Brotherhood in Action

Captain Virgil A. Daniels withdrew his deposit on an apartment in Waver­ly, Iowa, after he learned that a few families in the building protested because he was a Negro. Another resident heard of it and wrote a letter to the Waverly paper saying that he believed the protest did not represent the true sentiments of the community. "I am certain I speak for many when I say ‘Captain, we are sorry. We would have been proud to have counted you as a neighbor," he wrote.

The Waverly Chamber of Commerce took up the matter immediately and within eighteen hours Captain and Mrs. Daniels and their three children were comfortably housed in Waverly.

The letter to the Waverly paper was written by Sherman Spear, now ad­vertising manager for the Lutheran Mutual Life Insurance Co., and former alumni secretary at Taylor. As a result of the action of the citizens of Waverly, the town was awarded a check for $10,000 and a citation by the Fund for the Republic, Inc.

“Sherm,” a graduate of Taylor in 1940, had this to say about the situation: "No one in Waverly who had anything to do with this ever expected any kind of monetary award or any other special kind of recognition. What we did, we did because we thought it was right and courteous and kind. In fact, we told the Fund people that we didn’t merit any special consideration. But they went ahead believing that the resultant publicity would cause what we did to be repeated over and over again. If so, then of course we are happy about it. I hope that someday what we did to fight racial prejudice will become so common that only the absence of such action will cause comment.”

Life magazine covered the story in the issue dated April 22. After it was all over, Sherm learned that Captain Daniels is a good friend of Capt. Joe Blades, son of Taylor graduate Joseph Blades, class of 1918, about whom Dr. B. W. Ayres has written in his booklet, Honor to Whom Honor is Due.
On the Cover

Some new equipment to make easier the duplication of academic records has been added to the registrar's office. Two of the girls who assist Miss Olson in that office, Gladys Jibben and Charlotte Justice, are shown operating the machine as Dean Milo Rediger looks on. The pose suggested the article by Dr. Rediger, "What's Behind Your Transcript?", which gives a good view of what makes up an accredited college program.

After 41 Years of Service — Miss Draper to Retire

Miss Olive M. Draper, professor of mathematics and astronomy, who has been a member of the Taylor faculty continuously since her appointment in 1914, will retire from teaching at the end of the current academic year. Miss Draper has been a member of the faculty longer than any other member now serving. In recognition of her contribution to Taylor, the Alumni Association has chosen to award Miss Draper the Appreciation Award for this year at the Alumni Banquet, June 3. She is also to receive special recognition at a farewell banquet given to all faculty members leaving Taylor this year.

Miss Draper came to Taylor as a transfer student from Kletzing College in 1911. At the time of her graduation, the professor then teaching Chemistry was leaving, and he asked her to be his successor. In addition to teaching during her years of service to Taylor she helped design the floor plan of the present science building.

Several schools were hosts to Miss Draper for her graduate study, which she pursued during summers; these were the University of Iowa, Colorado University, Indiana University, and the school from which she received her M. A. degree, the University of Michigan. She was then advanced to the position of professor and taught in the fields of mathematics and astronomy. For a number of years she taught physics also.

If all the lives of the Taylor family which have been touched by Miss Draper's influence throughout the past forty-one years were to be gathered together, it is quite obvious that a great host would be present. To the persistency and consistency of Miss Olive May Draper, Taylor University is surely indebted.

Miss Draper is a member of the American Ass'n. of University Professors, the American Ass'n. for Advancement of Science, Math. Ass'n. of America, Ind. Academy of Science and Central Ass'n. of Science and Math. Teachers. She is listed in Who's Who in the Midwest, American Men of Science and Leaders in Education.

What's Behind Your Transcript?

If your transcript is worth the translucent paper on which it is photographed, there is a great deal more behind it than appears on the surface. Records of courses taken and grades received, relative standing in class, point-hour ratio and degrees granted are meaningful in relation to the strengths and weaknesses of the people and programs behind the transcript. In other words, there is a college behind your transcript which determines its value.

