WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first.
We have never known of its failing.
If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year.
Regular size 75 cents. T. M. Smith & Co.

DARNING NEEDLE IN LEG.

Case of Delaware Youngster Puzzles the Physicians.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips, who reside near Lewis, Del., couldn't imagine what was the matter with 18-month-old Baby Phillips, who suddenly changed from a little angel to a howling, maddened youngster, filled with rage at every one.

All efforts to quiet the baby were in vain until one day Mamma Phillips discovered the baby had a large lump on the leg near the knee. A lusty yell followed the slightest touch and a physician was summoned.

When the doctor came he drew a darning needle three inches long out of the youthful Phillips' leg and baby gave a sigh of great relief. Peace has been restored in the household, but every one wonders where tootsy wootsy got the needle into his system.

SACRED ALTAR OF INDIANS.

Peculiar Memorial Now in Cemetery at Utica.

A legend of the Oneida Indians, the noblest of the nations forming the Iroquois confederacy, has been handed down from generation to generation, and from camp-fire to hut, and tells of the Great Spirit, who, pleased with the conduct of the The Sacred Stone, two brothers who originated the tribe, sent to them a stone of very peculiar pattern. They were told that this was their altar, and that they should hold their feasts and councils around it.

That it would, unassisted, follow them forever, and that from it they would derive their name. According to the beautiful legend that is how they came to be called "The People of the Upright Stone."

At the time of the advent of the "pale-face," the sacred altar rested in a grove of butternut trees overlooking the Stockbridge valley. When the tribal relations were dissolved, the last plea of the chief heard, and the campfire extinguished, it still occupied its silent and almost unnoticed site.

Shortly after, however, the prophecy that it would follow the tribe in all its wanderings was fulfilled. When Uncle Sam removed the survivors of the nation to Green Bay the stone was raised with Indian ceremony and pomp and deposited in Forest Hill cemetery, Utica, in 1849. Now, the only existing memorial of a once mighty nation, "whose origin no human tongue can boast," it must remain there under a compact for all time. The one-time altar is said to be an immense granite boulder, weighing nearly four tons. The Four Track News prints a pleasing article in connection with this standing monument to the Oneidas.

A Queer Rock.

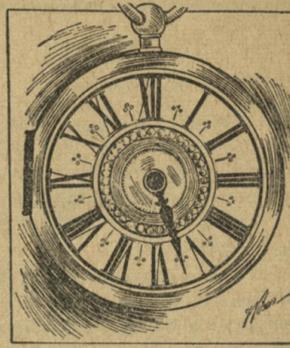

Near Fobane Nek, on the border of the Orange River Colony, in Basutoland, there is a natural wonder in the shape of a mushroom rock.

The Mushroom Rock, shape of the mushroom rock, which stands about 100 feet high, and looks as if a push would topple it down. No doubt this curious stone marks a higher level of the ground in some former epoch. Wind and water have worn away the old land, and left the mushroom rock to tell the tale. The hardest month at the top has kept the pillar below from decay.

HAS KING CHARLES' WATCH.

Timepiece of Unfortunate Monarch Owned in Philadelphia. After his victory over Charles II. Oliver Cromwell wrote exultantly to England's parliament telling how the enemy was beaten from hedge to hedge till he was finally driven into Worcester. There were 7,000 prisoners among the spoils of that fight. The royal carriage in which the king had been carried was there, too, and in that handsome carriage was a royal carriage watch, which also fell into the hands of the victorious Cromwell. After all these years, and through many and varying vicissitudes of fortune, this royal watch has finally found its way to Philadelphia, remaining in the possession of a loyal subject of the king of England, Edward V., who is living in the Quaker city. This timepiece of royalty, which still ticks after a career of 262 years, was made in 1640 for King Charles I. by the royal watchmaker of that time.

