SUMMIT EXPEDITION: A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

by: Dr. Douglas Barcalow
Associate Professor of Christian Education

"I Hated the Trip!" "I Really Enjoyed My Trip!"

These two brief quotes not only summarize the range of emotions connected with the recent Summit Expedition, but provide a study in educational irony, especially when it is noted that both come from the same student journal.

On May 14, professors Doug Barcalow and Gary Litwiller led a group of six students on a five-day trip into southern Wisconsin. Utilizing a Christian Education course in wilderness camping, this group not only developed basic camping skills, but more importantly learned some lasting lessons about themselves, their companions, and God's creation.

Included in the trip were outdoor experiences in tenting, fire building, cooking over an open fire, canoeing, and rappelling. Along with these experiences came lectures and demonstrations in astronomy, orientating, meal-planning and preparation, and safety. Additionally, the group had opportunity to observe the geological variety available in southern Wisconsin. This ranged from the rolling Kettle Moraine area to the granite cliffs of Devils Lake.

However, the strength of the trip was not the topography nor the camping; it was the insights the students gained and the leadership they developed. Their comments provide an idea of how effective such an educational environment can be.

"It was not just a wilderness experience, but a life learning experience."

"I learned how to overcome defeats, to continue on . . . to be flexible, to work together as a team, to trust in others' abilities, to accept people for who they are, and to appreciate God's beautiful creation."

"I can look back on this trip when hard times come and know that I am able to overcome them with the help of not only God, but others as well."

In my years as a pastor I always felt that baptismal services were the focus of what ministry was all about. When I had the privilege of baptizing new believers, I knew that all of our various ministries were worth it.

I have found in my work with Summit Christian College that graduation serves the same purpose for me. Just about the time I am getting upset with all of the detail involved in operating an institution of higher education, a graduation ceremony comes along to make it all worthwhile. This year's commencement was my fourth. That means that for the first time there were graduates receiving degrees who started here at Summit at the same time I did. I found special satisfaction in handing out those diplomas this year! What a thrill to know that these men and women were about to embark on a lifetime of service (with an additional stop for graduate school for many of them).

While most of you could not actually be here for those commencement exercises, I hope you also feel a little bit of the satisfaction I feel in knowing that your prayers, gifts, and encouragement are an integral part of the investment in the lives of people here at Summit. Our graduates are making a difference in the lives of people today . . . but perhaps more importantly, they are making a difference in the lives of people for an eternity. Thanks for being partners with us! ■

SUMMIT GRADUATES 60 STUDENTS

First Graduation Ceremony to be Held In the New Activities Center!

1990 graduate Jill Swanson

Graduation ceremonies took place Saturday, May 12, with 60 students completing their studies, turning their tassels, and ready to put their training to work.

Dr. Charles Lake, founding pastor and currently senior pastor of the Community Church of Greenwood, Greenwood, Indiana, addressed the 1990 graduates.

He challenged them to remember three truths:

- 1). Christ is still the answer,
- 2). The Church is still God's agency for change, and
- 3). The Christian is still God's tool for change in the world.

An added point of excitement this year was graduation being held in the College's new Activities Center, allowing for a new atmosphere and more space for the event. ■

Miss Joy Gerig Resigns After 31 Years of Impacting Lives

*Joy . . . her life reflects her name. She has an unquestioned love for Jesus Christ. She has an unfailing belief in people and is committed to the success of others." - Dr. Jay Platte
Professor of Music,
Summit Christian College*

After 31 years with Summit Christian College, Joy Gerig has hung out her "retirement" sign, but not before making a lasting impact on thousands of lives.

Joy came to the College in 1959. For the 1959-60 academic year she wore many hats, including secretary to several administrators, assistant to the dean of women, and Bethany dorm supervisor. For her services she earned a whopping $2,400!

The College administration recognized Joy's gift of leadership and in 1960 appointed her acting director of Christian service. The next year she became the College's first full-time director of Christian service.

