GERMAN SYRUP.

We want to impress on our readers that Bosclie's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to day that does relieve and cure consumption
 It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning.
 The diseased parts want rest healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. T.

A DICKERSON

The very first requisite of a shoe is that it shall fit the foot with absolute accuracy. "Queen Quality" fits because it is an entirely different construction, which by the way, adds many dollars to the weekly pay roll. But the shoes fit perfectly.

A man in the Adirondacks, mistaken for a deer and shot in the thigh, made bandages and stopped the flow of blood. Then he started to crawl out of the woods, and had gone two miles when he fainted, where he was found. Now he has some idea how wounded deer must feel.

SHE TOOK THE TIPS.

"Country Cousin" Hated to See Good Things Wasted.

He was taking a country cousin around town showing her the sights, and in his effort to appear as the "real thing" was particularly lavish with his tips. No one who waited on them got less than a quarter for the most trifling service.

The country cousin wasn't born yesterday, and when he put the second quarter down on the same table she slyly picked it up and put it in her purse. When a call-boy brought him an evening paper—he had been given five cents to buy it with—the "real thing" put another quarter down, and the girl quietly took that also. When the waiter brought the check for their dinner the man laid down a dollar bill on the plate, and this also the girl promptly "lifted." But he saw her do it this time and whispered:

"What's the matter? Don't you think I gave him enough?"
"Oh, yes," she said sweetly; "but as I took the others I thought I'd take that, too. I hate to see good things wasted."—New York Press.

ALL THAT WAS LACKING.

Suitable Gown Was What She Needed, and She Got It.

He had been away on a business trip for quite a long time and had brought his wife a handsome fan upon his return.

"It's just perfectly lovely, Fred," she said. "It's the daintiest and most beautiful fan I ever saw."

"I'm glad you like it," he returned, with evident gratification.
"How could I like anything so pretty?" she asked and then she added with a sigh, "and I only wish I could carry it some time."

"Why can't you?" he demanded.
"No gown to go with it," she answered promptly. "There ought to be a gown to match or at least one that wouldn't look shabby beside it, if—"

She got the gown. He kicked himself for two days, and ever thereafter bought fans to match what she already had.

"Shut In." "Shut in." Ah, well, my body lies confined and pent these walls between. The white my happy spirit flies. As free as wavelets dancing shewn. Three angels softly press the key. That holds my soul in somber thrall. Then lightly float and whisper me. God's mercy and his love for all.

With the Angel of the Past, I tread the paths of childhood's days. I laugh and shout and lightly cast All care aside for childish plays. I wander through fair orchard aisles, I pluck the fruitage, red and gold, Heap hoards of nuts in fragrant piles, And golden hours rich blessings hold.

The Present Angel comes to me, A wondrous gift within her hands. Through books we sail on distant sea, And wander far in foreign lands. We mingle with the struggling throng, That toll within the great world's shops.

With jostling crowd are borne along To deepest mine, or mountain tops. And then the dearest of the three Sits down at eve beside my bed, The angel of the blest "To Be." When all of life and light are fled, A future bright she holds in view. Through lowly doorway hid by sod: Oh, soul! Be patient, brave, and true: What glories wait who walk with God!—Irene Pomeroy Shields, Monroe Center, L. ch.

Preserving Cork Trees.

So much cork is now used in the manufacture of linoleum and in shipbuilding that the protection of cork trees has become a matter of prime importance. Italy is taking steps to this end in Sicily and Sardinia, where there are large cork forests, those of Calabria having been nearly destroyed in the making of charcoal. It is said that Spain is showing a like interest in protecting these trees, as the manufacture of corks is a large industry there. Only a few years ago the exportation of wine bottle corks from that country amounted to about $5,000,000 annually.

Early American Composers.

The Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has placed a tablet in the Boston public library in commemoration of early composers of American patriotic music. The inscription states that the society, "in grateful recognition of the inspiration of patriotic verse and song, commemorates the following names: William Billings, Oliver Holden, John Howard Paine, Samuel Francis Smith, Francis Scott Key, George Frederick Root."

