Spring 1996

Fort Wayne Alumnus

Taylor University Fort Wayne
Together in His Service . . .
On a recent Friday morning, I found myself in the Ramseyer Chapel of Founder's Hall for one of our thrice-weekly chapel services. Chapel began, as it often does, with singing led by a worship team composed of students from our campus.

Matt and Megan were on the keyboards and Patrick was playing the drums. Greg was on the electric bass and Dave played the guitar and sang. Amy and Angela provided vocal leadership.

It was a rich time of worship with these students leading us in choruses and songs focused on our great Savior. Gazing over the crowd of students and staff gathered in the chapel, I was overwhelmed with gratitude for the privilege of joining with this group in praise and worship.

That evening I returned to the chapel for a gathering of quite a different sort. It was "Loopy Talent Twix," an event sponsored by the Student Activities Council. Numerous groups of students had prepared musical selections, skits and dramatic monologues for presentation. Some of the numbers, like Kevin's rendition of "Tornado Slide," made us laugh, while others, like AJ's dramatic presentation of "Poem Name," made us think.

Two very different events in Ramseyer Chapel in one day. Two events dominated by some very talented students. We worshiped. We laughed. We celebrated our friendship.

Our students are the best!! They have a deep love of God and truly enjoy worshiping Him. They also enjoy one another and have a lot of fun performing with and for one another.

In a time when people lament the lack of purpose and senseless violence so frequently seen in young people, I celebrate a group of college students who know both how to pray and how to laugh.

Thank You, dear Father, for the students of Taylor Fort Wayne. Deepen their love for You and for one another. May their lives always be lived in the joy of the Lord. Amen.

Dr. Robert Nienhuis
Vice President Fort Wayne Campus
Train up a child in the way he should go and in the end he will not depart from it (Proverbs 22:6).

Shani Gray was trained from childhood to believe that if you do your best, your hard work will pay off. It usually does, but for her, it did not come without a cost. As a child, Shani was raised to do well in school, make good friends, respect her family and above all, love the Lord. For the most part, these came easily for her. Academics were not difficult for her (in fact, she was the valedictorian of her senior class), she made friends who upheld the same moral values with which she was instilled (after a short bout, during her elementary years, in trouble making), loved and obeyed her parents and family, and from the age of eight she has loved and served the Lord.

Her commitment to live out her Christianity started at a young age. Having made the decision to follow Christ only four years earlier, at the age of 12, she became the assistant Sunday School teacher for the junior class (ages 10-16). She took full responsibility for the class at 16 and became the Sunday School secretary then as well. Her responsibilities did not end there. With her mother involved in Youth for Christ, Shani had a heritage of Christian service to fulfill.

Her feet were firmly planted as she entered high school. While Shani did not want to be involved in YFC, she decided if she did not, who would. It took awhile to build a solid group, but by the time Shani was a high school junior, 20-30 people consistently met for Bible Club. The only conflict for her was her emerging involvement in basketball. Bible Club was held Tuesday afternoons, and basketball practice was held each afternoon after school, unless there was a basketball game. Not letting go of what was dear to her, she decided she would attend Bible Club and go late to practice, much to her coach’s dismay. God honored her commitment and practice times were changed. Through her decision to attend the Bible Club meetings, she gained respect by others, but also realized the accountability that came with that recognition.

As she entered her final high school year, all the joys of being a senior seemed evident. Shani had the top grades of her class, was basically “guaranteed” a scholarship to a four year college, and had the love and support of her parents and family. As parents tell their children, nothing comes easily. Shani learned this disappointing truth in almost every area of her life that year.

As valedictorian of her class, and therefore class speaker, she was unable to make her speech as she had prepared it. On her way to the platform on graduation day, she was handed the speech she had written only to find it had been censored. And, the four year scholarships she was “guaranteed” were never offered to her...a valedictorian with nowhere to go. To add to her grief, her father had left her family that spring. With no where to go, and broken lives and dreams, hope seemed too much to hold on to.

This, as with all that God allows us to go through, has worked together for good. Growing up Shani never had to choose what to think and believe. Her parents had always done her thinking for her. Her father had given her goals and dreams; when he left, she had to think on her own. Now, she was left to wonder whose faith she had, her mom’s or her own? Although she faced difficult struggles during what should have been the best year of her life, they have also made her who she is today. She learned that even though it looked like she had it all, she didn’t have it without God.

