LETTER

From Old Mexico

H. Legler Connelly writes of Great Valley

This is the land of Barbara Worth, where that famous story was set. A descent which is 230 ft. below sea level but is now a valley of green, where farmers are growing rich from the fertility of the soil, which laid idle for years, and which is recanted with silt from the Colorado river each year. Alfalfa, cotton and cantaloupe are the main crops, with dairy farms, a big source of income. Hog raising is becoming an industry here also. The best grade of cotton in the world is raised here, and 5 crops of alfalfa is cut each year. Farms rent for an average of $15 per acre and some as high as $40, cash rent.

This valley is a net work of canals, and extends from the Black Beaut mountain to the Superstitious mount and Signal mount to the south. The Salten Sea is on the south and the Laguna Salida on the north.

El Centro is the County seat and Imperial City, Calexico, Brawley and Seely are the main cities and are about the size of Gas City.

I have worked in each one of these places but am now engineer on the Dredge Alpha, which is a float dredge 65 ft. long and 30 ft. wide, and has a bucket which handles a yard of dirt. The I. I. D. has 15 dredges and some are 5 yard buckets with 90 foot booms.

We are about 40 miles across the line in Mexico, about 10 miles from the Laguna Salida (silt lake) and not very far from the Gulf of California.

Gov. Cantu and myself are old friends by this time, and he is trying to get me to take his army, and help Villa make peace in bleeding Mexico, his beloved country, but none of this war stock for me.

On the south of us is a barley field, which is 5 miles square, and a big combine is just now cutting, threshing and sacking it. (some machine) while on the north side is a cotton field of 10,000 acres.

We have to pay $1.00 per month tax, and have to smuggle our tobacco across the line.

I just got about 10 back Monitors, and believe me, it was just like meeting an old friend. They come in handy another way; we run out of markers and used them every 65 ft. by putting them on the bank, to mark the distance we have gone.

I am in the best of health and enjoying life, and hope you are the same.

I am sincerely yours,
H. Legler Connelly,
Tia Juana, Mexico

The following is a very truthful remark: "The man who grows up in his native town is regarded as a boy by his elders until he is well started down the declivity of life that ends in a hole.

The stranger who comes into a place is more often pushed to the front than the young man who has grown up with the town. This is the reason why so many young men become dissatisfied with their home surroundings and long to cast their lot in other quarters.

Appareled for the Boudoir remine daintiness and love for beautiful color may be indulged without restraint within the walls of the boudoir. There is no excuse for any sort of ugliness there. Lingerie grows more and more airy and dainty, and in negligees the prettiest fancies of designs are interpreted in any extreme of style. Satin and chiffon, thin crepe and fine laces, are the alluring mediums with which the artist works out her dreams. Ribbons and little made flowers add touches that betray her delight in the work she undertakes. Color is such an important factor in apparel for the boudoir that the less expensive sheer fabrics, in the same colors as silk stuffs, are used with as good results. Voiles, mull, lawn and thin mercerized cottons are made up with laces and trimmed with ribbons to make negligees that are as captivatingly colorful and dainty as any others. But they cost a fraction of the price of sheer silk materials.

A negligee worn over a combination with pantalettes, is shown in the picture. The pantalettes are substituted for petticoats and worn under dance frocks or under negligees. They are of satin, joined to an under bodice of satin and lace. Wide val lace is cascaded down the sides in ruffles that widen toward the bottom. Just above the ankle the fullness is gathered on an elastic cord, forming a narrow frill. This combination is supported by ribbons tied at the shoulders.

Chiffon and Uruguay lace make the lovely empire coat worn over this combination. It is banded with ribbon in three widths, the widest forming a border about the bottom. Wide lace flouncing is draped in the effect of a mantle, falling over the sleeves and covering the upper half of the coat. It fastens at the waist line under two little bouquets of chiffon flowers made of tiny roses and ribbon foliage.