KING CHARLES I'S WATCH

King Charles I. was beheaded two years before his son Charles II. was defeated on and escaped from the field of Worcester. It is of the oldest watchmaking pattern, being made entirely by hand, and costing in its day a good round sum of money. The case is of solid silver, ornamented in beautiful pierced filigree work, and there is an outer case of copper with a handsome leather cover, silver studded. The royal watch runs thirty-six hours with one winding. Only one hand is used in designating the time.

There is a silver bell inclosed within the silver case, on which the hours are struck. There is also an alarm attachment. The watch is four and one-half inches in diameter, and one and a half inches thick.

ELEVATOR FOR PET CAT.

New York Woman Who Thought Out a Clever Scheme.

The accompanying illustration shows an ingenious device by which Miss Henrietta Cone of 35 West Twenty-second street, New York, makes it possible for her pet cat, "Raggles," to take her daily promenade de luxe. Miss Cone is very fond of Raggles, whom she found on a Long Branch steamer, and she was much worried over the opportunity offered for exercise in a six-story flat.

The little idea demonstrated in the picture came to her after a fierce mental struggle, and she is very proud of the invention. She calls it a "cat hoist." Unfortunately, she neglected to patent the device, and the idea is now being utilized by a group of back-hill roomers on the north side of the Chicago river.

Their object differs somewhat from the laudable purpose of Miss Cone, inasmuch as they use the scheme for smuggling beer into the house without the knowledge of the over-particular landlady. They term their labor and trouble-saver a "courage raiser." They are also proud of the idea, and never tire of working it for casual visitors.

Compact.

There aren't many things more compact than a golf ball. The picture shows the relative size of the ball and the rubber filling before it is compacted.

The Travelers' Tree.

One of the most curious, useful and beautiful palm trees found in dark and mysterious Madagascar is known as the "travelers' tree," or Ravenada Madagascariensis, as the scientists, with their renowned love of simple terms, love to call it. The stem resembles that of the plantain tree, and the leaves spread in a semicircle like an expanded fan. The lower leaves drop off as the stem grows, and in an old tree the lowest leaves of the fan are often as high as thirty feet from the ground. This palm tree receives its popular name from the fact that stores of pure and frequently cool water are found in the large cuplike sheaths of the stalks, which the traveler may readily secure by tapping the sheaths at the base.

The Chinese and Stone Floor.

In China the dining rooms are usually floored with tiles or stone slabs. This is because the household animals (dogs and cats, are allowed to remain in the room at meal time to receive whatever food the diners do not wish

No Need for Reform.

He's made no resolutions, for his morals are all right. He looks not on the wine when it is red or brown or white. He never goes to any clubs or stays out late at night. For poker, euchre, whist, or bridge he doesn't care a mite. He never smokes a big cigar, a pipe, or cigarette. Tobacco holds no sweet and soothing charms for him as yet. He doesn't go to races, flirt with maidens bold and gay. And so he didn't need to turn a new leaf New Year's day. He is a charming fellow, persevering, shy and coy. My bouncing, dimpled, rosy, smiling, little baby boy.

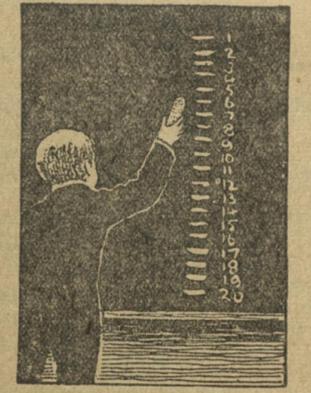

Five Rubs All You Are Allowed.

A simple but amusing little trick is to rub out twenty marks in five rubs, stopping every time on an odd number.

This little diversion is particularly suited to recess time at school, where the blackboard is handy, but it may also be done on a slate. First, you make a row of marks, one under the other, and number them, as shown in the accompanying picture. Then you challenge those who are watching you to do the rubbing as has been said, letting an odd number be the last one every time, five rubs to complete the task.

Now, unless you have somebody in the company who is wide awake and quick witted, they will all begin to calculate how in the world they can begin at the top and succeed in doing what you have proposed. Some boy, perhaps will take up the eraser, and confidently rub out the first marks, stopping on five, for that is an odd number, he will say, and therefore all right. Then he will begin to get puzzled for the next five marks will take him to ten, which is not an odd number, and he will try to find a way out of the difficulty.