The greatest strength or weakness of any college is its faculty. Someone has said that Mark Hopkins and the student still face each other on the log, even though the log has grown wondrously and fearfully in size and branches. The faculty which is behind a Taylor transcript is made up of 36 men and women who comprise a teaching force of which we are rightly proud. Thirty per cent of these have earned doctor's degrees; all but two of the others have the master's degree. They did their graduate work in these 42 institutions:

Yale University
Oxford University
Emory University
State University of Iowa
University of Minnesota
University of Arizona
Indiana University
Northwestern University
Ball State Teacher's College
University of Michigan
University of Southern California
Columbia University
American University
Princeton University
Western Reserve University
University of Tennessee
University of Pittsburgh
University of Pennsylvania
University of Chicago
Syracuse University
Kansas State College
University of Edinburgh
Purdue University
University of Washington
University of Rochester
Ohio State University
Harvard University
Boston University
University of Grenoble (France)
West Virginia University
New York University
Cincinnati Conservatory of Music

The Taylor faculty represents an ideal distribution of ages between youth and maturity. Twenty-nine per cent are between 25 and 34 years of age, twenty-nine per cent between 35 and 44 years, twenty per cent between 45 and 54, and twenty per cent are between 55 and 68 years of age. Two instructors are under 25. This teaching force brings to the students a great amount of teaching experience without being too old to be in vital touch with youth.

Behind your transcript are people other than teachers who also help to determine its real significance and meaning. There are the men who carry out the off-campus aspects of the educational program, spending long hours and days and weeks away from their homes and families to make the contacts with prospective students, parents and contributors. These men cultivate the public relations of the college and build good will for the institution. They believe in the aims and purposes of Taylor University, in the faculty and the students — and in you.

There are also the men who keep the physical plant in good condition and maintain its operation. They work mainly behind the scenes, but they make a contribution as necessary to the total program as are teaching and administration. And the clerical staff, too, is essential to the total operation which produces a transcript that commands the respect of educational circles and the world at large. In fact, all of these people must work together harmoniously each fitting into the total pattern as God directs and adds His blessing to the whole institution and program.
LeSchanas to Appear at Summer Camp Meetings

Dave and Becky LeShana will represent Taylor at a number of summer camp meetings during July and August. They have begun to book definite dates for services in 1956. Persons or churches interested in securing this young, energetic couple should write now to the Public Relations Department at Taylor. All services are held on a free-will offering basis.

Meetings scheduled for June and July are:
- Maple Run Friends Church, Marion, Ind. June 12-26.
- Hughesville, Penna. Camp July 7-17.

Also, behind your transcript is a complicated system of record-keeping. Academic records, financial records and activity records must all be integrated into an organized picture which fairly represents you and what you have done and what you have become in and through the educative process. Cards and books and files and fire-proof vaults combine to preserve and perpetuate the record of what you were and did during those four very important years. How fortunate you are if you have a record to live up to rather than one to live down!

Because, you see, in a very real sense, you too are behind your transcript. Your college is not good or bad, strong or weak, entirely apart from you. Transcribing is not all one-way traffic. If you are a graduate or former student, there is, in a certain sense, a transcript of you in the history of Taylor University.

You have made your Alma Mater stronger or weaker by your record while you were here—and you continue to make her better or poorer by the measure of your commitment to her Christian aims and purposes, and by the quality of life of service you give to Christ and the World.

Here, with the faculty I have described, and with all of the other supporting persons and programs, we are doing our best to preserve and improve what's behind your transcript. We are dependent upon each other for the quality and prestige that each transcript carries. We will soon complete a decade as a fully accredited liberal arts and teacher-education college. As we continue to seek God's guidance and blessing, to grow and improve in spiritual and academic stature, and as you continue to reflect credit upon your Alma Mater, together we will be putting more and more behind your transcript.

Faculty Promotions Made

A number of faculty promotions have been made at Taylor to be effective for the 1955-56 academic year. Dr. Hazel Butz, formerly associate professor of English, has been named full professor. Seventy seniors are candidates for degrees which will be awarded. This is the smallest class since 1948. Almost half the class are candidates for the B. S. in Ed. degree, indicating an increasing trend toward more teacher training.

The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. Carl F. H. Henry, professor of theology and Christian philosophy at Fuller Theological Seminary, Pasadena, California. He will speak on the topic "Christianity and a Dying Culture."