Recently Launched Summer Styles

It makes one long for midsummer, for the glory of June weddings, or even for graduation days, to view the new thin white dresses which have recently been launched upon the sea of summer fashions. They are a froth of frills and flounces and look as cool and unsubstantial as white clouds in the spring sky. These models of the utterly feminine in summer clothes are repeated in pale tints that are mere reflections of pink or green or blue. Occasionally illusive figures appear on them, usually in the form of lace applique in motifs that are applied to an under petticoat or to the underside of the skirt.

Organdie and other sheer crisp materials are better adapted to dresses of this kind than softer fabrics. Lawns and voiles are used for them, and it almost goes without saying that the flounces and frills are made very full always but fullest in the softer goods.

A frock of white organdie is shown in the illustration given here. It reveals the cleverest sort of management of style and material, each helping out the other. The skirt and bodice are in one, set together with a plain belt of white moire. There is a panel down the front made of a series of frills graduated in width. They are plaited in the narrowest of plaits and extend from the square neck to the bottom of the skirt. Two wide and very full flounces cover the remainder of the skirt. The hem of these flounces is trimmed into scallops and hemstitched at the edges.

The elbow sleeves are covered with four plaited frills and widen at the elbow. There is a quaint little cape about the shoulders, edged with a frill, and it falls over the shoulders to the topmost frill on the sleeves. The bodice is plain and is hemmed at the sides in a scalloped hem that falls over the panel at the front. It fastens at the side with invisible fastening of small flat buttons and loops.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Child Logic.

Freddie wanted his pie first, and being the youngest of a family of five he got it. "You eat backwards," was his mother's comment as she placed it before him.

The young philosopher fell into a brown study, from which he was only aroused by the sight of more pie, now brought in for the elders.

"Mother," he said, "what's backwards? If I put my shoe on wrong, is that backwards?"

"Yes."
"If I sit this way"—and he deliberately turned his back to the table—"is that backwards?"

"Yes."
"Well, I wasn't sitting like that when I ate my pie."

Value of Our Horses.

There are about one hundred and ninety-one million animals in the United States and they are worth, roughly, six billion dollars. Is it any wonder that science has become interested in animals. There are approximately twenty-one million horses in the country, representing an investment of two billion, three hundred million dollars. The despised mule may not be so despised when you consider that he represents five hundred and sixty million dollars of our total wealth and that his kind numbers about four million five hundred thousand.—Popular Science Monthly.

Cats-up.

"Sarah," said her mistress during the dinner hour, "will you go down to the basement and get the catsup?" Sarah departed, and a few minutes later the family heard a great shooting and scampering of feet. Shortly after Sarah came breathlessly into the dining room and said to her astonished mistress: "They're up, mum."
"What are up?"
"The cats, mum."—Youth's Companion.

Taxicab Driver Senses Danger.

A London taxicab driver, rejected for the army on account of defective eyesight, was re-examined recently, the London Globe says.

"How do you manage to drive your cab at night?" the officer asked.

"It's like this," he replied. "If we hear a smash we know we have hit something, and if we don't we know it's all right."

He was remanded to Scotland Yard for further examination.

It's Valuable Now.

When William Jessup, who formerly operated a woolen mill in Princeton, died 20 years ago, he left among his effects a large keg of Russian red dye-stuff. Each housecleaning time his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Woods, had to shift it around. Woods had tried to sell it to wholesalers in vain; they didn't need it.

"What'll we do with this?" asked Mr. Woods when they cleaned house last summer.

"Pile it on the trash heap and burn it; I'm tired of looking at it," said Mrs. Woods.

Being a dutiful husband, Mr. Woods obeyed.

Now the Russian dye is said to be unobtainable at any price, and the amount that Mr. Woods burned would have netted at this time from $500 to $1,000.

The losers philosophically agreed that it's no use to cry over spilt milk and have dispensed with any worry over "what might have been."—Indianapolis News.

Watch Wasn't Necessary.

The colonel of a certain regiment in Kitchener's army is a great stickler for obedience, instant and complete.

"Smith," he said to his orderly recently, "I want you to ride down to the railway station and get me the correct time."

Smith shuffled his feet and fiddled with his fingers.

"Well, man," roared the officer frately, "why don't you do as you are told?"