Perhaps he may give it up in despair, and then some one else will try it, only to give it up likewise. But see how simple it is! No one of the company has thought of beginning to rub at the bottom, instead of

at the top. So when you begin there and rub from mark 20 to mark 17, and then go on and rub from 16 to 13, from 12 to 9, from 8 to 5, and from 4 to 1, the onlookers will feel as if they had been sold at a very low price.

Various Kinds of Pies.

What pies are very conducive to sleepiness? Poppies. What pies were considered very annoying in olden times? Harpies. What pies do school boys usually dislike? Copies. What pies consider themselves quite swell? Chappies. What pies might bite you? Puppies. What pies might we sit under? Canopies. What pies are noisy and mischievous? Magpies. What pies prance around the water? Kelpies. What pies are placed upon the table but never eaten? Nappies.

A reader has kindly awarded the "Twelve Rings Puzzle," which, he says, can be guaranteed to mystify the average person for a good quarter of an hour. The problem is: How can the above square be divided into four equal parts of similar shape, so that each part shall contain three of the rings? The solution shall appear on this page next week.

Having Fun With Electricity.

On a dry day rub with a brush or with the hand a thin piece of paper; it will become electrified in a short time and adhere to your hands, your face and your coat as if it had on it, and you will not be able to get rid of it.

Electrify in the same manner a thick piece of paper, a postal card for example, and you will see that as with sealing wax, glass, sulphur or resin this card can attract light bodies (small pieces of cork, etc.). Balance a cane on the back of a chair and tell any one in the audience that you will make it fall without touching it, blowing on it or moving the chair.

All you need to do is to dry the card well before the fire, rub it vigorously with your sleeve and put it close to one end of the cane, which will follow it as iron follows a magnet until, having lost its equilibrium, the cane will fall to the floor.

An Amusing Pastime.

A little pastime—for it can hardly be called a trick—may be performed with five wooden toothpicks, and will afford plenty of amusement to the little folks, and, perhaps, not least so because the element of fire is involved in its performance. Fasten five toothpicks together as in the accompanying diagram. It will be found that they then form a framework which may be handled without its falling apart. Care should be taken in making this framework not to break the toothpicks, for the success of the thing depends on its elasticity.

Then make the figure of a little man out of cork or any other light material, and place him on one of the corners of the framework, as, for instance, about where the letter B is shown on the accompanying diagram. Place the framework, with the little man in his proper place, on the rim of an ordinary tumbler and then set fire to the toothpick end C and D. When the fire has burned the toothpicks at their point of intersection there will, of course, be nothing to counteract the force exerted by the rest of the framework and the whole affair will shoot up into the air, the little gentleman being thrown several feet as a result of the terrible catastrophe.

Can Dogs Think?

Dr. Alexander Hill, master of Downing College, Cambridge, England, has been trying to solve experimentally the problem, "Can dogs reason?" An exceptionally intelligent fox terrier was taught to open a box, by lifting the wooden latch of its door with his nose, and whenever onlookers were present he did this regularly. In his absence a hot grilled bone was placed in the box. Arriving on the scene the terrier smelt all around the box, seeming to know that it contained meat, and evidently eager to get it. His previous training, however, was without effect. He seems never to have reasoned. "The way to secure the meat is to lift the latch," and, in fact, he did not raise it. That operation he had performed to win the approbation of human beings; but to do it as an original effort to please himself and gain a purpose of his own did not occur to his canine brain. Dr. Hill invites others to repeat this experiment on animal psychology.

Feathers from a Handkerchief.