Why He Didn't Marry.

"You were never married, I believe?" "No, I was never married." "That's singular, isn't it?" "No, not at all. You see, the first time I fell in love I said to myself: 'I'll marry her or none.' " "Why didn't you marry her, then?" "Well, you see, after I had become better acquainted with her, I said to myself, 'I'll marry none rather than her.' Since that I've got along very well with none."

Deaf and Dumb Doctor.

A deaf and dumb German scholar named Walter Kuntze has had the degree of doctor of philosophy conferred upon him by the University of Leipzig for a masterly treatise on certain agricultural subjects. This is the first time a deaf and dumb person has been made a doctor by a German university.

Easy to Hire Special Trains.

At any of the big railroad terminals in a city now a man can get a special engine and car to chase a flyer almost as easily as he can check his trunk. Only a few minutes' notice is required and right-of-way is obtained for 100 or 200 miles along the line without noticeably disturbing scheduled runs. A man who has had to keep an important business engagement, or a woman hurrying to a sick husband, pays $100 or double that sum for a special with as little concern, as paying a supper check in a swell hotel.

THE CITY OF GOLD

A Ramble Through Johannesburg

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

Take my arm and come with me. Swiftly through the streets of Johannesburg, past the shops ablaze with light, past the loitering crowd that saunters idly, past the thronged theaters where bursts of melody and spasmodic cadences of applause reach the ear through open doors.

Keep out of the light—the cold, white steadfast lights that line the mile-long streets; let us creep away into the sideways where are the tumble-down tin shanty of Ramsamy and the dirt-begrimed windows of Petrifski—Isaac, the son of Joseph—behind which this very man is threading a needle by the light of a flickering candle.

You will see him still at work when you return, this same Petrifski; well into the night he will work, plying his needle and dreaming alone of—who knows what? Then he will draw a filthy blanket over his greasy form and sleep till the morning sun awakens him, and then again the needle and the day-long dream and the candle's successor.

But our business is not with him; we must pass the road in which he dwells before we get to the east. He sits in his filth and his toil, and the memory of Poland is a boundary post between east and west, between Orient and Occident.

Beyond, the houses grow bewilderingly various. Shops, leisurely started with some dim idea of being beautiful, have finished by becoming patchily tin. The builder has never finished. Unsentimental necessity grasped him by the throat, thrusting him aside to make room for a hundred aliens.

We are out of the range of the white merciless arc light—that disciple of truth that emphasizes our wrinkles and traces the patches on our threadbare coats. Here the light is more mellow, more pleasing. It is a yellow light, and none too bright, and here the houses are tin. They are bright enough. There is music here. Vice, gilded thinly, has its votaries, its high priest and its temples—little tin temples, scented with Florida water.

The tin town continues beyond this, but the lower end is silent. So silent that you might think you had by accident happened upon a colony living up to the standard set by the moral Mr. Franklin. Early to bed they apparently are. No sound breaks the silence of the quiet night, no light gleams in any window, no smoke rises from the crazy courtyards. Early to rise you know they are, for daybreak sees this little colony alive, with bamboo rod and laden baskets, chattering, running, loading and trading. For this is the Chinese quarter.

Knock softly on one of the iron gates. There is no answer. Here is a door, "The Hokai Laundry." Knock here, and if anybody comes invent some laundry urgently required by a fictitious client. But nobody will come. But I have not brought you here for the pleasure of knocking at an unresponsive door. I knew all along that it would not be opened to you. But in a few minutes the gates of Chinatown will be opened to us, and Chinatown, obsequious and smiling, will greet us with injured surprise and lamblike innocence.

For the police are close at hand; all the while we have been walking this way they have been shadowing us on either hand. You may not have seen them, but they have been close enough. And now—watch. They appear like magic from side streets and unsuspected alleys. In ones, in twos, in threes. And they are coming to—ward us. Did I tell you that we have one of the chiefs of police with us?

There is no noise, no melodramatic whistle. A whispered word of command, and two men have scaled the iron gateway and have dropped into darkness on the other side. A second more, and the gate grates open on rusty hinges, and we are inside.