Shani decided to attend Taylor Fort Wayne after she discovered it had many things to offer, an authentic Christian atmosphere, for her aching spirit; friendly students, professors and staff, for her hurting heart; and criminal justice, her intended major not offered at many other Christian colleges, for her academic challenge.

Shani came to Taylor Fort Wayne after a summer of grief to find healing for her wounds. She found a balm in the chapels, friends and professors. “Christ is evident in the lives on the Fort Wayne campus.”

ANNOUNCING THEOLOGICAL STUDIES CENTER

The Taylor University Theological Studies Center at Fort Wayne, in partnership with other seminaries, is being developed and implementation of this partnership is set for summer 1996! Two seminary level courses will be taught this summer, fall and next spring, with plans for additional instruction being offered based on registration. The courses taught this summer will be instructed by Winnebrenner Theological Seminary faculty, and fall courses will be instructed by Taylor University faculty. The concept of a theological studies center is based on cooperative programs and instruction of each participating seminary. A one year certificate will be offered by Taylor University and degrees attained will be granted by the sponsoring seminaries. The Center is the first of its kind with the idea to knit various seminaries in a consortium arrangement. The cost for graduate level study is $170 per credit hour, with the standard course being three credit hours. To register or for additional information, contact Stephen Resch, Associate Dean for Lifelong Learning, at 219-456-2111.

GRADUATE STUDIES

TUFW is once again offering summer graduate courses in education. Dr. Jay Platte taught the first graduate class in Taylor's history and returns to the classroom this summer to teach Computer Skills Classroom Application again. The increasing use of technology in the classroom and the growing need for teachers to be adequately prepared for this technology is a large reason for the graduate class' success. The three credit hour course will be offered both summer sessions at a cost of $525.00. For more information, contact the Taylor Fort Wayne Admissions Office.

PARLEZ-VOUS FRANCAIS?

Beginning this fall, TUFW will add French to her list of foreign languages taught on campus. Students pursuing a bachelor of arts degree must demonstrate the equivalent of two years of foreign language study for graduation, through either demonstrating proficiency of the foreign language in placement tests or in classroom instruction. Currently, Spanish, Greek and Hebrew are the languages offered on the Fort Wayne campus.

PIctured: Dr. Rick Gray, TUFW Urban Ministries; Justice Franklin Cleckley; Dr. Joseph Jones, TUFW Criminal Justice. Justice Franklin Cleckley is a native of West Virginia, a state that claims black residency of less than five percent. He was appointed to the state's supreme court last year by Governor Gaston Caperton. He is Virginia's first African American Justice and only the 17th African American to hold a seat in any state’s supreme court. Justice Cleckley spoke at a special lecture on Taylor Fort Wayne’s campus, February 15, during Black History Month.
CHAPLAINCY TRAINING SCHOOL

The American Chaplaincy Training School (ACTS), a nonprofit organization which offers specialized training for those who minister to offenders and their families, is now headquartered at Taylor Fort Wayne. The school offers a course in contextual ministry within criminal justice settings with their goal to equip students with theoretic concepts and ministry skills to effectively support institutional chaplaincy programs and community-based ministries directed toward at-risk groups. ACTS, founded in 1985, hosts an annual residence school where chaplains, ministers and volunteers nationwide come together for a week of intensive study. ACTS saw its largest residence gathering in its history last summer. The 13th annual ACTS, under the leadership of Dr. W. Thomas Beckner, ACTS president and TUFW faculty member, is scheduled for June 9-14, 1996. Upon completion of the course, a student will earn three hours of undergraduate or graduate college credit. For more information contact Taylor University at 219-456-2111.

The 1995 ACTS graduates, the largest group of graduates in ACTS' history!

TUFW OFFERS NEW MAJORS

Two new majors are coming to the criminal justice department and three new majors are being added to the Christian ministry department.

Students can major in criminal justice or now choose to major in law and justice, or justice and ministry. For pre-law students, the law and justice major is specifically designed to meet the expectations articulated by law schools throughout the United States. Those desiring to serve as chaplains, program administrators, or specialists in parachurch organizations or public/private agencies, will find the justice and ministry major better suited for them.

At TUFW students have been able to receive a degree in Christian ministries with a concentration in five areas, but beginning Fall 1996, they will have the option to major in pastoral, youth and urban ministries. The three areas, as well as cross cultural and music ministries, will still be offered as concentrations of the Christian ministries major.