To produce feathers from a handkerchief, hand a large cambric or silk handkerchief to the audience, and inform them that it contains feathers; of course they will state that it does not. Express your surprise and ask for the return of this handkerchief, and at once produce the feathers you stated were in the handkerchief, which you do by having previously purchased three or four feathers from some of the military equipment warehouses. Before entering the room to begin your entertainment you take off your coat, then, holding a couple of the feathers in each hand so that they will fall toward the side of the arms, put the coat on again; this is easily done, as the feathers squeeze up to a very small compass. Being thus equipped, after receiving the handkerchief, you throw it over one hand and the cuff of the coat, and with the other hand draw out the feathers from the sleeve; the feather resuming its original bulk entirely misguides the looker-on as to its previous position. One feather produced, the handkerchief is thrown carelessly over the other hand and another brought forth in like manner, which can be repeated three or four times without causing suspicion.

Ask a Teacher to Explain This.

Get a tube of any length, three-sixteenths of an inch in internal diameter, and cut a round piece of cardboard 2 1/4 inches in diameter. Make a hole in the center of the cardboard and insert one end of the tube in it, but let the end of the tube just come to the other side of the cardboard and not protrude beyond it.

Now cut a round piece of paper the same size as the cardboard, place it on the cardboard and the other end of the tube in your mouth, and try to blow the paper off the cardboard. You may safely offer a handsome reward to any one who will succeed in doing it. Tell your teacher about it, and ask him or her to explain it to you.

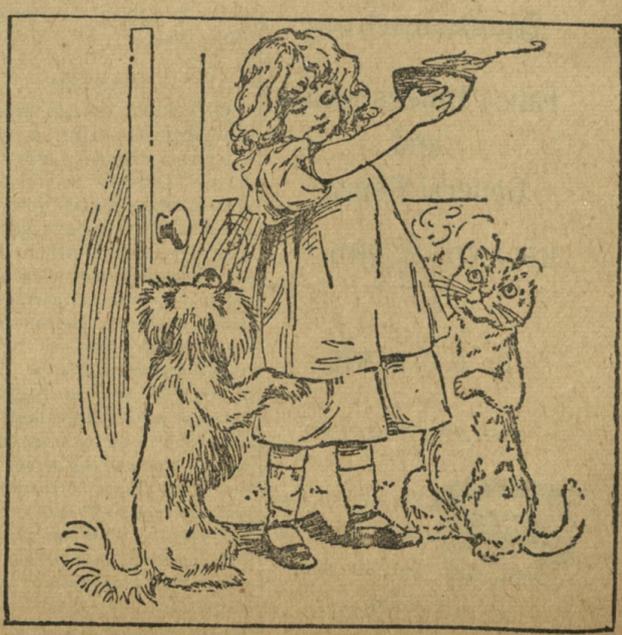

Making Wax Flowers.

Drops of wax falling from a lighted candle on cold water assume the form of little cups which closely resemble lilies of the valley. If each cup as it floats is pierced in the center by a thin wire, pushed to the other end of the wire, and all the little wires attached to a stouter one with the smallest flowers at one end, you have a fair imitation of a flowering stalk of the lily of the valley, which has a realistic effect when put in a vase with pointed leaves of green paper.

Can You Find Helen's Other Dog?

TESTED BY TIME.

Mrs. Robert Broderick, who resides at 1915 Virginia st., in San Antonio, Tex., tells an experience that will interest every reader; it shows as well that Doan's cures are lasting cures.

She says: "Up to the early part of the year 1902 I had been a sufferer from kidney troubles for many years. The pain in my back became worse and worse until it was a daily burden that interfered with every duty. I was much afflicted with headaches and dizzy spells and was unable to rest well nights. In May, 1902, after using Doan's Kidney Pills I made a statement for publication, declaring that they had entirely relieved me of the pain in my back. I have since then had a year's time in which to study the effects of the medicine, and while I have had slight touches of the trouble since, the use of the pills has always driven away all signs of the disorder and I have become convinced of the fact that the first treatment was practically permanent in its effects, and I know that a box of Doan's Kidney Pills kept on hand are a sufficient guarantee against any suffering from the kidneys or back. I should advise every sufferer to take Doan's Kidney Pills and I know that they will be surprised and pleased with the result."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Broderick will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

HORTICULTURE

Stocks for Apple Trees.

