The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Enoch Pierson Found Guilty

Enoch Pierson, of Van Buren, well known and well-to-do citizen was convicted of the charge of conspiring to burn his own store at Ridgeville, in the Randolph circuit at Winchester Monday, after a hotly contested trial lasting two weeks. John Burns, of Hartford City, associated with Judge Paulus, of Marion, were the convicted man's attorneys.

The jury deliberated twenty-four hours before reaching a verdict. The conviction carries with it a sentence of from two to twenty-one years in state's prison. Pierson's attorneys made a motion for a new trial and if this be denied him December 24 when the matter will be decided, he will appeal to the supreme court, he announced. Pierson is free under bond of $10,000.

The case was one of the most bitterly fought in the history of the Randolph county court, and each side had a large array of witnesses. The state's contention was that Pierson conspired with Fred Drake, of Marion; Elisha Roberts, of Van Buren, and Calvin Lincoln, of Keystone, to have the Ridgeville store destroyed by fire in order to collect the insurance. Soon after the charge was made Drake committed suicide. Various witnesses testified that the stock of goods, which was owned by Pierson, was worth from $15,000 to $20,000. The building was owned by Henry Wise.

Pierson is about forty-five years old, and has a brother and sister living in this city. At one time he taught school in this county and was located at Roll, and afterwards conducted stores at Farrville and Van Buren. He has always borne a good reputation, and is a well known business man with many acquaintances in this part of the state. - Hartford City News.

Pay $15 For Forty Pounds of Rye Flour, $3.50 For Peck of Potatoes

The following letter received from Abraham Smilakoff, father of El Smilack, of this city, shows that starvation stalked abroad in Russia as early as September, and conditions have grown worse since the letter was written:

Hislavitchi, Russia, Sept. 13, 1917. Dear Son, Daughter and Grandchildren: Your letter and the $150 received, and I thank you very much, and wish you happiness and prosperity for the coming year.

I will not describe to you the kind of lives we are leading, for I could not do so nor could any one else, so terrible has life in Russia become. People are starving from cold and falling dead in the streets.

The money you sent me has been used to the best advantage. I have divided it for necessities to keep me and your step-mother from sharing the same fate as others this coming winter. I bought 40 pounds of rye flour for $15 and could hardly get it at that price. I also bought a peck of potatoes for $3.50. I did not buy wheat bread. I have not tasted it since Easter, and the price is so high that it would be extravagance on my part to buy it. I would like to have sugar, but I see I can not afford it, as I must conserve the money you send me. The price of sugar is $3.60 per pound. Meat is selling for $1.00 a pound, and I have not eaten any meat for six months. Wood is 10 cents a stick, sixteen inches in length. Everything else you buy is in proportion.

I had $100 left after buying some of the necessities and I bought me a pair of boots. These cost $20. I had to have them as the ones I bought with the money you sent me some time ago are worn out and would not keep me warm. Now winter is coming and I must have a new pair. I had to get your step-mother's shoes half soled and that cost $4 for each shoe.

I can not dwell, my son, on the horrors here.

Your loving father and grandfater, Abraham Smilakoff.

P. S. Dear Son: I will ask again if there is not something your government can do for us. We need clothes and food. And sugar is badly needed. I find it hard to do without it altogether. - Hartford City News.

Not Bread Alone.

A Japanese newspaper, in emphasizing the gravity of the responsibility resting on Japan and America on account of the fact that the world activity is shifting from the Atlantic to the Pacific, says that these two great nations are bound to exchange more and more of their products and declares that they must come to agree on high principles. "Man cannot live by bread alone," quotes the editor—which is perfectly true; but, ash the old ditty remarked, observes an exchange. "It keeps er man hustlin' fo' a little piece o' meat."

Emotion Mistaken for Wisdom in a Large Proportion of Legislation

By U. S. Senator George Sutherland, Former President of the American Bar Association

If I were asked to name the characteristic which more than any other distinguishes our present-day political institutions, I am not sure that I should not answer, "The passion for making laws." There are 48 small or moderate-sized legislative bodies in the United States engaged a good deal of the time, and one very large national legislature working overtime at this amiable occupation, their habitual output being not far from fifteen thousand statutes each year. The prevailing obsession seems to be that statutes, like the crops, enrich the country in proportion to their volume.

Unfortunately for this notion, however, the average legislator does not always know what he is sowing and the harvest which frequently results is made up of strange and unexpected plants whose appearance is as astonishing to the legislator as it is disconcerting to his constituents.