A VISIT FROM THE TEACHER

On March 18, the Taylor Fort Wayne education department sponsored a lecture with the 1995 National Teacher of the Year, Mrs. Elaine Griffin. Griffin is a native of New York and was chosen because of her extraordinary innovations in curriculum and staffing, her multicultural vision for education, and her success in integrating school and community in two remote Alaskan villages over the past 20 years. Griffin, whose range of teaching excellence spans subject areas from kindergarten through high school, is credited with expanding and significantly improving the educational, social and cultural environments of Akhiok and Chiniak villages on Kodiak Island, Alaska.

ENGLISH MAJOR ADDED

Taylor Fort Wayne announces its development of an English major, planned to begin fall of 1996. The major will prepare students for professions that require strong communication skills, the ability to think critically, and evaluate and synthesize material. The curriculum is planned for gradual implementation with additional course offerings to be added upon academic approval.

B.S. DEGREE OFFERED IN BUSINESS

The business department excitedly announces the addition of a new degree to its program. This fall, TUFW students will be able to receive a bachelor of arts or science in business. The addition of the business information applications (bachelor of science in business) degree, under the direction of Dr. Bob Aldredge, will be implemented on a gradual basis, allowing 1996 incoming freshmen the opportunity to pursue the degree.
FORT WAYNE FOCUS

JEREMIAH PEOPLE TO PERFORM

Taylor University presents the Jeremiah People, Friday, April 26.

The Jeremiah People, a ministry of The Continentals, will be performing a brand new musical entitled, "Everyday Heroes."

The program explores the heart of today's family in a musical/comedy format, and examines the lives and relationships of ordinary people who are also extraordinary heroes.

A WINNING SEASON

With one of the most difficult schedules in the past four years, the TUFW men's basketball team turned a slow beginning into a winning season. Bud Hamilton, team coach, said, "The improved play of Rick Merrill, who broke a school record with eight three-point baskets in one game, the floor leadership of Jon Yeh, and the consistent play of Chad Leichty and Jason Berkhalter contributed to the turn around." Seniors Chad Leichty, Jason Berkhalter, Mark Hammond and Jon Yeh will be leaving with numerous accomplishments.

SEMESTER ABROAD

Kelly Phillips, TUFW junior and Christian ministries major is studying abroad this semester at Daystar University, Nairobi, Kenya. Besides studying, non-academic activities for Kelly have included visiting the Maasai tribe, going on a safari and teaching English to orphan street boys. In a letter received by Kelly, she says, "Most of the students here are not Christians so I am excited for the work God has for me here."

March 8, marked the official date that TUFW juniors were "bagged" by the Fort Wayne Alumni Office. As freshmen, students receive Taylor leather key chains, as sophomores they are inducted into the alumni association and receive a class mug, as juniors they receive garment bags, and as seniors they receive a towel at graduation symbolizing servanthood, along with their diplomas. Nate Hoot, Tui Walcott and Dr. Nienhuis enjoyed the pizza and fellowship.

UPLAND UPDATE

TAYLOR UPLAND STUDENTS LEAP FOR RECORD

Sub-freezing temperatures did not deter the 501 Taylor Upland students who participated in a unique observation of Leap Year '96. The students circled the 1.1 mile campus loop for a giant game of leap frog. The leapers attempted to set a world record for number of contestants in the game. Inter-Class Council (ICC) officers sent the tabulated results to officials of the Guinness Book of World Records for hopeful inclusion in a first-time category.

BASKETBALL TEAMS ENJOY SUCCESSFUL SEASONS

The Trojan and Lady Trojan basketball teams advanced to conference tournament finals and combined for 47 wins during the 1995-96 season. The Lady Trojans entered the conference tournament as top seed but were eliminated for the second straight year in the championship game. Overall, the women set or tied nine records this year.

The Trojans rebounded from last year's 17-14 record as they rolled to a 23-12 record and an at-large bid to the NAIA Division II National Tournament in Nampa, Idaho. Three of the Trojans' 12 losses came at the hands of top-ranked and defending national champion Bethel, including a 76-62 loss in the conference championship game.
When Taylor Fort Wayne introduced public relations as a major in 1993, Lance Stiver was the first to sign up. Stiver, then a freshman, knew he had a heart for ministry, but did not sense a calling to traditional vocational ministry like his father. Instead, he wanted to use his communication skills in more of a non-traditional ministry role.

Now a junior, he is one of more than a dozen students who have majors or minor areas of concentration in Christian ministries and some area of communication (public relations or communication studies). And the numbers continue to rise. In fact, enough Christian ministry majors have declared communication minors that they are the largest minors on campus.

The director of Fort Wayne's communication arts department, Mark Vermillion, believes the combination is a strong and natural one....

