.M. on the Taylor field.

The Jerome Hines concert has been postponed indefinitely. However, college officials have been in contact with S. Hurok, Mr. Hines’ Manager, in an effort to reschedule the concert. Alumni will be informed when a date is set.

One of the first Indiana colleges to report a flu epidemic, Taylor had an estimated 300 cases among the student body. In addition, a number of faculty and staff members and their families contracted the sickness.

In order to accommodate the students who were ill, the first floors of Wisconsin, Magee and Swallow-Robin dormitories were converted into infirmaries. For an extended period of about two weeks between 80 and 90 students were ill at any given time.

Operating under the recommendations of county and state health authorities, Mrs. Lilly Haakonsen, School Nurse, and her corps of assistants gave devoted attention to the patients almost around the clock for two weeks. Dr. Warren Bergwall visited the campus periodically to give supervision and administer medications. Activity at the clinic is now back to normal, indicating that the epidemic has run its course.

For two months prior to the outbreak, the administration sought to secure preventive vaccine for the students, but all attempts were unsuccessful. Fortunately, however, the majority of cases were mild and of three to five days duration and none were hospitalized.
Construction Advances on Schedule

FOOD CENTER DOME AND DORMITORY TAKE SHAPE

Construction work on the new food service center and men's dormitory progressed during October to reveal the general shape of the new building.

The architect's dream of a dome-shaped dining hall became a vivid reality during the week of October 20 as a huge crane hoisted five of the ten curved laminated wood beams into place to form its framework.

The seventy-five foot beams converge at a point in the center of the dining hall twenty five feet above the floor. The installing of the roof insulation will be started as soon as all beams are in place, and is scheduled to be completed this fall. The operation involves fastening wooden bracings between the laminated beams in circles at various distances from the center of the dome. Two inch tongue and groove boards will be nailed between the bracings, covering the roof area, and two inch insulation will then be placed over the boards.

A temporary covering of protective paper will be stretched over the dome to permit workmen to plaster the ceiling with acoustical plaster and to continue other work inside. The outer shell of both the dining hall and dormitory are expected to be completed before winter.

Three representatives of the Great Lakes Lift Slab Corporation and a crew of local union welders began lifting the four 400 ton cement slabs for the roof and three floors on Tuesday, October 29.

The Youtz-Slick method of construction is being used on the new dormitory. This method was first used in 1950 after it was perfected in a research project by Mr. Youtz, an architectural instructor in New York, and Mr. Slick, a Texas millionaire scientist and oil man. Together they formed the United States Lift Slab Corporation, the parent company of which the Great Lakes Lift Slab Corporation is a licensee.

The roof and fourth floor will be lifted separately. Each one will take approximately four hours longer than the other two. Due to the height to which they must be raised, a second "hitch" must be made about half way. When in place, the floors will be welded to the vertical steel beams. In the process of moving upward, the floors travel at a rate of three to six feet an hour.

The side walls of aluminum framed glass and Hasko-Struct panels will be fastened to the floors in sections spanning a full story. The all-fire-proof building will have wall partitions of steel studding and fire proof plaster with all steel doors and framework.
Fund Drive Progresses; $70,000 Already Subscribed

Early phases of the major campaign to raise $225,000 for Taylor University this fiscal year have been successful, President Evan Bergwall has announced.

The combined drives, to raise $110,000 for the men's dormitory and food service center and $115,000 for current expenses, was begun officially with a kick-off meeting on September 20. At that meeting Howard Skinner, Campaign Chairman, announced that the Trustees of the college had already pledged about $35,000 to the drive.

The second phase of the campaign was among administration and staff who have pledged approximately $10,000, exceeding their goal of $5,000 by 100%.

Showing their interest in the University, the Upland community, under the leadership of Milan Duckwall, pledged their goal of $4,000 in a personal visitation program conducted by Upland residents last month. A drive among the students to raise $11,000 has begun under the leadership of Duane Cuthbertson, Student Body President.

The Alumni Association has set a goal of $51,000 for 1957-58 with 45% of the alumni participating. The alumni will be asked to contribute $36,000 to the Alumni Fund, equaling last year's record total, plus an additional $15,000 for the new buildings.

An Alumni Special Gift Committee has been formed by Rev. Ernest Shumaker of Frewsburg, New York. The work of this Committee, seeking to secure $10,000 in a separate effort apart from the Alumni Fund Program, is now under way.

The regional solicitation phase of the Alumni Fund Drive is currently being organized with approximately 50 Regional Chairmen being named to contact alumni in their respective areas of the country.

