STUDENTS TAKE EDUCATION ABROAD
By Professor Gerald Steele, World Mission Program Director

This September an exciting "first" will take place for sixteen Fort Wayne Bible College junior and senior World Mission majors and one World Mission Professor. It's the "first-ever" Semester Abroad Program for the College. For me, watching this concept birth, develop, and mature is exciting. The enthusiastic responses from mentors, faculty colleagues, constituents, and students prove this is definitely an idea whose time has come!

The Semester Abroad Program idea began two years ago through a conversation with Bill Gerig, Director of Alumni and Church Relations. Bill and I both spent time abroad as missionaries. We also share a mutual concern for the cross-cultural education of would-be-missionaries.

As the idea began to take shape, Brazil seemed like the logical place to begin since I was an urban church planter in that country for a number of years. And, right now the program is a reality. Participating students currently spend Saturday afternoons in pre-field orientation sessions. These sessions include everything from general information to language labs.

In the Fall we will all be living individually in Brazilian homes. Our daily schedule will include missions classes in the mornings, lunch together, and Portuguese lessons. Late afternoons, evenings, and weekends will find us participating in real life field situations.

The students in the Semester Abroad Program will receive a full semester of college credit. The emphasis during the semester will be to integrate classroom exercises with ministry experience. For example, during the semester these students will take Cross-Cultural Evangelism. Students will have many opportunities to translate textbook theory into practice. Other courses taught during the semester include Brazilian Area Study, Roman Catholicism, and Portuguese. The host Brazilian church will provide each student with a variety of field work options.

Obviously, I am excited about the semester abroad program. Through our semester in Brazil, sixteen prospective missionaries will gain an understanding of the task that awaits them when they graduate from Fort Wayne Bible College and venture out to minister all over the world.

PRESIDENT'S PERSPECTIVE

What is a Bible College?

What is a Bible College? My first reaction was to not even raise this question with the readers of Summit Record. After all, you are people who have connection with Fort Wayne Bible College or you wouldn't be receiving this mailing in the first place!

I am discovering, however, that there is a fair bit of errant perception about "Bible College" today. I hear statements like, "Bible College is where you go if you can't get into a real school," or, "What kind of job do you get after you just study the Bible?" or, "Aren't all students at the Bible College planning to be pastors?" It is especially disconcerting when I run into many people in our churches who assume that studying at the Bible College is less rigorous intellectually than studying at a liberal arts school. Often the very name, "Bible College" triggers these wrong perceptions.

So, what is a Bible College? In the case of Fort Wayne Bible College, it is a four-year, degree granting, fully accredited institution preparing people for helping and ministry-related vocations. Each student, in addition to their full program of general studies (liberal arts) and professional studies (vocational major) carries a major in Bible and theology. This allows people to be fully prepared people for service for Christ in a variety of vocations. Like any other college, many of our students go on for graduate studies to build on their education at FWBC. Others enter directly into a career in some helping profession.

Frankly, we could use your help in exploding the myths about Bible College. We're even thinking about selecting a name that would have less misconception associated with it. We are committed to what we are doing and feel we do it well! We are excited that we are contributing something to the educational landscape that very few others are doing. We are disturbed, however, when we are perceived as something different than what we really are.

Your help in setting the story straight is appreciated. You can help us continue to be a serious educational institution doing a quality work for the sake of the kingdom. You can help us continue to send people not only into the pastoral and missionary work, but into other significant helping professions as competent, committed, servant-leaders for Jesus Christ. Spread the good and accurate word about Fort Wayne Bible College!

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS RETURNS TO COLLEGE TO ADDRESS GRADUATES

Fort Wayne Bible College welcomed alumnus Bill Pannell to the campus pulpit as commencement speaker.

Dr. Pannell is a 1951 graduate of FWBC and he did additional undergraduate study at Wayne State University in black history studies. He holds the M.A. in social ethics from the University of Southern California and in 1975 was awarded the Doctor of Divinity degree (honoris causa) from Malone College.

From 1951 to 1974, Dr. Pannell was an evangelist. His leadership is evidenced by his work as Associate Director for Training for YFC (1964-68), Associate Evangelist/Vice President of Tom Skinner Associates (1968-74), member of the Fuller Seminary Board of Trustees (1971-74), and as a participant and speaker at various national and world congresses on evangelism.

Dr. Pannell has lectured widely on college seminary campuses, on issues in evangelism, ethnic studies, evangelism methodology, and preaching. He has been a Staley Foundation Lecturer, has delivered the Berger Lectures on Preaching at Dubuque Theological Seminary (1978), and has served as a delegate at the Oxford Institute of Methodist Theological Studies.

Since 1974, Dr. Pannell has served on the faculty of Fuller Theological Seminary. His writings have appeared in such journals as Eternity, The Other Side, Christianity Today, Sojourners, and Leadership.