"Please, sir," replied the orderly meekly, "I haven't a watch."

"A watch—a watch!" snapped the colonel. "What d'ye want a watch for? Just write it down on a bit of paper."

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

COYOTE FRIGHTENS THE TOWN

Savage Animal Finally Driven Away by School Children Unaware of Danger.

A gaunt gray coyote terrorized Portola, Cal. It was first noticed when it attacked two dogs at the residence of Thomas Dorothy.

Mrs. J. Hardy, who was passing at the time, narrowly escaped being bitten when the coyote broke away from the dogs and attempted to attack her. The dogs pulled it down again, however, before it reached her.

During the recess period it appeared at the schoolhouse, but the children chased it in a body and frightened it away. They were not aware of the real danger.

A number of hunters are scouring the hills close to town in an endeavor to locate and kill the coyote.

"Are you looking forward to the summer with pleasant anticipation?" asked the optimistic citizen.

"Yes, indeed," replied the pessimistic person. "A great many people I'm tired of looking at will go out of town for the summer."

Mean Suggestion. "Miss Gladys has such polish." "Do you mean in her manners or her face enamel?"

Concentrated Satisfaction

A great many former users of tea and coffee have learned that there is a pure food beverage made from wheat, which has a delightful flavor.

It never exacts of its users the tribute of sleeplessness, heart-flutter, headache and other ills often caused by the drug, caffeine, in coffee and tea.

Instant Postum

suggests the snappy flavor of mild java coffee, but is absolutely free from caffeine or any harmful ingredient. Instant Postum is in condensed, soluble form, and wonderfully convenient for the home—for the picnic—for travel—everywhere.

If tea or coffee interferes with comfort or success, as it does for many users, try a shift to Postum.

NEW STATES SATISFIED.

A. G. Findlay of Seattle, royal chief of the Scottish Clans, is a traveling salesman whose work takes him into every city of considerable size in the far West. This is what he says:

"National prohibition is not far distant of that I feel certain from the satisfaction which prohibition is giving in the West. It is interesting to note that stores report a marked increase in the volume of cash business which they are doing and that the installment houses and others carrying many accounts with people of moderate means report that collections are very much better, payments made more promptly and, in a much increased proportion, without 'dunning.'"

"One entire set of arguments against prohibition is, it seems to me, knocked out by what is seen to be happening to the saloon. 'The poor man's club,' the saloon has often been called by some who sought to defend it and the attempt has been made to call prohibition class legislation, as depriving the poor man of a place for social intercourse with his fellows since he could not afford membership in a club, as more well-to-do men can. One finds that, under prohibition, many of the places which formerly were saloons are more nearly a poor man's club now than before. Games and a place to read his newspapers are provided for the customer, these places supporting themselves by the sale of temperance drinks, and so forth."

PERSONAL LIBERTY.

A man may not even do with his own body what he pleases. Suppose he tries to kill it—to commit suicide. If he fails he will go to jail. And yet if the United States government should decide to go to war with any other nation it assumes the right, if necessary, to send him to the front to be shot down. He belongs to the state as well as to himself.

If the state should decide that the saloon is a menace, and that it dispenses poison, then society has a right to say that the saloon must go, no matter how it may affect anybody's personal liberty. We accept the restriction which the state imposes upon us in other relationships. Why not accept it with regard to the saloon, especially since it has been so clearly demonstrated that the interests of the saloon are always opposed to the interests of the workingman?—Charles Stelzle.

LIQUOR DEALERS BARRED.

The Manufacturers and Dealers' association, an organization of the liquor interests with headquarters in Chicago, is offering to furnish newspapers with anti-prohibition material. In his letter to the editors Mr. Daniels, business manager of the association, says: "This is not a liquor organization. We do not accept as a member anyone who deals in alcoholic liquors. We are tax-paying business men who help make the wheels of commerce go round." It may be in order to ask, why discriminate against the liquor dealer? From the standpoint of the above-named anti-prohibition commercial association he is a necessary factor in making the wheels go round. Does the liquor trade, wholesale and retail, view with approval this ostracism by manufacturers and dealers?