It is rather disappointing at first. There is nothing suggestive of the Flowery land—no pagodas or tea-houses or joss-houses, only three sides of a garbage-strewn square, ranged around which are the sordid tea shanties of John. But it strikes you immediately that nobody is asleep. In fact, everybody is wide awake. A dozen Chinamen of all sizes and ages are sitting around a red-hot brazier, on which some mess is stewing, and all the little houses that have not lights have smoldering wicks—which is significant.

Somebody flashes an electric torch over the deserted hovel. The hastily extinguished candle still glows, and its smells filled all space. There is a closed door in one corner of the apartment. The sergeant puts his shoulder to it, and the sergeant, being a man of many pounds, it gives. There is a passage, and there are some steps leading downward, and there is another door outlined in light. This yields to a push.

We—that is, you, the police, and I—do not apologize, even though we have obviously broken up what promised to be a successful evening. The curiously-colored board supported on a trestle table, and the weird, pawnlike pieces scattered at our unceremonious intrusion, are implements employed in the game of fan-tan. It is an institution that Ho Ki, the Chow, carries away from his fatherland; it is the outward and visible demonstration of his patriotism.

John Ho Ki, Wunhi, Ho Ku and Chow Ke, in no wise perturbed, sit around the wall of the dug-out in which this classical game is played. There are four vacant places at the board, and there is a trap near the roof to which a ladder ascends. The banker has departed. Gambling is a crime, even in Johannesburg, and the players fall in, outside, from whence they will march to the police station with great docility.

There is another door leading from the gambling den. It is locked, evidently from the other side, but the sergeant's shoulder is better than a skeleton key. Crash! The room is bare except for a frame bed and a table. On this is a candle spluttering in its socket. On the bed lies a man who does not move, his eyes are half closed, his hand grasps a pipe, and the sickening stench of opium fills the room.

"Wake up, Johnny, where's your pass, eh?"

Leave them to arouse him, and follow the police captain to the joss house. The priest opens the door of a tin shanty, in no wise differing from the dozen about, except that the interior resembles for all the world a large-sized tea-chest turned inside out. Here, gold on black, certain moral precepts of Confucius crawl up the walls like so many ariferous spiders. On the altar is a small image of a black-bearded god. Before the altar, joss sticks, wooden swords, spears, and unseled baubles. Not so very inspiring and certainly nothing to justify the unpleasant scowl of the priestly custodian.

Now back again to the opium room. There is a group of policemen round the bed of the dreamer.

"Can't you rouse him?" I ask.
Then I look and see how unnecessary was my question. The Chinese have a pretty little cemetery of their own near Braamfontein.

They That Help Themselves.

Senator Dubois of Idaho, during the days when he was practicing law in Boise City, was on a certain occasion sternly reprimanded by the judge of a court in that city because of alleged contempt of court, and in addition was fined in the sum of $50.

The next day, according to a custom followed in the Idaho courts, the judge called upon Mr. Dubois to occupy the bench for him during the transaction of some comparatively unimportant business. After the judge's departure from the courtroom Mr. Dubois exhibited an instance of that remarkable presence of mind for which he has ever been noted. The future senator said to the clerk of the court:

"Turning to the record of this court for yesterday, Mr. Clerk, you will observe recorded a fine of $50 against one Frederick T. Dubois. You will kindly make a note to the effect that such fine has been remitted by order of the court."—Saturday Evening Post.

In the Bottle.

Senator Spooner relates a conversation he heard last summer in a street car in Milwaukee.

"Do you have pale beer at home?" asked a young lady of her companion.
"Oh, no," replied the other; "papa always gets his bottled."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

HE BOUGHT THE DOG.

Possibly He Was Pleased With the Animal's Sagacity.

A certain office holder decided to buy a dog. In reply to his "ad" a man called at his office with an intelligent-looking animal, that he immediately took a fancy to, though he deemed it advisable to first inquire into something of its characteristics.