This situation, I am bound to say, is not wholly unrelated to a more or less prevalent superstition entertained by the electorate that previous training in legislative affairs is a superfluous adjunct of the legislative mind, which should enter upon its task with the sweet inexperience of a bride coming to the altar. As rotation in crops—if I may return to the agriculture figure—improves the soil, so rotation in office is supposed to improve the government. The comparison, however, is illusory since the legislator resembles the farmer who cultivates the crops rather than the crops themselves, and previous experience, even of the most thorough character, on the part of the farmer has never hitherto been supposed to destroy his availability for continued service.

I think it was the late Mr. Carlyle, who is reported to have made the rather cynical observation that the only acts of parliament which were entitled to commendation were those by which previous acts of parliament were repealed. I am not prepared to go quite that far, though I am prepared to say that in my judgment an extraordinarily large proportion of the statutes which have been passed from time to time in our various legislative bodies might be repealed without the slightest detriment to the general welfare.

The trouble with much of our legislation is that the legislator has mistaken emotion for wisdom, impulse for knowledge, and good intention for sound judgment. "He means well" is a sweet and wholesome thing in the field of ethics. It may be of small consequence, or of no consequence at all, in the domain of law. "He means well" may save the legislator from the afflictions of an accusing conscience, but it does not protect the community from the affliction of mischievous and meddling statutes.

Unselfish Co-operation and not Fault Finding Will Win War for America

By REPRESENTATIVE PAT HARRISON of Mississippi

Co-operation, not fault-finding, is now the duty of Americans.

The president of the United States is in this time of war charged with the gravest and most responsible duties. In the administration of new and untried laws and the operation of the greatly increased military and naval forces of the country, together with all the vast number of additional matters rendered necessary by the war, no doubt mistakes will be made. It would be a miracle if they were not. But the critic, especially if he be a leader of men whose duty it is to play an important part in molding public opinion—the critic and the fault finder whose only activities are criticizing and fault-finding with those who are administering the law and carrying on the numerous vast operations incident to war—is not a truly good soldier or a good leader or a loyal American.

The disintegration of Russia, which has been so costly to the entente allied cause, and which will materially delay the successful termination of the war, should be a striking lesson to those Americans who are inclined to criticize and find fault with those whose duties and functions are to carry the war to a successful and victorious end.

Great and large powers necessarily must be conferred upon the executive of the nation at this time. The delegation of such powers in ordinary times would not be dreamed of. But promptness and efficiency are imperative now and to obtain the highest efficiency, to strike with the power and might of the nation, we must delegate for the time unusual authority to the executive head.

America's course in this war is of tremendous importance to the peace and safety and freedom of the world. Never in our history were unselfish co-operation and patriotic unity and devotion to duty so much needed. All true Americans will work together for the country's good, which means now all humanity's good. Those who do not are not true Americans.

American People Cannot Consider Any Peace Proposed by Prussia

By STEPHEN S. WISE, Rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York

We cannot and will not consider peace at the instance of Prussia or of any witting or unwitting agents of Prussia.

The only peace the American people at any time will be prepared to consider is a peace which must be disastrous to every hope of Prussia's rulers or a peace made over their heads and perhaps their bodies with the German people, returned to reason and humaneness after the dethronement of the war-mad lords, who have been suffered to defile and to damn the whole German people.

The president not merely willed to keep us out of war but throughout nearly three years of irritation and insult, of contumely and outrage, he achieved the miracle of keeping us out of the war. Why did the president lead us into war? Because he saw that we were not so much challenged to war as to defend the elementary sanctities of life in the only terms intelligible to that band of militarists who had brought hurt to half the world and shame unutterable to their dumbly trusting peoples.

Groups other than the uncompromising pacifists are to be found in the leadership of the people's council, and these, mindful of the seriousness of my charge, I accuse of readiness to accept an outcome of the war, which would not bring peace to men but seal the dominance of the sword in the world.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

INDICTMENT AGAINST ALCOHOL

"The medical profession has been charged with being in favor of the use of alcoholic beverages," says Dr. W. A. Evans, former head of the health department of Chicago. "The charge cannot be sustained. Alcohol for internal use rarely is prescribed by physicians except when such prescribing is done for the purpose of evading some law.

"Theoretically, alcohol is both a medicine and a food. So far as all practical purposes are concerned, it is neither a medicine nor a food. Discussing it as a medicine, alcohol belongs in a group in which there are tropane, aconite, epinephrin and extracts of thyroid. These medicines are so powerful that they are but rarely used.