Hiring Joy as director was a big step of advancement for the College. The Bible College movement was striving for an increase in strengthening Christian service programs. Little did the College know the increase Joy would bring to Christian service at the College and throughout the United States. In 1961 the College required Christian service assignments, but with only part-time direction there was little time for follow-up, evaluation, and organization.

LAYING THE GROUND WORK

Joy took her task seriously! With the prayers, encouragement, and direction of Dr. Edward and Dr. Francis Simpson, Joy visited other Christian Service Departments. She visited London Bible College of Ontario, Canada, Moody Bible Institute, and Columbia Bible College. Joy shares,

"The program at Columbia was extensive involving weekly coaching classes, faculty observation and evaluation. I left there praying to God to give me the wisdom to lay the ground work at Fort Wayne patterned after Columbia."

The years have passed and Joy has done much more than just lay the ground work. The Summit Christian College Christian Service Department is a model to Bible Colleges throughout the United States and Canada.

In fact, Joy helped to establish the Association of Christian Service Personnel (ACSP). ACSP exists for the purpose of strengthening Christian service programs through professional development and resource sharing.

Founded in 1980, ACSP has grown from 43 to 105 members in ten years. Seventy-six colleges are represented with 60% of the Association of American Bible Colleges' (AABC) schools as members.

MOST INFLUENTIAL C. S. PERSON

As Dick Baxter, Summit's assistant director of Christian service, comments,

"Joy has been and is the most influential Christian service person in the United States and Canada."

Randy Bell, AABC president, chimes in,

"I hold Joy in the highest respect and esteem. She has been an invaluable resource in the Bible College movement."

Joy has had a very busy and productive career at Summit Christian College. When asked what has been the highlight, she responded,

"My most gratifying experience was in 1988 when we began the academic internship program at the College. Every student is required to have a one semester (pastoral ministry majors four semesters) Christian service internship which correlates with their academic major. It is a thrill to see students performing Christian service in the areas they are preparing for a future."

Summit Christian College has not allowed Joy to leave quietly. Among her many "wishing you well" retirement activities, there has been induction into Delta Epsilon Chi, the honor society of AABC, during the annual Alumni Banquet, and receiving the status of Associate Professor Emeritus from the Summit Governing Board. Joy is only the fifth person to receive such an honor at Summit.

"JOY GERIG DAY"

April 20 was deemed as "Joy Gerig Day." The day started with a very special "Mid-Morning" program on WBCL dedicated to Joy. Family, friends, and co-workers from near and far (as far as Guam and Ecuador) extended their appreciation and well wishes to her.

During the radio program, no one seemed to be able to describe Joy and what she has meant to them in just a few words . . . except maybe Steve Gardner when he shared that Joy is "the closest thing to an angel!"

The rest of the day many others stopped by the Christian service office for food and fellowship with Joy.

What does retirement hold for Joy?

"I am going to welcome the slower pace. I believe I am leaving the Christian Service Department at a good time and place in its development . . . It has come a long way and I leave it in good hands. I am ready to travel more, speak more, and spend more time with my family."

Joy has totally given of herself to Summit and simple words of gratification are not adequate to convey Summit's deep appreciation and respect for her.

There is no better way to conclude this tribute to Joy than by closing with her words.

"My prayer for many years has been to learn to know God better and share that learning with others. I never dreamed of the ways God would answer and give me the satisfaction of a full life. I am not afraid of the future, for my faith and trust in God has only increased over these years. Praise the Lord! ■"

NCA CONDUCTS ACCREDITATION REVIEW

by: Richard Baxter
Self Study Coordinator

On April 2-4, 1990, Summit Christian College hosted a team of four evaluators from the North Central Association of Colleges and Universities. Their purpose was to conduct a comprehensive evaluation to determine if North Central should grant continued accreditation to the College.

Two years before the visit, a self-study committee began the process of examining how the College meets the requirements and criteria of the North Central Association. At the conclusion of the two-year examination, the College published a Self-Study Report. The report describes and evaluates how the College meets the North Central criteria for accreditation. This report serves as the College's formal application to North Central for continued accreditation. The North Central team uses the Self-Study Report as the basis for their evaluation.