"What can he do?" he asked.
"Oh, sir, he can do anything. If you've lost anything, sir, he'll go direct to the place where you lost it. He'll—"

"By the way, I just missed my glove. Do you s'pose he could find it?"

"Certainly, sir. Just let him sniff at your hand."

The office holder held his hand to the dog's nose, and the animal trotted serenely off. Presently he returned, and with a joyous wagging of the tail deposited his offering at the office holder's feet.

At the same moment the click of the typewriter in the next room ceased. A girlish form appeared in the doorway.

"My sash ribbon," cried a high sweet voice, "my sash ribbon! The dog has my sash ribbon!"

The office holder's face turned a dull red. He cast a furtive glance at the man, dived into his pocket, and hauled out a bill.

"I guess the dog'll do," he said quietly.

WHERE THE JOKE CAME IN.

Ice-man's Mistake Excited the Negro's Risibilities.

While Frank Daniels, the comedian, was taking a stroll about Rochester he came across an old negro who, as he watched an iceman slide ice through an opening in the asphalt, laughed uproariously.

"Observe how easily amused he is, and yet there is nothing to laugh at," commented Mr. Daniels to his friends. "Still, they tell us the colored folks have a keen sense of the ridiculous. You'll notice that most of the successes in the minstrel business are white men, however." Then, "Hey, uncle!" he shouted. "Do you think it's funny to watch a man slide ice down into the cellar of a saloon?"

The old man straightened up, scratched his nose thoughtfully for a moment, and then replied:

"Why, boss, I 'low dat performance do tickle dis ol' man's risibilities. It suttlenly does, boss. You see, Sah, he's a new ice-man, an' 'stead ol' slidin' ice down in de basement, he's jes' sldin' it into de sewer. Yah, hi hi!"—New York Times.

IGNORANCE WAS NOT BLISS.

In This Case It Cost Its Possessor Some Money.

There are men who are never satisfied unless they are gambling. One of them met another man of the same disposition a few days ago. There didn't happen to be any cards or dice about, or any of the other apparatus made for the accommodation of sporting blood, and so the gentlemen concluded to match pennies. This grew tiresome after a while, and one of the men produced a roll of bills and offered to bet his companion that he couldn't guess whether the last figure on the number of each bill was odd or even for a dollar a clip.

"I'll do it if you'll tell me the series of each bill," was the reply.

This was agreed to, and in a very short time the man who made the proposition had lost all his money. A private investigation made by him shortly after revealed the fact that his acquaintance had outwitted him, for he discovered that the last figure of the number of series A and C was odd and that of B and D was even.

Talloring by Weight.

Many men of modest dimensions have thought it hard that they should be charged by their tailor on the same scale as the men whom twice as much cloth is needed to clothe. The Garment Makers' convention at Chicago has decided that in future the clothing of corpulent men will be paid for according to bulk. The weight of men or normal size is arbitrarily fixed at 150 pounds, and for each 100 pounds over that weight the fat man will be taxed $5 additional for his clothes. "Anti-Pat" and similar remedies will be more in demand in the states than ever.

Saul's Address.

Warriors and chiefs! should the shaft or the sword Pierce me when leading the hosts of the Lord. Heed not the coise, though a king's, in your path.— Bury your steel in the bosom of Gath! Thou who art bearing my buckler and bow, Should the soldiers of Saul look away from the foe, Stretch me that moment in blood at thy feet; Mine be the doom which they dared not to meet!

Farewell to others; but never we part, Helr to my royalty, son of my heart! Bright is the diadem, boundless the sway, Or kindly the death, that awaits us today!

—Lord Byron.

All That Was Needed.

"It wouldn't take much to make me tell him what I think of him," said the angry man.

"How much?"
Thereupon the angry man got his second wind and with it came a second thought.

"A little more muscle and a few boxing lessons," he said.

All He Wanted.

"Did your college confer any degree on you?"

"No; but they gave me the third degree in my secret society, and you bet that's all I want. I'm aching from it yet."

The Form Divine.
Several country editors of my acquaintance are indulging a criticism of woman and the way she draws her dress about her form divine when she walks. They are divided against themselves. Some of them think it is vulgar for a woman to show the lines of her form by her swathing, while others profess to like it and pronounce the fashion not only au fait, but modest.