Public relations has as one of its primary roles to keep relationships strong between an organization and its various constituencies. That organization may be a hospital, a corporation, a government entity or a Christian university. But it may also be a parachurch or church ministry. And understanding how to communicate well in these ministry contexts is crucial to the effectiveness of the ministry.

My heart is in ministry. I've worked for corporations and for-profit entities, but my foremost calling is to church and ministry organizations. I think that is why I readily connect with students who have an interest in being ministry communicators.

Vermillion has used his ministry research, experience and influence for the benefit of his students -- both in and out of class.

In his interpersonal communication class, he spends much of the semester developing biblical foundations for communication and relationships. In his public speaking and public relations courses, he helps students make applications to nonprofit, parachurch and church settings.

Outside of class, he has helped several students gain valuable internship experience with nonprofit organizations.

In January, Stiver interned for the American Red Cross. This summer, he has his sights set on either Promise Keepers in Denver, or Focus on the Family in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Others have served as interns or done class projects for a number of nonprofits: Concordia Theological Seminary, StillWater Ministries, Abundant Life Ministries, Senator Dan Coates, local Christian radio stations and others.

Junior Hans Kindsgrab has chosen to double-major in Christian ministries and public relations, with the primary intention of being a pastor. Hans shares, I think it's a great combination because public relations will help me be a better spoken, written and interpersonal communicator. It will help me be a better pastor.

In addition to helping students be better pastors, public relations prepares them to serve other vital communication roles in the church and parachurch organizations.

Students are trained to: write and design newsletters, brochures, posters, annual reports, books and manuals; work with other forms of media and the news media; plan and promote special events such as conferences and concerts; work with fund raising campaigns and donors; work in cross-cultural ministries; develop interdependent relationships with other organizations who have similar missions; develop a stronger overall communication environment.

In addition to a strong ministry focus in the public relations program, there is also a strong professional orientation. Even this side of the program has given students a chance to be salt and light in the Fort Wayne community. Students gain a strong base in biblical ethics that many are unwilling to compromise. This causes them, at times, to stand out.

Vermillion shares the story of a public relations professional who came into one classroom to give a guest lecture. In his lecture, he clearly showed that his organization had violated ethical standards for the profession. The students were "kind, but firm" in asking him tough questions about his actions.

Vermillion noted, After the lecture, he asked me to come and give a workshop on ethics to his public relations staff. My students made him stop and think about how unethical his organization had been.

THANK YOU FORT WAYNE ALUMNI!!!
Together in His Service . . .
God so loved the world that he gave . . .
This is the motivation and the model for all of our lives. Our life properly understood is a stewardship of the time, talents and resources. It is to me a great mystery, yet a great source of joy, to realize that God allows us to be co-participants with Him in carrying out His divine purposes. There would be no Taylor University without the support of individuals committed to being faithful to the great commission by their giving. I speak in gratitude for future generations who will be impacted by these gifts as indeed we all are by God’s unspeakable gift of Jesus Christ to the world.

Tradition and Heritage . . .
There are numerous times when we are reminded that the traditions and heritage of Taylor University are very permanently impressed on our minds. It is on those occasions that we hope Taylor University will never change. It is amazing how all of us who work at Taylor feel the same.

Obviously, financial resources do not assure us that Taylor will always be what each might remember; however, your gifts will help keep the people and academic programs in place that bring pleasure to our Heavenly Father.

The faithful financial support from alumni, friends and employees of Taylor University is very important to her stability. We express gratitude for that faithfulness. Taylor University is your University and it is dependent on your support. May we count on you for the future?

Thank you!
Two little words yet so important! Two little words that seem to be inadequate to convey our deepest appreciation for your financial gifts and prayer support over the past year.

We may not say it often enough and we may not say it well enough, so let me say it again — Thank You!

Thank you for standing with us in this ministry. Thank you for helping students obtain a Christian education in preparation for a lifetime of ministry. Thank you for making a difference.

Being at Taylor has taught me how to respond to the challenges of life that I will encounter. I've been stretched as an individual to embrace life with a positive attitude believing God's faithfulness will carry me. Taylor will always be special to me even after I have graduated.

— Sarah C. Burke

The memories and experiences I've had at Taylor are irreplaceable. It is while here that I trained for the pastorate, married my high school sweetheart, and forged strong friendships. I have been taught many things here at Taylor but probably the most important of all was the ability to teach myself. For this I will always be grateful.