STANDPOINT OF BUSINESS.

BOOZE—A VITAL QUESTION. Alcohol as a food is a joke and a rather bad joke at that. It guarantees to do these things: Make you lose BALANCE Make you lose NERVE Make you lose EMPLOYMENT Make you lose MONEY Make you lose FRIENDS Make you lose FAMILY Make you lose SELF-CONFIDENCE Make you lose COURAGE Make you lose HEALTH Make you lose LIFE THAT'S ALL.

The above was recently printed on the pay envelopes of an eastern packing company. The industrial concerns which are carrying on a campaign of temperance education among their employees are increasing in number with a rapidity most encouraging to prohibitionists. "The tendency of big corporations to encroach upon the personal liberties of workers," says a liquor journal, "is one of the most pregnant signs of the times."

PROTECT PUBLIC HEALTH.

The prevention of disease is the most notable contribution of the present generation to civilization. The discontinuance of the use of alcohol will mark a greater advance in public health protection than anything since the application of our knowledge of the bacterial origination of disease.—Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Health of New York city.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

The anti-prohibitionist's revenue argument is illustrated by the following story: A gentleman farmer, who bought a pig for $27, sold it for $31.50 after feeding it 40 bushels of grain at a dollar a bushel.

"I made $4.50 out of that pig," he chuckled.

"But how about the forty bushels of grain at a dollar a bushel that you fed him?" queried a friend.

"Oh, well," was the complacent reply. "I didn't expect to make anything on the grain."

FARMER'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Demand for Canadian Cattle After the War.

The opportunities that Western Canada offers to the farmer have time and again been placed before the public through these columns. The cheap price at which the very best lands can be purchased, and the advantage that is to be had in securing one of the free homesteads of 160 acres has appealed to a great many, and they have embraced them. Many, in fact most of those who have done so are today giving testimony to the good fortune and the timely forethought that led them to go to Western Canada, and embark in an era of farming that has placed them away beyond the pinch of want and given them reason to look into the future with a hopefulness that they had not had the courage in the past to forecast.

Not only have they been able to secure good lands at low prices and on easy terms but if they desired they have been able to add to this 160 acres of land free, on conditions that are easy. A resident in the Lloydminster district in Saskatchewan who had been farming in the States for some time, took up a homestead in 1910, and commenced breaking with 4 oxen. Two years ago he bought an adjoining quarter section and now has over 100 acres under cultivation. He says, "As my circumstances improved, I sold the oxen and now have six head of horses, twelve head of cattle, and have always a bunch of hogs on hand."

"On an average I have had yields of 25 bushels of wheat, 65 bushels of oats, and 40 bushels of barley to the acre, and last season from a field of 28½ acres, I threshed 1,040 bushels of wheat. I have made a success of mixed farming and would have no hesitation in advising all who contemplate making a new home to come to this district. I sell cream to the Government Creamery here, and find at all times a good market for live stock and other produce."

This is but a modest statement of what a modest man can do in Western Canada, and could be repeated of hundreds of others.

Scores of cases could be recited where much more has been accomplished, and it is believed that with moderate investment at the present time, the cattle industry of Western Canada will pay large interest.

The Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, in a recent address, ventured the prediction that the Saskatchewan farmer who developed his land along the lines of general stock breeding would make much more money and find a far bigger return for his efforts in ten years' time, than the man who devoted his energies purely and primarily to grain raising. This was the coming golden age of opportunity for the stockmen and it was up to the Saskatchewan man to get in on the ground floor and prepare himself for the coming demand.

The close of the war would undoubtedly see a great demand for live stock in Europe and it was only reasonable to suppose that this demand would have to be filled almost wholly by American stockmen, both in Canada and the United States. Europe was slowly draining its rural districts not only of its beef and dairy animals but was also using the finer breeding animals and the end of the war would see a condition of affairs which would render necessary almost the repopulation of the domestic animal kingdom at that continent.