In "the little old town far away" small boys, dressed in a bland smile and a bold deft, daily bathed in the brook, to the perturbation of an old maid who lived hard by and whose finer sensibilities were rudely shocked. She complained to the police, and the boys were routed to a place farther up stream. Again she complained.

"Madam," expostulated the town marshal, "you cannot possibly see these boys from your library window."
"Indeed I can," piped the maiden lady, in unconcealed anger. "I use this telescope!"

We fear some of those editors are seeing the human form divine through the old maid's telescope.

In God's Country.
Where the waving fields of corn Skirt the roadside here and there, Where the river winds along In a rhythmic, droning run, Where the listless, floating hawk In the azure blue is high, Where the clouds are phantoms white On the winds that buoy them by— There my heart is free As a heart can be, And my soul is in tune with Thee!

Where the soothing winds are crisp In the autumn time of red, Where the apples wild are tossed To their matted, grassy bed, Where the limp waters sweet Lie asleep upon the sand, Where the leaves float to and fro To their haven on the strand— There my heart is free As a heart can be, And my soul is in tune with Thee!

Where the people live content With the joys of humble birth, Where the plowman and his sons Are the kings of a fertile earth, Where the sympathetic hand Is the clasp of brotherhood, Where a man's a man for that, And the heart is understood— There my heart is free As a heart can be, And my soul is in tune with Thee.

"SHOOTING THE RAPIDS."

Babcock's Olive Dish.
The last newspaper form had fallen into the jaws of the great perfecting press, when Babcock left the office with an idle hour in prospect.

Down in Madison street he passed an auction joint. Being a student of sociology, the newspaper man entered. Inside there was an appearance of what a slangist might term "easy money," with no "cavil on the ninth part of a hair," as Shakespeare puts it.

After "our hero" had seen a ruthless slaughter of be-silvered and be-onioned toilet articles and other boudoir bric-a-brac, he opened his arms to opportunity and bid 25 cents on "a pretty, dainty, prismatic, cut-glass olive dish."
"And sold!" snapped the crier so promptly that Babcock blinked his way to a realization of his purchase through a chapparral of maze!

"Gentleman right over there," added the auctioneer to the cash boy.
Babcock handed a $2 bill, and took one hasty look at his purchase.

"Pressed glass!" he commented indignantly, "marked down from 13 cents on any bargain counter in the city!"

And he snickered at the thought of a city newspaper man being a sucker in his own ball-wick.

"Beware of the man who offers you something for almost nothing!" had been his motto always, but now —

"Here's yer change, mister," interrupted the boy.
Babcock reached and clasped—!!!

What was that? Yes, $2.25!
"Thanks!" he said (mentally), and with the olive dish under his arm, he walked away whistling, the dish and 25 cents "to the good."

When he reached home he sealed the bargain by kissing his wife and telling her, sub rosa, that not even a city auctioneer can get the better of a dyed-in-the-wool newspaper Bohemian.

Peter Cooper had fifty-five years of domestic happiness and morning fire-building. Mr. Cooper was an ingenious man. When a cradle became necessary in his home, as was sometimes the case years ago, Peter rigged a self-rocking table, with a fan attachment. Afterward he patented the device and sold the patent. There were many opportunities "in those days!"

English Railroad Accidents.

The English Bureau of Commerce has published a report covering the railway accidents of the United Kingdom, which shows that 1,171 persons were killed, and 17,814 injured in 1902. As compared with 1901 the killed and injured were as follows: Of every 9,211,002 passengers one was killed in 1902, against one in every 9,684,414 in 1901; one was injured of every 466,700 passengers in 1902, against one in every 546,511 in 1901. The total mileage of the railways of the United Kingdom at the close of 1902 was 22,152 miles. Most of the roads have double and triple tracks.

Those Flats.

The mother with her little 10-year-old daughter was returning to her tiny flat after a call on a friend who resided in a large house, with spacious grounds about it, says the New York Times. As she neared the house she sighed and remarked to her little daughter:

"Dolly, when I come back home after visiting Mrs. Wallin I feel as if I had come back to live in a hat box."