For two days the team of consultant-evaluators visited with representatives of the Board of Governors and held open meetings with faculty members and representative students. They also had individual meetings with virtually all faculty and administrative officers. In addition, they conducted a thorough walk-through of campus facilities. They reviewed the self-study document, course syllabi, faculty credentials, yearly audits, minutes of pertinent committees, and other College publications.

Before leaving campus, they met with the President and his Cabinet and the self-study committee. The team shared that they would recommend continued accreditation on the basis that the College fulfilled the requirements as outlined by the North Central Association. They noted the following seven strengths of the College:

1. Academic Programs. The academic programs are carefully thought out, well planned, and clearly integrated into the mission of the College.

2. Faculty. They are dedicated, qualified, and committed to teaching, to the mission of the College, and to their students.

3. Administrative Leadership. The leadership is well respected.

4. The Campus. The campus is attractive and well maintained with minimal deferred maintenance.

5. Positive Morale. Given the prevailing financial constraints, a strong sense of positive morale exists throughout the campus.

6. Name Change. The College's constituencies perceive the recent name change to "Summit Christian College" as a positive step forward for the institution.

7. Student Body. The student body is diverse and exhibits a high sense of unity and strong loyalty to the institution.

Summit's student body . . . diverse, high sense of unity, strong loyalty.

The team noted that the College will need to give continued attention to the admission and retention of qualified students. The College will need to reduce the current fund deficit, increase faculty salaries, and provide adequate long range planning.

Disturbance in Liberia is Felt by Summit Student

When Van Duitsman hears the Liberia warfare reports, they are more than passing thoughts!

Van grew up in Liberia as his parents worked with Bible translation with the Krahn tribe, the tribe in the middle of all of the conflict. Van describes the situation,

"The current problem in Liberia boils down to major tribal conflict. Several Krahn leaders have had a history of brutally mistreating the Giyo tribe. The Giyo tribe, and many other people, now want revenge and will have it when Krahn rule is overthrown."

The warfare has grown so intense the majority of missionaries in Liberia have left to safer ground. Van's parents, John and Kathy Duitsman, are no exception.

"My parents have been involved in church planting, but have left the country for their safety. They are currently in the states for my sister's wedding and to wait for things to cool down in Liberia."

The situation in Liberia is very close to Van's heart and he asks that we pray very specifically. Prayer concerns include:

- * Safety for the Krahn tribe and for many of Van's friends as they fear the loss of life.
- * That Liberian Christians will remain strong and will resist the powerful temptation to regress to old habits of tribal warfare.
- * That despite a tough situation, the church will grow. (Romans 8:28) ■

"I learned to take on some challenges without first thinking that I can't do it."

"Before I started to take my first climb I had confidence in my abilities . . . (later) I began to trust more in the climbing and rappelling tools and the people using them. . ."

"I have often read and studied the words of Isaiah that say 'the whole earth is full of His glory.' Recently I had the chance to experience these words."

The expedition was a great success. It supported the College's belief that putting training into practice is true education! ■

The visiting team submitted a report of their findings to the College shortly after their visit. Included in the report were the following statements:

The faculty at Summit Christian College remains one of the institution's greatest strengths . . . Those students met by the team expressed considerable appreciation for the faculty and the quality of education they were receiving . . . The Biblical Studies Division is at the heart of the academic program. . . The general studies component is an integral part of a student's education at Summit Christian College. . . For a small college, the strength of the music department is impressive . . . The Christian Service Program is much more than a requirement for graduation; it is an integral and outstanding component of the Summit Christian College education; it is well organized and effective in coordinating students from across all academic programs with extensive community resources . . . The S.A. Lehman Memorial Library is a strength of the College.

The continuation of institutional accreditation with the North Central Association provides for members of the public, alumni, and prospective students that Summit Christian College has been found to be operating at generally satisfactory levels with reasonable grounds for believing that it will continue to do so. Accreditation provides public certification of acceptable institutional quality and an opportunity and incentive for institutional self-improvement. ■