In a discussion on apple-tree stocks at an Illinois convention, H. Augustin said: The American nurserymen went to France for seed because they could get more vigorous, stronger and better seed from the wild apple of France than they could anywhere else, and because the apple seeds from our mills here were not satisfactory in any way. I think every nurseryman here will bear me out in that statement. You take a Belleflower apple, and take a dozen seeds from it, and you have a dozen varieties of apples. Why? Because it has been pollinated by something else, and that something else you can not tell how hardy or how weak it is. It may be that one of those seeds will produce a tree that is hardier than anything that we have got in our orchard, and it may be that the other seed will be weaker than anything we have got. Now, then, let us go to work and take that theory, and let us select the seeds from the best specimens of apples, and the best varieties of apples, we will say. Even if we were going to follow that plan, where would we get the apples from. If all the first-class apples had been taken and cut to pieces that have been grown in the state of Illinois and the state of Missouri together this year, I do not believe that there would have been enough seed even for one single nurseryman who is in the seedling business to grow his plants. I know of men that are planting 100 bushels of apple seed that they shipped from France, and I do not believe that all the apples in the state of Missouri and state of Illinois together—the first-class apples—would produce that. I want to say here that the nurserymen are planting the very best seed that can be found, and I do not suppose there is a bushel planted now that is taken from the cider mills. We do not want that seed; it is not vigorous enough, it does not sprout well enough; it has not got strength to come up through the ground. The seed that is being planted now is either the seed from France, from the wild apple that is grown on the mountains and hills and ground up, from which they make the national drink, and the seeds are washed out and in perfect condition and sent to this country, and it makes a strong seed propagated from its own kind. Or else we get the seeds from the mountains of Vermont, along those hills where the wild apples are growing; I would just as leave have them as from France. And I believe I am correct in the statement that the seed grown from the Vermont seedlings, or grown from the French seedlings, is decidedly better and decidedly stronger and decidedly harder than any seed we can select from the best varieties of apples that we have, from the very fact that they are pollinated from their own kind; and our seeds that we gather here might be pollinated from the very weakest and diseased kinds.

Big Fruit on Young Wood.

From the writings of Prof. Goff we take the following: "Now, the question is, how much can we do and how can we do it to regulate the size of the fruit? I think that the principle that we need to observe is this, that large fruits will grow on young fruit spurs and they will not grow elsewhere. If we have young fruit spurs, we will have large fruit, provided, of course, that we have a vigorous growth, and generally speaking, the younger the fruit spur the finer will be the fruit. If this is true, then we must so prune our trees as to have young fruit spurs rather than old ones. You all know that a Duchess tree that is twenty years old is just one mass of fruit spurs, and sometimes these will branch like a deer's horn. If we could in some way prune our trees that we could have young fruit spurs instead of old ones, we could grow fruit just as well on a Duchess twenty years old as one of six or seven I believe. Then the next question is, how shall we do it? I do not claim to have answered this question fully, but I think that one secret is this: we must—with the oldest fruit spurs, that is, one step in doing, that is—we must thin our fruit; then we must prune our trees in such a way that we shall grow some strong new shoots. In other words, we must adopt something like a renewal system, such as we use in the grape. I think that we can gain a great deal by pruning our trees rather strongly, so as to start a new growth. I know there is danger of starting too much new growth, but I believe that we should aim to grow up two or three strong sprouts every year, with the view that they will come in pretty soon and take the place of some old and feeble branch that has done its work and that is no longer able to nourish its fruit so that the fruit will grow large.

With some farmers the idea is still prevalent that when a mare has become useless for any other purpose, having become old, or broken down by work, sprained, spavined or perhaps diseased, she will do well enough for raising colts. How good results can be expected from such stock is beyond comprehension. Good presentors only can produce good offspring.

A thing of beauty may remain a joy forever if you let the other fellow marry her.

MEANT TO BE PREPARED.