The opportunity of Western Canadian stockmen, therefore, lay in being prepared for this demand when it arose. In view of these facts which must be patent to every student of economic conditions as related to the stock industry, he hoped to see within the next three years the stock raising industry in Saskatchewan given an immense impetus forward, which would put it in the forefront of the producing provinces of the Dominion.—Advertiser.

A Will of Nineteen Words.

In one of the shortest wills on record, James H. Darling, who died on December 3, 1915, cuts off his sons with but $1 each and leaves all the rest of his estate to his daughter. "After death, I will my daughter, Annie C. Darling, all my money and belongings, except $1 to my sons."—Baltimore News.

HIS FORESIGHT

By ERNESTINE COBB.

"Ah, this is the life!" Anne's tone and inflection expressed complete satisfaction, which was the result of her being settled in a brand-new three-room apartment. The wicker furniture, cretonne hangings, woven cotton rugs, and fragile teacups were the things Anne had not found in her varied experience in boarding houses, though they were the things for which her soul and body, too, had yearned.

She turned her eyes lovingly from one object to another all about the cheerful living room. The cup of tea she had just finished had banished the fatigue of her day's work at school.

Suddenly her serenity gave way to a puzzled expression. She bent her head listening to a song that seemed to come from the adjoining apartment and seemed to contain something about somebody of the name of Anne. As the song was repeated at irregular intervals, Anne made out the following words:

"How old is Anne? Don't ask me, man; But, she she five or fifty, I'm sure with me you will agree That Anne is rather nifty!"

"Of all the nerve!" thought Anne, as she first caught the words. Then she laughed a bit sheepishly as she reflected that the singer did not know of her existence, much less of her name.

She seated herself at the piano, which was her chief luxury and companion. Just as she was ready to lay her hands upon the keys to play the old-time melodies for which her present mood called, once more there came to her that insistent singer's untrained baritone mumbling the doggerel about Anne.

As she listened to the now familiar air, she began unconsciously to play a soft accompaniment to it. Not until an abrupt silence followed the closing words of the stanza did she fully realize what she had done.

She wondered whether the young man were listening, too. Then she wondered why she thought of him as a young man, but finally decided that neither his age nor his identity were of interest to her, she tossed her head indifferently and began to improvise music suited to her mood. Consternation overcame her a moment later when she found herself playing that chugging accompaniment in a spirited way, and realizing that the singer had boldly taken up the words and was singing gaily to her accompaniment. She stopped short in the midst of it and broke giddily into a Dvorak "Humoresque."

Anne was to be a dinner guest that evening of her Cousin Emily Mason. Mrs. Mason had telephoned Anne the night before to look her prettiest as the guests would include a charming bachelor architect and a rising young lawyer, while Anne would be the youngest and prettiest girl present.

Anne smiled as she remembered her cousin's bantering words, and she went from the piano to the closet and took out her only two evening gowns. One was a soft, pale green charmeuse and the other a fluffy black net. She decided to wear the pale green gown. An hour afterward she was at the door of the Masons.

"You're a dream, Anne," whispered her cousin, as the long black coat was removed. "If you don't set the lawyer or the architect to dreaming of you, I'm no prophet."

John Moore, the architect, proved to be fat, florid and forty. Edgar Worth, the lawyer, was slender and strong, possibly thirty, but with the twinkle of a boy of twenty in his brown eyes. Edgar Worth took Anne in to dinner, and John Moore was seated on her other hand. The dinner started off with light conversation and laughter, but presently Anne and Edgar found themselves talking about music.

"In what kind of music do you find most enjoyment?" asked Anne. "All depends on my mood," said Edgar. "An hour or two ago I'd have chosen a 'Humoresque' lightly played on a piano, but now I could tolerate a whole symphony orchestra in something more soulful."

Anne's eyes were full of surprised inquiry at his mention of the "Humoresque," but just at that moment the architect spoke to her.

"Mrs. Mason tells me you are domiciled at the new Selkirk studios, my pet architectural achievement of the year," was his half comment, half question.

"Yes," answered Anne and Edgar in the same breath. Then they looked at each other in wide-eyed bewilderment, which slowly gave way to understanding.