Dolly gave a sigh exactly like her mother's and said sadly:

"And I feel as if I had come back to live in a keyhole."

Where Foxes Are Tame.

Andrew J. Howlett of Hubbardston, Mass., while going to his work the other morning, saw a half-grown fox running along beside the road. Mr. Howlett got out of the team and caught it in his hands. When going home at night another fox was seen by Mr. Howlett, which he caught in the same manner. He carried them home and has then on exhibition in a cage.

America's Farming Area. The total area used for farming purposes in the United States is 841,000,000 acres—an area larger than England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France, Germany, Austria, Japan and the Transvaal. There are 10,438,000 persons engaged in the agricultural pursuits, while all other industries employ but 18,845,000. One-third of the people is, therefore, devoted to farming.

DEVICE ENSURES FRESH AIR

Michigan Man Has Invented Contrivance of Value.

Joel C. Parker, a well-known dentist of Grand Rapids, Mich., has a unique scheme for securing pure air in his sleeping-room and thus improving his health. It is the very simplicity of Dr. Parker's invention that strikes the observer most forcibly. His room is situated on the ground floor, and a window of unusual size opens to the west. Outside of this window, a light frame work of maple is constructed, and over this is stretched some finely woven cloth. This is the filter. It stops the entrance of rain and drafts and catches the cinders and numerous impurities of the atmosphere of a manufacturing district.

Once in bed and with curtain closed and slide open, there is an unrestricted passage way for the filtered air to the lungs of the person in bed, but not satisfied with this, Dr. Parker erected a ventilator pipe on the top of the box. This extends clear to the ceiling of the room and at its lower end, about two inches from the top of the box, a gas jet is inserted. Before retiring the patient lights this jet. The heated air rises naturally, passes out of the top of the ventilator pipe and forms a vacuum in the pipe which is immediately filled by the fresh air from out of doors. This keeps up a continual circulation, and the sleeper's lungs can never take in the same air twice.

The Toilet of a Mandarin.

A recent book on China contains the following account of a mandarin's toilet: "A Chinaman always sleeps with his clothes on—that is, he removes the outer garments and, having undone the waistband, anklets, collar and so on, retires to rest in his linen. The first thing on getting up is to clean his teeth, which is usually a long and noisy operation. In order to do this he takes a large mug, a silver tongue scraper, a brush and often a bit of willow twig and goes out into the courtyard to complete this part of his toilet. One of the handmaids has already filled the copper basin with warm water and brought 'the rag.' Often and often have I enjoyed the luxury of the 'hotel rag' at Chinese inns. This rag is a purely Chinese institution and consists of an old dish-cloth dipped in boiling water. The mandarin rubs his head, face, neck and hands with the family rag, ties his drawers at the ankles, hitches himself up generally, puts on a pair of silk leggings and a long robe and his undress toilet is complete."

Is Small but Brainy.

Michael Hemmelrath of Little Rock, Ark., is probably the smallest man in business life in the United States. He is thirty-four inches in height and weighs a little more than forty pounds. He is advertising manager for a business house in Little Rock, and always appears at his place of business in a Prince Albert coat and a high silk hat. He is popularly known about town as "Mike." He has had many offers to go on the stage and exhibit himself, but has always refused. He is twenty years old and the oldest of twelve children. A younger brother acts as coachman for him and he drives about the streets with a team of goats. There are ten girls in the family of Henry Hemmelrath, the father.

The Tale of a Squash.

Roy E. Fifield, of Stonington, Me., sent to a Bangor paper the following squash story: "I took seed from a squash raised this year, scratched my name upon it, and planted it. The result was a healthy vine, bearing a 6 1/2 pound squash, upon the surface of which my name appeared, clearly outlined. It was a southern squash."

Lobsters Shed Their Shells.

Several times a year the lobsters shed their shells, and each time the shell is shed the lobster increases in size. During the shedding season they go into the coves with soft muddy bottom and conceal themselves in the mud. A new shell of sufficient thickness to protect their bodies is grown in about a month or six weeks.

