Carlyle Rewarded Boy With a Shilling for Using Intelligence.

The following story published in a London periodical can claim more than one point of interest:

"My grandfather," says the writer, "was very friendly with the 'sage of Chelsea,' and I frequently went in with messages or to see him during his visits there. On one occasion I was sent out on an errand for Thomas Carlyle and, being unable to get exactly What was required, I brought the nearest thing to it that I could get. On my return, after telling him I had not got the actual thing I was sent for, but that I had brought instead something else as near to it as possible, Carlyle produced a shilling, which he gave me, as he said: 'Not because I had done as I was told, which was only what I ought to do, but because I had used my intelligence.' On returning home and telling my father about it I was very much disgusted when he told me not to spend the shilling, but to have a hole made in it and keep it, as he said that Carlyle did not give many shillings away and some day I should no doubt prize it. Although rather disgusted at the time, I kept the shilling and it is to-day among my most treasured posses-

The double reason which the stern father gave in advising the boy to keep the shilling will be appreciated by every Carlyle student.

SPREAD OF NEW LANGUAGE.

"Esperanto" Said to Be Capable of Universal Use.

According to reports from Europe the spread of Esperanto, the language invented for universal use, has proved of value to Esperantists. At a recent gathering in London one of the guests brought with him a French gentleman and his wife and a Czech from Bohemia. None of the three could speak a word of English, but Esperanto was found to be a perfectly facile medium for conversation. The Bohemian gentleman had had various amusing experiences while journeying through Europe. He had taken one of the Esperanto journals, marked the names of the secretaries of the various groups in the foreign towns through which he had to pass and so, not knowing anything of the languages, he had traveled through several continental countries, seeing all that was to be seen with the help of various Esperanto friends, and finally arrived in England. He knocked at the door of a London Esperantist, who came down to interview the stranger, found that he needed a home while in London, but did not know where to go, as no one could understand him. There was no difficulty, as both could communicate in Esperanto.

Popularity of the Dahlia.

Dahlias are growing in popularity, and dahlia shows are held in some cities. In the wild plant the flowers are single, with a dull gray and yellow disk; the varieties of the cultivated forms are almost endless. The plant was discovered in Mexico by Vincent Cervantes about 1784 and was first taken to the botanic gardens of Madrid and the same year it was introduced into England by the marchioness of Bute. The plant became extinct in that country and was again taken thither in 1804. In that year is found the earliest mention of the dahlia, named from Andrew Dahl, a Swedish botanist and pupil of Linnaeus. In Mexico the tubers are cultivated as food, on account of the quantity of inulin they contain, but elsewhere, though many times tried, they never have become popular, being regarded as unpalatable.

Question of Style.

The Princess Chinquilla, daughter of the late Lone Star, chief of the Cheyennes, attended a reception not long ago attired in the native costume of her rank The princess is a Carlisle graduate, and an unusually bright and interesting young woman, quick to think and to speak. Her costume was rather conspicuous, and presently it became the subject of conversation among the little party about her.

"Do you wear it on the streets of New York, Princess?" inquired a man.
"Not now," she replied. "I did when I first came to the East, but the people laughed at me, so I changed it to your native style. I laughed too, at the hats your women wore, and I thought how delighted our wild chiefs would be if they could have headdresses like those."-Philadelphia Saved by Brave Daughter.

Announcement of the engagement of Lady Grizel Cochrane, daughter of Lord Dundonald, the British cavalry general, recalls that at the end of the seventeenth century there was a Cochrane who owed his life to the great daring of his daughter Grizel. This Cochrane had been sentenced to death at Edinburgh and the king refused to listen to all appeals for mercy. Miss Grizel, however, set her wits to work; she tracked the postboy who was bringing the death warrant to Edinburgh, found him, by good luck, asleep, drew the powder from his pistols and later on-for she had an eye to the dramatic effect-disguised herself as a highwayman and so obtained possession of the fatal document.

The Christy, Gilbert, Fisher, Flagg and a host of other girls, all apparently inspired by the only original Gibson girl, will no doubt convince a future generation that the usual young woman of our time was honestly represented by these artists. Now, is this really the case?

Has not the popular artist been again at his old trick of depicting the women of his day after a prescribed pattern, this pattern being composed in varying proportions of the artist's characteristic manner and of his power to represent the sentiment of his time as to what constitutes feminine charm?