Taylor University has helped me to broaden my perspective of life. My education has provided many opportunities for me to gain experience working locally in my field of study. Also, the spiritual emphasis of community life has been a real encouragement to me through my experience at Taylor.
— Nate Hoot

My four years here at Taylor have definitely been life-changing. Fort Wayne has challenged me intellectually, spiritually, and socially. I thank God for allowing me the great experience at Taylor.

You do enjoy one of the biggest experiences of your life, come find out what it is.

Being at TUFW has been a very growing experience for me. Taylor has provided not only a place, but also an atmosphere promoting growth. Various ministry opportunities have challenged me to leave my comfort zone and because of this, grow closer to the Lord. I have been challenged both mentally and spiritually in the classroom. Also, I have found excellent role models here who love the Lord and have taken the time to help me grow as an individual.

The professors and faculty at Taylor are a constant example of Christians in the real world. What they stand for and what they teach is the foundation for my dedication for putting Christ in my career. This is what Taylor means to me.

The education at Taylor is outstanding! The professors here are incredible. Never have I been so challenged and stretched to make use of my abilities. The teachers are not only excellent in their teaching methods, but in their concern for the students and their love for the Lord is evident. The education experience that I have received will no doubt help me throughout my lifetime.
— Nicole Wireman

I praise God for giving me the privilege of studying here at TUFW. During my experience here, the Lord has drawn me closer to Himself, enabled me to see the world through His eyes, and allowed me to see more clearly His specific will for my life. The training I receive in the classroom and in the off-campus outreach ministries I am involved in have been humbling, challenging, stretching, and very practical.
— Henry Farr
The familiar words of the song, Wind Beneath My Wings, have been on my lips numerous times over the last several months as the prayers of WBCL's listeners have literally "carried" us through the changes of life. The instant death (in a car accident) of our beloved co-worker, Jeff Carlson, who was operations manager and morning announcer for 18 years, left us reeling in grief. But the prayers, cards and letters of thousands have brought healing and renewed hope to the WBCL team.

With Sharathon '96, the reorganization of WBCL, relicensing of both stations and equipment installation already facing us for early 1996, that Friday in December found us asking how we could ever go on with such a heavy load amidst our grief. Ultimately we found that the answer was not profound.

It was a matter of leaning totally on God while simply putting one foot in front of the other to get the job done. And that has brought us to this point of praise as we have watched God do what we could never have done for ourselves.

We are praising God for:

Sharathon '96, where the goal of $750,000 was exceeded by $85,000. The amount beyond the goal will be used to purchase the $120,000 digital studio equipment package which Jeff had been researching for the nine months prior to his death. The equipment installation will be completed in late summer in Studio A which will be renamed the Jeff Carlson Studio.

Tim Yazel, who joined us on March 1, as assistant manager for operations. What a joy to have someone on the team with both electronic and computer expertise.

The finalizing of the applications for relicensing both 90.3 FM and 89.5 FM. This lengthy application must be filed with the Federal Communications Commission every six years.

The finalizing of the application for a new 501.C3 tax exemption number. Under WBCL's reorganization as Taylor University Broadcasting, Inc., a tax exemption separate from that of Taylor University was necessary so we could continue as a not-for-profit organization. The hours on this application for both the Federal IRS and the State IRS made relicensing seem like a "piece of cake!"

(WBCL is still owned by Taylor University, but is now a separate corporation with a separate board of directors.)

Phil Reaser, who will join us on May 6, as morning announcer. Having worked in secular radio for many years as a non-believer, Phil is excited to be able to share his faith via Christian radio. Pray for Phil as he and his family move from Alaska where Phil is an instructor at Alaska Bible Institute.

The accomplishments of the last few months are not a matter of "been there, done that," but the reality of God is here! God is doing this!

-Char Binkley, General Manager
Since coming to Taylor, my life has made a dramatic change. My outlook on life and the way I view things is so much better now. My professors that I have had have really challenged me to grow spiritually and gain a deeper desire to know God in a way like never before. Most importantly, my relationship with God has changed and the happiness I now have in knowing God is so exciting.

— Jeremy Short

Taylor University means more than just academics and career training. It means growing in the Lord and building friendships that last a lifetime.

Taylor University Fort Wayne means opportunity. It provides opportunity to look at things in new ways and broaden my education. It provides opportunity to make new friends, to build new relationships, to make practical application of new skills, and to participate in internships that provide valuable training for my new vocation in pastoral ministries. It provides opportunity to interact with dedicated caring faculty, staff and students who also profess Jesus Christ as Savior.