Insist on Getting It. Some grocers say they don't keep Defiance Starch. This is because they have a stock on hand of other brands containing only 12 oz. in a package, which they won't be able to sell first, because Defiance contains 16 oz. for the same money. Do you want 16 oz. instead of 12 oz. for same money? Then buy Defiance Starch. Requires no cooking.

Just Like a Woman.

Miss Annie Ball of Chicago has been licensed by the board of Examining Engineers to run a stationary engine, the only woman so favored in the city. She was refused a license on her first application. Then she offered to give the examiners $1,000 each if she could not take an engine apart and put it together in their presence, but was told that was not the way to obtain the permit. She submitted to an oral examination, but failed because, she says, of the "rapid-fire" method of propounding wordy questions. Later she took the written examination and came off triumphant with an average of 84. After she received the license she was asked what she proposed to do with it. "Nothing," she said: "I only wanted it because I was told I couldn't get it."

Bars Courts and Lawyers.

The will of W. H. Mentzer has just been filed for probate in San Bernardino, Cal. It is peculiar on account of the stipulation which directs that no attorney or court of law shall direct the distribution of the estate. Mentzer was formerly one of the richest men of this county, owning the town site of Colton. He became involved in litigation, which depleted his wealth. Under the will there is little over $75,000 to administer. Some of this consists of property on Pine street, San Francisco. A month ago Mentzer died, at Ingleswood. Following his express wishes, there were no pallbearers nor clergymen at his funeral, the undertaker simply calling at the house and taking the corpse to the cemetery. His widow, his only heir, lives alone in the beautiful Ingleswood home, shunning all society.—San Francisco Chronicle.

LIKED HIS "NIP."

Not a Whisky, but a Coffee Toper.

Give coffee half a chance and with some people it sets its grip hard and fast. "Up to a couple of years ago," says a business man of Brooklyn, N. Y., "I was as constant a coffee drinker as it was possible to be, indeed, my craving for coffee was equal to that of a drunkard for his regular 'nip' and the effect of the coffee drug upon my system was indeed deplorable. "My skin lacked its natural color, my features were pinched and my nerves were shattered to such an extent as to render me very irritable. I also suffered from palpitation of the heart.

"It was while in this condition I read an article about Postum Food Coffee and concluded to try it. It was not long before Postum had entirely destroyed my raging passion for coffee and in a short time I had entirely given up coffee for delicious Postum. "The change that followed was so extraordinary I am unable to describe it. Suffice it to say, however, that all my troubles had disappeared. I am my original happy self again and on the whole the soothing and pleasant effects produced by my cup of Postum make me feel as though I have been 'landed at another station.' "Not long ago I converted one of my friends to Postum and he is now as loud in its praise as I am." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

How a Farmer was freed from Misery

WORTHY of a higher recommendation than I can find words to express. This is what Mr. J. H. Plangman (of Sherman, Tex.) says of Doan's Kidney Pills. He tells his experience in the following words: "Sometime in September I was taken with a dull aching pain across the small of my back, directly over the kidneys. I paid small attention to this at first, thinking it would pass off. But instead of getting better it became worse and in a short time the pain centered through my left hip and down my left leg as far as the knee." This is precisely what kidney trouble will do with the body. It does not always show itself at first, but appears just in this way, when some unusual movement or action brings sharp pains and exhaustive aches, telling of sick kidneys. So Mr. Plangman's experience bore this out. Continuing, he says: "I did not know the cause of the trouble, but I am led to believe now that it was first brought about by jumping in and out of the wagon and in some way I may have strained my back. "It was constantly growing worse," he continues, "and I became very much alarmed about my condition. I knew that something had to be done or serious results were sure to follow. I went to a specialist here in Sherman, and underwent a rigid examination. "Then he relates how the doctor told him that it was a serious case, but that he could cure him for fifty dollars.

However, necessity knows no law and Mr. Plangman paid half down and took the treatment and followed it faithfully for four weeks.