"Physicians know so little about the mechanism of the sympathetic nervous system, on which most of the effects of these remedies are exerted, that none of them is liable to be generally used within the next few years. In the meanwhile, the old-time uses of alcohol for medicinal purposes have either been discontinued or else they are condemned by the medical profession.

"Alcohol once was used for consumption. It is not used as a cure for this disease now. It once was used as a remedy for blood poisoning—septicæmia and pyæmia. It now is known that its use lessens the chance of recovery from these diseases. It once was used as a cure for colds and bronchitis and as a preventive of pneumonia. It now is known that it makes colds worse and it increases the chance of pneumonia.

"It formerly was used as a cure for snake bite. It is not so used now. It decreases the bodily resistance to snake bite. The only good it ever did was to destroy the awful fear which sometimes shocks persons who have been bitten, and in that way indirectly contributed to cure.

"Alcohol formerly was used for shock on the theory that it was a stimulant. It is not a stimulant. It prevents fear and may in that way do good; otherwise it does harm. Its use in shock is being discontinued. Ammonia and coffee are taking its place.

"It is widely used for the discomforts of natural bodily functions. Physicians condemn its use for this purpose as being unscientific and harmful. There is a notion that gin is good for the kidneys. There is nothing worse for the kidneys than gin.

"Alcohol is disappearing from first-aid cabinets, physicians' satchels and hospitals. Within a few years it will disappear from that part of drug stores devoted to the filling of prescriptions."

WHY NOT PROHIBIT WATER?

A letter clipped from one of the New York morning papers has been sent us for publication. The writer urges that water should be prohibited as it causes the deaths of thousands of people by engendering typhoid and other diseases. This reasoning is typical of much that emanates from the liquor traffic. Water does not cause disease. It has never poisoned any man. It is only when some poison like typhoid pollutes the water that there is danger. The remedy is to prohibit or do away with the poison, not the water. And this, says Temperance, is precisely what modern sanitary science is trying to do. We no longer confine our efforts to the saving of the victims of typhoid, we seek to prohibit or destroy the cause. The efforts of temperance people to do away with alcohol as a beverage is perfectly logical because alcohol is a poisonous drug. If alcohol were as harmless as water only lunatics would advocate its prohibition.

BEER MUST GO.

In not one of the 26 dry states, nor in the District of Columbia, Alaska or Porto Rico, does the prohibition law exempt beer. Beer is not exempt in the army and navy prohibition regulations, nor in any territory under federal prohibition. In Oregon, Washington, Colorado and Arizona the brewers, with millions of dollars behind them, tried to force a beer amendment upon the people, and in every case were overwhelmingly defeated. These facts and the growing anti-beer sentiment throughout the country should convince the brewers and their backers that any attempt to put a beer and light wine exemption clause in the resolution now before congress for a prohibition amendment to the federal Constitution is doomed to failure. They would better save their money for the transforming of their breweries into food-producing factories.

THE EVILS OF ECHO.

A certain gien in Scotland had the reputation of having a splendid echo. An English gentleman visited the place and asked his guide about the echo. "Just shout 'Two bottle of whisky,'" said the guide. The gentleman did as requested, and after waiting for several minutes he turned to the Scot and said: "But I do not hear any echo." "Maybe no," chuckled the Scot, "but here's the lassie comin' wi' the whisky."—Temperance.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

PARROT TEA ROOM.

"I was the first parrot to come here," said the green parrot who was always called Greenie.

"I came next," said the blue and yellow macaw who was called Yellow Tail. "And I came third," said the blue and red macaw who was called Blue Wings. The other parrots chattered among themselves and tried to remember the order in which they came after the green parrot and the macaws.

"It's one of the greatest honors I know of," said Greenie. "The shop was named after me. They call it the Parrot Tea Room, and I was the only parrot in it at first. They had me sitting in my cage in the window to attract passers-by."

"Why do you call it a shop as well as a tea room?" asked Yellow Tail. "How can it be both things?"

"Yes, how can it?" asked Blue Wings. "It's a tea room, true enough," said Greenie. "The people come to this room to drink tea and eat biscuits with jam. They eat a great deal and they talk a great deal—I'm not sure whether they eat more than they talk, or whether they talk more than they eat. It's hard to know. You see they do so much of both!"

"You do too," said Blue Wings. "To be sure," said Greenie, "but we all do that. I do think it was a good thing though to call this place the Parrot Tea Room, for we're suitable birds to have around an afternoon tea party. We chatter and talk and we like to eat. Those are the things they do at a tea party, you know."