How Paul du Chailly Joked in the Face of Death.

The late Paul du Chailly was a man of indomitable bravery. Nothing perturbed him. In the most desperate crises his air was calm and somewhat humorous. One of the veteran conductors of the Pennsylvania railroad said of him on the announcement of his death:

"Mr. du Chailly was a man whom you couldn't frighten. Danger seemed to enliven him. I'll never forget a ride he once took with me. He sat in the last car of the train, and we came near having a rear-end collision. Mr. du Chailly could see the other train approaching us—could see that a collision was pretty near inevitable. He said to me as I took my stand beside him:

"Conductor, have you got a piece of chalk?"

"What on earth, I asked, 'do you want with a piece of chalk now?'"

"Why, it looks," he answered, 'as if our legs and arms would be flying about in a little while, and I think it would be a good thing to mark them, so that we may identify them later.'"

Saved His Life.

Whitehall, Ill., June 8th.—Mr. Lon Manley had Bright's Disease and after his home doctor had treated him for some time he finally told him that he could do nothing more for him and that he would surely die.

A friend who had heard of what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done in cases of Kidney Trouble, advised Mr. Manley to try a treatment of this remedy.

He did so and everyone was surprised and delighted to see an improvement in a very short time. This improvement gradually kept on as the treatment proceeded, till now Mr. Manley is well. He says:

"The doctor said he had done all he could for me. He gave me up. A friend advised me to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and in a few weeks I was nearly all right again.

"I am not dead, and can truthfully say that I feel better to-day than I have for years. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a wonderful remedy and I will always praise them and recommend them to everyone suffering as I did."

Mr. Manley's recovery has caused a profound sensation, as no one ever thought he would recover.

Women's Nerves

Give Warning of Approach of More Serious Trouble.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability, bordering upon hysteria? Are your spirits easily affected so that one minute you laugh, and the next fall into convulsive weeping?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the ovaries, and especially between the shoulders; sometimes loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia, and almost continually cross and snappy, with a tendency to cry at the least provocation?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Undoubtedly you do not know it, but in nine cases out of ten this is caused by some uterine disorder, and the nerves centering in and about the organs which make you a woman influence your entire nervous system. Something must be done at once to restore their natural condition or you will be prostrated for weeks and months perhaps, and suffer untold misery.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for this purpose than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women have written us so.

How Mrs. Holland, of Philadelphia, suffered among the finest physicians in the country, none of whom could help her—finally cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I was a constant sufferer from extreme nervousness, indigestion, and dizziness. Menstruation was irregular, had backache and a feeling of great lassitude and weakness. I was so bad that I was not able to do my own work or go far in the street. I could not sleep nights.

"I tried several splendid doctors, but they gave me no relief. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I soon began to feel better, and was able to go out and not feel as if I would fall at every step. I continued to take the medicine until cured.

"I cannot say enough in behalf of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and heartily recommend all suffering women to try it and find the relief I did."—Mrs. FLORENCE HOLLAND, 622 S. Clifton St., Philadelphia, Pa. (Jan. 6, 1902.)

Another case of severe female trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after the doctors had failed.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was in poor health for several years. I had female trouble and was not able to do my housework alone. I felt tired, very nervous, and could not sleep. I doctored with several doctors. They doctored me for my stomach, but did not relieve me. I read in your book about your medicine, and thought I would try it. I did so, and am now cured and able to do my work alone, and feel good. I was always very poor, but now weigh one hundred and fifty pounds.

"I thank you for the relief I have obtained, and I hope that every woman troubled with female weakness will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I have recommended it to many of my friends."—Mrs. MARIA BOWERS, Millersville, Ohio. (Aug. 15, 1901.)

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all of the virtues of this medicine?