"So you are my musical neighbor?" he almost gasped. "I offer my profound apologies for my execrable singing, which was pure rapture poorly expressed over my escape from boarding-house life to a place I was able to make a bit homelike."

"Since you didn't know my name was Anne, I suppose I must forgive you," she replied blushing. Then the architect once more claimed their attention.

"As I recall the plan of that building," he chuckled, "it will be a simple matter to cut a door between adjoining apartments in case more space should be required."

A few months later the alteration was made. (Copyright, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Three Hundred Million Bushel Crop in 1915

Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: "Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat crop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions"

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre
Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre
Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. For complete information as to best locations for settlement, reduced railroad rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, or

Emerson Gearless Hay Loader

Emerson Gearless Hay Loader

No Gears, Chains or Sprockets, and a Long, Slow Motion Stroke
Only One Man With The Emerson Loader

Only hay growers who have experienced the annoyance of attempting to use the cylinder type loader with the continued breakage of chains, raddles and slats can appreciate the advantage of the gearless loader.

This push bar loader not only takes the hay from either swath or windrow and deposits same on the wagon with less breakage than the cylinder loader but will force the hay back on the load and is an effective and practical one man machine.

Every part of this machine is made of first class material, sufficiently strong in design to withstand breakage, the purpose being to provide the hay grower with an effective means of putting his hay crop on the wagon with the least time and expense.

18-inch Clearance at the top of the loader makes it almost impossible to choke the machine down in heavy hay.

Simplicity is the keynote of the EMERSON GEARLESS LOADER; there are no cogs to wear, no gears to strip, no springs to weaken, no webs to crawl, no ropes to ravel, and no Chains to Break or slip. Time is valuable during the hay season, and repairs mean DELAY AND EXPENSE.

The bottom of the loader can be raised or lowered, to suit long or short stubble.

The EMERSON GEARLESS has given good satisfaction in the handling of alfalfa and clover, since it loads the hay gently and does not jar off the leaves.

The 30 INCH STROKE gives the rake bars a long easy range, gathers up the hay from the SWATH OR WINDROW in such a manner as not to WAD, ROLL, TWIST OR BREAK THE HEADS or even jar the leaves from alfalfa or clover. It comes the nearest to duplicating the hand rake of the old days of anything on the market.

We have this loader set up on our floor and would be glad to show it to you before you buy.

God Bless Our Dad

We happened into a home the other night, and over the parlor door saw the legend worked in letters of red, "What is Home Without a Mother?" Across the room was another brief, "God Bless our Home."

Now what's the matter with "God Bless our Dad!" He gets up early, lights the fire, boils an egg, and wipes the dew off the lawn with his boots while many a mother is sleeping. He makes the weekly hand out to the butcher, the milkman and the baker, and his little pile is sadly demolished before he has been home an hour.

If there is a noise in the night, Dad is kicked in the back and made to go down stairs and find the burglar and kill him. Mother darns the socks, but Dad bought them in the first place, and the needles and the yarn afterward. Mother does up the fruit; Dad bought it all, and jars and sugar cost like mischief.

Dad buys the chicken for Sunday dinners serves them himself and draws the neck from the ruins after everybody else is served. "What is Home Without a Mother?" yes, that is all right, but "What is Home Without a Father?" Ten chances to one it is a boarding house; father is under a slab, and the landlady is a widow. Dad, here's to you! You've got your faults, you may have lots of them, but you are all right and we will miss you when you are gone.

The Hospital

There are a large number of persons literally afraid of a hospital and regard it a disgrace to be sent to one. Yet in fact the hospital is one of the most helpful and needed institutions of civilization and the natural place of resort in a severe illness, or in case an operation is to be performed. A hospital is equipped so that care and skilled attention can be given far better than in one's own home. Trained nurses and experienced physicians know better what we need in our sickness and pain than the loved ones of our family. The old, unreasonable fear of the hospital is a relic of the days when limbs were sawed off without anesthetics amid unpleasant surroundings. All that is changed and the hospital should be welcomed as an institution of mercy, a home of rest and cure.