It's as surprising as anything else about the sex how cleverly women smitate the fashionable ideal, despite the greatest odds. It is an old trick of the painter to set forth the women of his day as all bearing a strong family likeness. Does he create an ideal type with which he generously endows each one, or does he kindly represent them all as he knows they would like to seem-that is, in accordance with the fashionable standard? We can never put the old portrait painters to the proof, but it is very likely that there was a Holbein girl, a Van Dyke girl, a Gainsborough girl and a good many other girls of

When it comes to mind-reading, memory and startlingly clear recollection of past things and places, Magistrate William J. Hughes must not be lost sight of. There is not a lawyer in town that can show better mental tenacity than this same representative of the minor judiciary. An incident occurred recently that showed this trait of Magistrate Hughes'. USED CAT AS A PLUMBER.

How Puss Was Led to Detect Leak in Water Pipe.

Making her cat act as her plumber was the ingenious feat that a woman of Manayunk, Pa., accomplished the other day. This woman had noticed that one of the pipes connected with the washstand in her bathroom leaked, and she wished to locate the leak precisely without tearing out any more of the wall than was needful.

in the parlor—the parlor is directly below the bathroom-and into the basin of the defective washstand she noured a vial of the oil valerian. Cats are excessively fond of the odor of valerian; a cat would rather inhale this odor than eat fish. The Manayunk woman's cat, after it had been in the parlor a few minutes, began to purr. Purring, it crossed the room; it settled itself on the floor with its face to one spot on the wall, and here its mistress found it when she came down stairs, its nose glued to the spot, sniffing and purring ecstatic-

The wall was opened at this point, and here, sure enough, the leak was found. Here the valerian had trickled through, imparting its intoxicating odor to the cat.

Hardly the world over could there be found a tree which has come into more intimate connection with the youth desirous of success in life than the curious iron tree of Vienna. For in the old days, when it was the custom of every apprentice who had attained to some degree of proficiency in his trade to bid farewell to family and friends and get out on foot to seek his fortune, he went before leaving the city and drove a nail into this tree's trunk.

Should the nail drive straight, the act was regarded as especially ominous of success, and that his road over difficulties would prove smooth, but when it bent or broke in the driving the face of the apprentice turned suddenly awry, he believing that either he would fail utterly in life or that success would only come to him late and through most difficult channels.

In the remnant of the tree which now remains so many nails have been driven that not a vestige of its original wood can be seen. Literally its surface is hard as nails, while the community of those it presents is one heterogeneous, fairly striving with each other for place and prominence.

WAS NOT MUCH TO TELL.

Simple Description of Hog's Lamentable Decease.

"Private" John Allen is responsible for this one:

Last year there were a number of claims for damages brought against one of the railroads in Mississippi by the farmers in a certain county of that state. These claims arose out of the fact that many hogs had been killed by the trains of the railroads in question. A mixed commission was formed of railroad men and others to determine the equity of these claims. Among others questioned by this commission was an old darky who claimed to have been an eye-witness of the annihilation of one hog.

Said the Chairman of the commission to Zeph:

"Tell us, in as few words as possible, how this hog was killed."

Old Zeph shifted a huge cud of tobacco from one cheek to the other, cleared his throat, and then replied:

"Well, sah," said he, "as nearly as I kin make it out, it was dis way: De natures than they have to-day, and yet train tooted and den tuk him!"

NOT UP ON THE FASHIONS.

Society Man Was Surprised at Highwayman's Ignorance.

George Davis, a member of one of Baltimore's old families, and one of the ushers at the wedding or the Earl of Yarmouth and Miss Alice Thaw at Pictsburg last spring, has recently been visiting in Denver. He was returning to his hotel from a dinner party when he was held up by footpads. They went through his pockets and were much disappointed at the results -35 cents.

"Where is your watch?" demanded one of the robbers, gruffly.

"My watch!" exclaimed Davis, with his highly cultivated English accent. 'Don't you know, my dear fellow, that it is beastly bad form to wear a watch with evening clothes. You cannot be up on the fashions."

"Go on with yer fashions," drawled the robber. "Give us them pearl studs." Taking them roughly out of his immaculate shirt front they went their way.-New York Times.

A Plague of Mosquitoes.

A correspondent from Sioux Falls, S. D., tells this story. He says: "For a few hours an evening or two ago the residents of Toronto, S. D., had reason to believe a section of New Jersey had temporarily been moved to South Dakota. Without the slightest warning a dense cloud of mosquitoes settled over the town, and for a brief period were practically in complete possession. There were billions of the insects, and they fairly swarmed about the electric lights and in front of every building from which a light shone through the doors and windows. Great numbers of the pests were destroyed by men and boys lighting newspapers and burning them. The next morning the sidewalks were covered with dead mosquicoes."