How shall the fact that it will help them be made plain?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, and sick, and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

Sick Headache

is the result of arrested physiology of the stomach, liver or bowels, and is one of the first symptoms of constipation. Those who suffer with sick headache frequently resort to the use of headache powders, irritating cathartics, which it is true do relieve headache by dulling the sensations of the sympathetic nerves, but such medicines never remove the cause, and to be candid, are really dangerous, having been known to occur directly from their use.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin (A Laxative)

taken as directed when there is no headache will prevent it and put the organs of digestion in such a perfect condition as to forestall the suffering which attends this common and distressing affection.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a "corrective laxative" and not a "cathartic laxative." Throw away headache powders, pills and irritating purgatives. Buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today. It is pleasant to take and sure in effect.

NO COMBINE.

Cincinnati, July 20.—The convention of flint glass workers and green bottle blowers today rejected each other's plans for consolidation, and the conference committee continued its sessions with another effort of compromise. The flint glass delegates insisted on amalgamation, and this was rejected by the bottle blowers. The bottle blowers favored such affiliation as would include the association of windowglass workers, but this was rejected by the convention of flint glass workers. All proposition for amalgamation or alliances had been declared off in the afternoon when the flint glassworkers adjourned to meet next year at Marietta, Ohio, and President Rowe and others left for Star Island, Mich., for a conference with the manufacturers.

ENFORCING A DOG LAW.

Marshal Jeff Miller, of Matthews, is enforcing an ordinance against unmuzzled dogs. Unless a dog is muzzled, tied or accompanied by his master, he is executed with dispatch by the officer. Each morning and evening Marshal Miller takes down his rifle, loads it with buckshot, and goes forth watching for dogs which run on the streets in open violation of the ordinance recently passed by the town council. The ordinance was adopted June 29, just fifteen days ago, and during that time there have been fifteen dogs slaughtered.—H. C. News.

ABOUT ICE CREAM.

Located a short distance south of Upland is the Lake Branch dairy farm and dotted over the sunny hillsides may be seen many healthy, well kept cows leisurely picking over these elegant pasture lands. The attendants about this dairy farm spare no efforts to give these animals the proper care and their product is carefully handled in a way to keep it pure and sweet.

No "embalming fluid" of any description is used at this place but the most improved scientific machines for the correct method of taking care of the milk is used by competent manipulators. The separator and the aerator each do their part and the milk is brought to town within an hour or two and distributed to many customers. Among the wholesale customers of this dairy is T. B. & H. Lyon proprietors of the Upland Pharmacy who are manufacturers of ice cream in large quantities. The product of the dairy, pure and sweet, is converted into a delicious and wholesome grade of ice cream within five hours of the time it is extracted from the cow, guaranteeing the freshness and quality of the cream. This cream is on the market daily at the Pharmacy and its excellence is attested by all good judges. Parties wishing cream for picnics or other occasions should leave their order. A large freezer has just been added to their equipment. On observation they have for their customers the very best people of the community.

EIGHTY QUARTS

Of Nitroglycerin Mysteriously Explodes.

Eighty quarts of nitroglycerin was mysteriously exploded within 1000 feet of several persons on the farm of Gus Anderson Tuesday. Sixty quarts of nitroglycerin were also within 1000 feet of the explosion and it was not discharged. The Huntington company was having a well shot and the 80 quarts were exploded at the bottom of the well while the shooters were at work putting in 60 quarts more. Much to their satisfaction they were not letting down a bail when the explosion occurred.

PROPOSED ORDINANCE.

An ordinance was before the board of town trustees Monday night which the board was asked to pass prohibiting loafing or congregating on any bridge in Upland. The board took no action on the matter however. The ordinance provided for a fine of not more than ten dollars for its violation. There seems to be considerable demand (especially among the ladies) for the passage of such an ordinance.

HAPPY HOOLIGAN.

Fred Brogneaux and Camile Rosseaux have been camping along the river on S. B. Penrods place and they were being careful not to disturb any thing about his premises and when some intruders from Hartford City came on the farm and drove over the corn breaking it down they like "Happy Hooligan" rushed and told Mr. Penrod of it. They were rewarded with a notice to vacate the diggins at once. They moved, set up house keeping and got another notice to move on. Does it pay to be a Happy Hooligan.