The Regional Chairmen are working under the direction of Lloyd Wil-
Selective Admissions Program and Recruitment
Discussed by Registrar

With the expansion now under way at Taylor, we are interested in contacting young people who should be having their college experience in the Christian atmosphere which is present on the Taylor campus. Those of us who are here on the scene feel that we have an academic program which will prepare key young people for the world of tomorrow with its over-whelming opportunities for Christian service. Success in recruiting these young people depends upon many factors of which the alumni are an important part, even more now than in the past. We have felt that the alumni would appreciate information about our selective admissions program so they will send us the type of student for whom we are looking.

No longer does one write the college and indicate that he wants to come; no longer does the college reply and tell the student to come. When Frankie Freshman and Trudie Transfer apply now the postman rings more than twice. Many things happen behind the scenes before the student enters in September or January. First of all, planning for the academic year began months and years before registration day. Quotas are set for the year(s), for sectioned classes. The dean's office questions: how many sections are needed for Freshman Composition, how many for Freshman Religion? With all these transfer girls wanting to enter the Elementary Education program do we need another section of Art Methods for Teachers? Can we add another section to Professor Willing's teaching load? What is the most advantageous use that can be made of our classroom facilities? We must build that new science building for more and more are applying who plan to major in that field. And so it goes.

But to get back to Frankie. He must be in the upper two-thirds of his high school graduating class, have a total of fifteen units (a unit is one year of high school studies), have at least three years of English and one of mathematics, preferably algebra.

In addition Frankie must have references from high school principal or guidance counselor as well as his pastor. Additional information is gained from his autobiography and health form. Our admissions program is not a complicated one; information is gained from many sources in a procedure designed to expedite the process so that both the student and the college can plan quickly.

Pre-registration fees total fifteen dollars—five dollars accompanies the application and ten dollars is the admission fee when the student is actually accepted.

What about Trudy Transfer? She has to submit all the material that Frankie did plus an official transcript from the college(s) formerly attended. All grades accepted in transfer must be “C” or above, and all work accepted in transfer must be validated by one semester of satisfactory work on campus.

This is how "selective admissions" is administered at Taylor. In a sense we have always been selective in that we never accepted young people who had not graduated from accredited high schools and who were not in sympathy with our standards of Christian conduct. We still insist on the latter, but we have added to it an emphasis on scholarship which will give us young people that the Taylor program can prepare for key places in the Kingdom affairs.

Let us be specific in the ways in which the alumni can help in this important area. They know the (Continued on next page)
Leadership Training Proves Significant

Under the guidance of Dr. William Green, a progressive student leadership development program was begun three years ago and has gained rapid acceptance from the student body and the college administration.

In many areas of college life, separate faculty committees and student government committees have been replaced by student-faculty committees in which faculty members and students share responsibility in much of the college program. This innovation, part of the new campus government setup, is an integral part of the student leadership training program, affording students opportunity to gain administrative experience working with the faculty.

In addition to the Freshman Orientation Week, in which upper classmen assisted the dean of students, and the Leadership Conference, the training program includes a formal three-hour credit course, "Principles of Leadership," which introduces the students to the philosophy and methods of leadership. The group meets twice each week with the freshmen, and twice weekly in its own class. The course includes the following units: theories of leadership, nature of groups, communication, and special problems of leadership.

The leadership training program has proved to be of great value to the students and to college life, Dr. Green observed. The program gives students opportunity to test and apply the theories of leadership immediately rather than hope to preserve knowledge for future experience.

Students who are preparing for professions such as teaching, business and the ministry receive practical experience in democratic methods of working with people, besides developing administrative skills.

United Nations Leader Addresses Chapel

Professor Vaclav L. Benes, former high government official of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, who escaped from the Communist captors of that country, and is now associate professor of Government at Indiana University, presented an address on the place of the United Nations in International Affairs, at student chapel on October 23. After the occupation of his country by the Nazis in 1939, he escaped to England and took part in the second movement for the liberation of Czechoslovakia under the leadership of his uncle, the late Eduard Benes, then president of Czechoslovakia.

In this movement, he held various legal positions with the government in exile including deputy member of the War Crimes Commission in London. During this period he edited a weekly bulletin, "The Prague-London Letter," and the monthly "Spirit of Czechoslovakia."

The program was sponsored by the Social Science Club of which Dr. Paton Yoder is the sponsor.

Frankie and Trudie of their home church or community. They can make the needed contact to direct these young people our way. They can send us names of these qualified boys and girls to whom we can send catalogs and other information. Visitors to the campus are always welcome, and alumni can bring these to our offices for counseling, if such a visit is possible. The alumni have been a most important part of our recruitment program in the past, and we look with confidence to their continued help again.