Naturally, he thought that he would soon be rid of the trouble, but in spite of the doctoring he goes on to add, "I was in such misery that it was almost impossible for me to do my work."

"It was at this juncture that Doan's Kidney Pills came to my notice and I procured some from the drug store of C. E. Craycroft. I used these pills according to directions and to my surprise I was considerably relieved on the second day and in a short time completely cured."

This is the universal experience of those who have been sufferers from Kidney trouble and who have been fortunate enough to test the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills.

There is nothing wonderful or magical about this remedy, it simply does the work by direct action on the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only and this accounts for their speedy and certain action.

Early indications of kidney trouble come from two sources, the back and the bladder. The back becomes weak and lame because the kidneys are sick, and relief from backache can only be complete when the kidneys are set right.

Irritation of the bladder shows that the kidneys are out of order. Delay in prompt attention often causes serious complication. Relieve and cure sick kidneys and ward off dangerous diabetes, dreadened dropsy and Bright's disease, by using Doan's Kidney Pills.

They begin by healing the delicate membranes and reducing any inflammation of the kidneys, and thus making the action of the kidneys regular and natural.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs, rheumatism and dropsy signs vanish. They correct urine with brick-dust sediment, high-colored, excessive, pain in passing, dribbling, frequency. Doan's Kidney Pills dissolve and remove calculi and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness.

DREW A GUN.

Harry Hart Arrested on Charge of Assault.

Monday evening at the west end saloon a dispute arose between Harry Hart, former preceptor at the Grant county window house and Auguste Collet, the manager of the factory. Several of the men who worked last year were discharged and they become quite bitter at the manager. It is claimed that Hart drew a shot gun on Collet and threatened to shoot him. Hart was arrested and charged with assault.

Hart was tried and found guilty and a fine of $5. and costs assessed.

A kispach from Fairmount claims our gold mine owners, John Smith and O. L. Stout, as being Fairmount men, we won't stand for that.

We don't want any trouble with any good citizens or any citizen, on the east side of South Main street. But if we could have peaceably extended our water line, with a two inch galvanized pipe, from the bridge to the four inch water line on Indiana ave, we could have given those on the east side of south Main street a nice supply of water, and could have better supplied the whole south side.

The cutting out, of the four inch water line, on south Main street was a great damage to the water co. These lines had been on this street about twelve years and had given the people no trouble. Two inch galvanized pipes would have lasted thirty years without leaking.

Jeffrey and others opposed our extending our water lines on this street for the benefit of others, while Jeffrey's forceably and against our protest extended our water line along this same street, for his own benefit. Nabring did not alone tell him to not do this, Anson and I told him to not do this. He extended our water lines without any right to do so.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

C. W. Winchester, A. M., D. D. of Buffalo, N. Y., who was elected to the presidency of Taylor University Nov. 5, has formally accepted the position and will enter upon the duties of the office about Jan. 1, 1904.

Dr. Winchester is a classical graduate of Syracuse University. The same institution, in 1892 conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Before entering the pastorate, Dr. Winchester was a teacher, Greek and Latin being his specialties. He is a fine Greek scholar and only a few years ago refused election to the chair of Greek in one of the great universities of the state of New York. For twenty years he has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Genesee conference Seminary at Lima, N. Y.

He entered the M. E. conference in 1870. He served for six years as Presiding Elder of the largest district in the Genesee conference and for eleven years was conference secretary. In 1891 he represented the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Ecumenical conference at Washington. He was a member of the General Conference of 1896 at Cleveland, Ohio.

In 1890, President Winchester spent three months in European travel visiting the principal places of interest. The results of this tour are embodied in his book entitled, "The Gospel Kodak Abroad," issued by the Methodist book concern. He is also author of "wells of Salvation." The book of his which has been most widely read, perhaps, is a book of religious fiction under the title of "Victories of Wesley Castle."

At the time of his election to the presidency of Taylor University he was editor of the Christian Upland and Buffalo Christian Advocate.

Dr. Winchester's long experience in responsible positions in the church and as trustee of an educational institution makes him a strong man for his new position.