An Unanswerable Conundrum. The thoughtful querist was thoughtful, and so they knew there was trouble ahead.

"Why is it, he asked at length, 'that a woman who has trotted her daughter all over Europe in an effort to marry her to what she considers an eligible man-a woman wno has devoted her whole time and her whole mind to throwing out nets-will weep bitter tears at the altar when her efforts are crowned with success and sne has disposed of her daughter in accordance with the plans she has made Accordingly she shut her cat up and has struggled so hard to carry out?"

> But no one felt competent to answer the question.

> > Flight of Birds.

The fact that day birds become nocturnal at migration time, uttering notes used on no other occasion in the year; that they fly at a speed beyond their ordinary powers, and at hights beyond their ordinary haunts, leads Dr. Gatke to believe that they possess in their powers of flight and soaring some principle not employed on any other occasion, and hitherto not taken into account by naturalists.

Swans Are Ugly Fighters.

Rather a funny ceremony that is gone through with every year has just been accomplished, and that is the marking of the young swans, or cygnets, on the upper Thames.

Its swans are of course a feature of the river after Richmond is passed. Some of them are owned by the crown, and the rest by two of the ancient river "companies," and it is in order to distinguish them that the cygnets are marked.

The swan markers are a picturesque company. They wear white flannels, and can be told apart by their different colored jerseys. Those of the king's men are scarlet, those of the Dyers' company navy blue, and those of the Vintners' company blue and white.

The markers embark in half a dozen skiffs, at the stern of which flies either the king's flag-a white field, with a crown and the royal cipher. "E. R."or one of the bannerettes of the two companies.

The party sets out from Molesey lock, and after that things are pretty lively, for the operation of marking swans, even young swans, is no holiday pastime. The birds fight like furies. They are surprisingly strong, too, and every once in a while one of the markers has an arm or leg broken by a vicious blow from a cygnet's

The birds are caught by means of a hook on the end of a long pole, and they are branded on the beak-either with the royal monogram or that of one of the companies.

Usually the man who does the branding deprives the swan marked by him of one of its feathers, which he sticks in his cap as a trophy.

The number of cygnets is smaller than usual this year, on account of the bad weather and floods which have prevailed along the river. Thames swans have a reputation for viciousness, and folk who have seen what they can do with their wings and beaks make it a point to give them a wide berth.-Philadelphia Ledger.

Curious Wreck on Wales Coast. A steamer left Cardiff without a pilot on board during a spell of bad weather. She soon got into difficulaged 24 years, with brain wrecked in the nervous strain following a false lover's conduct, is held a prisoner in her own home. The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Leaf of Proctor Knott, a suburb of Duluth. The story of the girl's imprisonment, in order to give protection to her aged mother and members of the household, was told to-day to Humane Agent Withrow, to whom the case had been referred by neighbors of the Leafs. Miss Leaf more than a year ago was engaged to marry a young man, the day of the wedding was set and suddenly he left for parts unknown. Many of her young friends made merry over her plight to such an extent that her mind was giving way. At length she was sent to the state insane asylum, but on the urgent plea of her mother, aged 73, who said that she could take good care of her, the authorities allowed her to be sent home. She had been at Proctor Knott but a few weeks when her condition became worse than ever. Then it was that the mother and brothers of the girl conceived the plan of making a cage to incarcerate her. The humane officer will take steps to have the girl sent back to the asylum.

MADE POLICEMAN A VICTIM.

Hypnotis. Turned Man of Law Into a Laughing Stock.

An amusing episode, in which the chief figure was a hypnotized policeman, is reported from Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony. A professor of hypnotism had taken a vacant shop in which to give demonstrations of his mysterious art, and his stock-in-trade included a bed, upon which reposed a man who was represented to be in a trance. The crowd that assembled on the opening day to view the recumbent figure included a member of the South African constabulary. This person went with a skeptical mind, and, seeing the figure move, he at once denounced the whole business as a fraud. The professor, not a bit disconcerted. engaged him in conversation, and the skeptic was soon keenly interested in the wondrous tales the man of science was relating. Suddenly the policeman fell into the arms of the professor, and went through some very strange antics, one of which was to arrest the professor as a dangerous criminal. When it dawned upon the crowd that the man of law was really hypnotized the joke was greatly relished. After putting his victim through a few more "tricks" for the enjoyment of the other visitors the professor restored him to his senses as quickly as he had hypnotized him. When he realized what had happened the policeman, looking white and frightened, made a hasty exit, and has since made it a point to keep away from all hypnotists.