Engstrom, who currently serves as president of the board of directors of the William Taylor Foundation, is a graduate and former staff member of Taylor. He has served as manager of the Zondervan Publishing Co. and in addition to being editor of the Christian Digest, Engstrom has written extensively for a variety of Christian publications. He is author of a number of religious books, many of them being in the field of children's religious fiction. Engstrom is also president of Gospel Films, Inc. He will be presented for the degree by Dr. Harlowe Evans.

Thurman Morris, a graduate of Marion College, has served for 28 years as a minister in the Methodist Church. He was superintendent of the Richmond district before going to Warsaw. Morris has been active in youth work as Dean and member of the board of Epworth Forest Institute and district director of youth activities. He is president of the board of trustees of the Bashor Children's Home and a board member of the Methodist Memorial Home for the Aged. Morris will be presented by Dr. A. Wesley Pugh.

Baccalaureate services will be held Sunday evening, May 29 at 7:30 in Shreiner Auditorium with Rev. Morris bringing the message. Alumni Day is to be observed on Friday, June 3.
CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

At the recent annual convention of the National Association of Evangelicals, one of the leading educators in evangelical circles put a great deal of content to the idea of Christian education. This came through the differentiation between education for time or for eternity. Most education—even of the highest calibre—is education for time. This may be education of a vocational nature, for position; it might be education for culture or the ability to enjoy the “good life”; it might be education for pleasure and the ability to enjoy the finer things of living; it could even be an education for service. When education is discussed in this light, it is basically with the concept of time in mind.

Quite obviously on the Christian college campus much education is of this temporal vein. But the thing which should differentiate our education on a Christian college campus is that we add the concept of eternity to our teaching. Consideration is given to the need of the soul. Temporal education ends with death, but in our Christian theology we know that there is life after death. We, therefore, have a greater responsibility than educating young people for time; for if death ends man, then education is in vain. But our evangelical faith declares that there is a life after death which makes this life tremendously important.

Most church-related colleges started with the concept of education for eternity in mind. The soul and its preparation for eternity were not forgotten. Much of secular education has overlooked this aspect of the human personality. On a Christian college campus we must do our utmost to prepare for time, but how tragic if we do so, but forget eternity!

It is certainly our objective and ambition at Taylor University to give Christ the proper perspective in our program. We want to do this in our curriculum, in our faculty; we want to do it in every ramification of our institution. When Christ is enthroned in the hearts of teachers we know that an education that is truly Christian will follow.

Graduate Grant Awarded

Elmer Nussbaum, faculty member in the department of physics who is on leave of absence for advanced study, has been awarded a graduate training assistance grant by Taylor University. The grant is an in-service aid that Taylor provides to not more than one faculty member per year. The recipient must qualify by being able to complete his doctoral work during the time the grant is in effect, and at the completion of studies the recipient is expected to serve on the Taylor faculty for a specified term.

Nussbaum will return to teach in the division of natural sciences in September, 1956. He is now on leave at the University of Rochester.

Taylor Strong in Baseball

Under the coaching of Cal Fleser the Taylor baseball team is off to a winning season with seven out of the first ten games in the victory column. The opener against Indiana University was a close battle. The Trojans led with a three run margin until the seventh inning. Final score was 6-4. At Kentucky State the Taylor squad cleaned up two games winning 7-1 and 15-6. Southern Illinois proved too much for the Trojans as they went down by scores of 13-0 and 15-4. The spring tour was concluded by Taylor shellacking Greenville in a double header 6-3 and 10-0.

Conference play opened for the Trojan diamond men with a double header victory against Hanover 5-2 and 12-4. Huntington was the next victim that went down 6-3.

Nate Price has wielded the big stick at the plate, but others on the team have been hitting consistently also. Price tagged the longest homer anyone could remember in the Taylor field against Hanover to drive in three runs. Against Huntington he knocked the ball out of the field to bring in two men on base. Freshman Tom Lockwood has done some good duty on the mound, but will probably see no more action this year due to a shoulder separation. Leichty, Niswender and Reed handle most of the pitching assignments with help from Morse, who regularly plays first base. Mel Shy has been the starting catcher with Augustine moving back to second base.

Track Team Working Hard

Track season has just opened at Taylor but the first meet against Earlham was a victory for T. U. thinclads.