"How wise you are," said Yellow Tail. "But you have not yet told us why you call this place a shop too. Half the time you say it's a tea room and half the time you say it's a shop. And the people do the same thing. We find that we copy them."

"Yes," said the other parrots, "we copy them." Greenie laughed hard at this. "Parrots always copy people," he said, "and I copied these people first. It was not an idea of my own to call this place both a shop and a tea room. But I heard some people calling it by both names—so I did too.

"It was just my nature, I presume. You know, the nature of a parrot."

All the parrots nodded their heads. "They call it a shop," said Greenie, "because they sell cakes and glasses of jams, and rolls and buns here. People buy them and take them home. A shop is a place where they sell things for folks to take home with them—or else to have sent home after them."

"They take home the tea and the cake they eat, don't they?" asked one of the little parrots. All the others laughed. "To be sure they do," said Greenie. "But it's different when they eat the things."

"You mean it's different when they eat them here and when they eat them at home," said the little parrot. "That makes the difference between a tea room and a shop. And this place is both. Yes, it's a very fine place to be in."

"I've always thought it one of the greatest of honors," said Greenie, "to think that a tea room and shop were named after me. They do not call it the 'Parrots' Tea Room,' but the 'Parrot Tea Room.' Just one parrot, and that parrot is myself!"

Greenie swung himself around the bar of his cage and looked at the others.

"It's a great honor, Greenie," they said. They knew they must be polite to Greenie, for he was the special favorite and if he did not like them they would be sent away. They were all treated quite fairly by their mistress, but they knew Greenie was the one she loved best.

They certainly did not want to leave the tea room for they had such good times and it was splendid to have people feed them sugar.

"Well," said Greenie, "the most exciting time in my life was when I saw them painting a parrot on the window. They painted my very picture and then I stood on the bar of my cage in the window and the people began to come in! I was a great attraction. I'm a regular business parrot—I help make money for the mistress. And another thing, they have a parrot made out of wood hanging over the front door, as of course I could not be there, but they want to have something like me in as many places as possible."

May Be So.

Chinese Like Automobiles. American automobiles are rapidly growing popular in China. Their use is limited not by the desire of the wealthy natives to possess them, but by the total lack of roads outside of a few city districts. Many of the wealthy Chinese own several motors, and in Shanghai it is said to be difficult to maintain a taxicab business because the natives charter all the cars. The Chinese have also established several motor driven bus lines. Chinese chauffeurs are said to be the coolest and steadiest drivers in the world, but poor mechanics.

War Behind the Lines.

In the house of commons the statement was made some time ago that it needs a man and a half behind the line to keep one man in the trenches; and that is only at the front. How many men, women and children at home are needed to keep going the man with the rifle and hand grenade we can only conjecture, but if we say ten civilians to every fighting man we shall not exaggerate.—Simon Strunsky in the Yale Review.

OUR BOYS IN FRANCE AND HOME PROTECTION

The men on the firing line represent the pick of our American youth. One in four of our boys at home was sick, rejected because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame.

If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then procure at your nearest drug store Anuric (double strength). This An-uric drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

Step into the drug store and ask for Anuric (50 cents a package) or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg. Anuric, many times more potent than lithia, often eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

"Terrible about the Smith de Puysters, isn't it?" "What's the matter now?" "Oh! they are constantly fighting about which one is the more peaceably inclined."

NEWS OF MARION

Marion, Ind.—"All last winter I suffered from a terrible pain in my back. I felt miserable all over, and could not walk but a short distance. Was unable to work and did not sleep well at night as I was obliged to arise frequently. I learned of Anuric, discovered by Dr. Pierce, and sent for a trial package. This medicine relieved me in a short time of getting up at night, and I have gained considerable. I am better now than I have been for some time, sleep better, have less rheumatism and do quite a lot of work for a woman of my age. I had brick-dust settings in my urine before using 'Anuric,' now there is none. I thank Dr. Pierce very much, for this medicine has done me lots of good.

Christmas Cheer

As Christmas time is drawing near We plan to spread the seasons joys, We think of the changes since last year And most of all, our soldier boys.

The family circle is broken For the boys are not all here But we remember with some token Those to us, who are so dear.

They'll spend X'mas in the camps this year And though they're sad and lone I'll gladden their hearts to receive That box from the folks at home.

There are other boys to think of Who will still be sad and lone While many hearts are gladdened For, they have no folks at home. So lets remember when planning our Christmas feast For our own friends this year And to some who have no folks, at least Write a letter of Christmas cheer.