Spider as Spinner.

The spider needs no wheel to spin its fairy thread. There are on its body four to six protuberances, perforated each by minute holes, sometimes as many as a thousand. Through these holes the liquid silk passes from internal reservoirs, and hardens upon contact with the air.

Bees Stung Poultry to Death.

A remarkable case of bees stinging poultry to death was recently reported to the Kent (Eng.) Technical Education Authority. Mr. Charles Waghorn, of Paddock Wood, has a small orch ard, in the middle of which are many hives. One day he noticed bees worrying six cockerels in a pen. He liberated the birds, but the bees followed and subsequently attacked nearly all the poultry. Two cockerels were stung to death, and several others suffered so badly from stings that they had to be killed. Many of the birds were blinded by the bees, and their heads were speckled and swollen.

Elms Absorb Much Water.

It has been computed that if the leaves of an elm tree, sixty feet high were spread out on the ground, edge to edge, they would cover five acres of land. These leaves, averaging 7,000,000 to a full-grown tree, will transpire water to the amount of seven tons during the normal summer day. Were it not for the ingathering of the stomata during the night a few elms would soon draw off all the water from a district. As it is every market grower knows what elms are like near fruit or market gardens.

Weather Note.

Very close, with approaching storm.

One Proof of Greatness.

On the continent no man seems to be really famous unless his features appear on a pictorial postcard. A Frenchman who has recently come before the world has received a letter from a person at Geneva asking for permission to reproduce his photograph in this form and offering 10 per cent of the total takings.

AN ANECDOTE OF DISRAELI.

Statesman's Adulation Staggered the Fair Recipient.

On one occasion this habit of exaggerated adulation led to so bold an attempt by the fair recipient to turn it to her advantage that he was driven to save the situation in a way that was very far from being appreciated. The charmer, a young lady of "advanced views," finding the great man so exceedingly profuse in his attentions, thought it an excellent opportunity for making him a convert to her utopian ideals, which were of the most daringly democratic order. After a long recitation of her propaganda she wound up with a fervid appeal to the prime minister to immortalize himself by espousing her ingenious panacea for remedying the wrongs of humanity! As she finished her impassioned harangue, with flushed cheeks and flashing eye. Disraeli, who had been silently watching her with apparently the profoundest sympathy and admiration, suddenly dropped his eyeglass and softly murmured, "Oh, you darling!" "If it had been at dinner," she afterward declared, "and I had had a knife, I would have stabbed him!"-Blackwood's.

The McBride Case Again.

St. John, Kans., Oct. 26 .- Mr. and Mrs. William McBride and Jesse L. Limes, M. D., have gone before Mr. George E. Moore, Notary Public, and have sworn and subscribed to written ctatements confirming the story of the awful illness and subsequent cure of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Mc-

Dr. Limes is particularly emphatic in his statement, and there does not now seem to be any room for doubt as to the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills, and nothing else, saved the little boy. He was so bad that he had Epileptic spells which seized him with increasing frequency. He was semi-paralyzed in the right side, and his mind was padly affected.

In their sworn statement, Mr. and Mrs. McBride say:

"The very day we began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills our boy had twenty-seven of these Epileptic spells or fits. In less than a week he ceased having them entirely."

The case has caused a great sensation in the neighborhood. The sworn statements have confirmed the whole

A PROMINENT CHURCH WORKER SAYS SHE OWES HER LIFE TO PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. Hattie La Fountain, Treas. Protected Home Circle and Catholic Ladies of Ohio, writes from Galion, O., as follows:

"After my first child was born I suffered for several months with bearing down pains accompanied by dreadful headaches. I was afraid my health was ruined for life, and felt very downcast about it. One day when a friend was visiting me she told me of Peruna and what it had done for her when she suffered with irregular menstruation. My husband procured a bottle the same evening and I began to take it daily according to directions. Before the first botte was used I was entirely well, and you certainly have one grateful woman's blessing. I have also advised my friends to use it."

"I have known several women who were little better than physical wrecks, mothers who dragged out a miserable, painful exist-ence, but were made well and strong through the use of Peruna. I have known of cases of chronic catarrh which were cured in a short time, when a dozen different remedies had been experimented with and without good results.