Joy Gerig, Director of Christian Service, converses with Dr. Pannell following his graduation address.
All colleges have general education requirements and therefore all college faculty must cope with student misconceptions about these requirements. Students ask, "Why does a pastor need to know how to write?" "Why does a missionary need to know history?" "Why should a counselor study literature?" "Why should a Christian care about art?" These questions grow from student beliefs that the result of an education should be a job and that education for jobs consists of acquiring job-related skills. This practical bias is contemporary society often prevents students (and others) from understanding the value of general education.

Perhaps the best way to understand general studies is to think of vision. A common phrase in contemporary culture is "worldview". CBS News even sells Dan Rather by talking about "American Vision, World View". Much of Christian higher education is discussing the development of Christian worldview. What is "worldview"? It is the pair of glasses used to look at life as created by God, as corrupted by sin, and as redeemable through Christ. Now, a good prescription for glasses will have certain characteristics. It will enable the wearer to discover God's creative hand in the vast expanses of the universe, in the details of a microscope, and in the living machinery of the human body. A good prescription will allow the wearer to see God's work across the sweep of history and in the processes of individual human minds. A good prescription will guide the wearer to see clearly the characteristics of audiences, making possible effective communication.

A good prescription will equip the wearer to discover truth in the written expression of others who have attempted to describe human interaction with each other and with God. A good prescription will, in short, allow the wearer to see clearly both the world with God and the world without God.

Obviously, such a prescription takes time. In fact, the process is begun rather than completed while a person is in college. General studies courses provide introductions to the concepts of biology and literature, history and psychology, health and communication, art and anthropology, music and sociology. From this introduction, the student must develop the vision, training the eyes of the mind and heart and soul to discern God's working in the world. If the introduction is clear, the student will have the tools to continue the learning. The value of General Studies is not, then, in "job skills" but rather in the development of the person who is doing the job.

The General Studies faculty are working to provide a proper prescription. New teaching approaches, new assignments, and new courses are constantly developed to make the introductions as meaningful as possible. For example, "English Composition" assignments are tied to majors, helping students see the importance of clear expression in their professions. Courses like "Global Poverty" blend sociology, economics, and history to show the complexity of our world and the need to think carefully about the implications of solutions to complex issues. As one sign of what others think about the importance of our work, the Lilly Foundation recently granted Eunice Conrad (Literature) funds to develop a course in Third World novels, a course which will use literature to help students understand the culture of the non-Western peoples.

Believing that the best way to teach effectively is to stay involved in professional activity, our faculty work far beyond the classroom. Sonja Strahm (Composition), Jim Saddington (History), Mark Gerig (Psychology), and Jon Swanson (Speech) are in various stages of graduate work in their respective fields. Deb Rupp (Physical Education) has served as Athletic Director this year and has been heavily involved in athletic conference leadership. After nearly five years at the College, Fred Van Dyke (Biology) moved to Montana to work as a researcher with the Department of Wildlife. John Schutt (Biology) will join the College in September, coming from the University of Tennessee with a reputation as an innovative teacher and a solid researcher.

Educational theorists argue that truly effective colleges must have innovative, creative, and integrative General Studies programs. Fort Wayne Bible College is working toward that goal, believing that a Bible College has a unique responsibility to prepare effective servant-leaders — effective because they have the prescription for clear vision.

Jon Swanson is Assistant Professor of Speech and Broadcasting. He holds a BA from Wheaton College, a MA from Northern Illinois University, and is a PhD candidate at the University of Texas.
Alumni Awards 16 Scholarships for the 1988-89 School Year

During Alumni Chapel on April 5, 1988, the Alumni Association awarded sixteen $700 scholarships. Scholarship recipients are listed on the right hand side of this page.

STUDENT RECEIVES UNUSUAL SCHOLARSHIP

Aletha Petro, a Fort Wayne Bible College student, received an unusual $500 scholarship from the Carr Co. This was accomplished through a unique bartering system operated by Educational Assistance Ltd. (EAL), a non-profit organization.

Recently the Carr Co. donated surplus goods to EAL. Fort Wayne Bible College accepted these goods from EAL in exchange for tuition credits equal in value to the donated items. Aletha Petro received her scholarship from part of these tuition credits.

This makes everyone a winner! CORPORATIONS benefit by receiving the tax write-off on the goods and services generously donated to make this opportunity available; COLLEGES benefit by receiving materials they need and students who might not have otherwise enrolled; STUDENTS benefit by receiving the financial assistance needed to pursue a college education.

CAPITAL CAMPAIGN UPDATE

The life of a Capital Campaign is intriguing. Surges of commitments are followed by periods of anticipation which yield surges of giving.

We are excited about the progress of FWBC's "Bridge to the Future" campaign. In three phases, the campaign has sought $3.2 million to retire high interest indebtedness, construct a permanent home for radio station WBCL, and build a multi-purpose Activities Center for the campus and constituency.

Phase I saw commitments of nearly $1 million from the Board of Governors for debt reductions. On August 30, 1987, WBCL dedicated its new home after raising some $600,000 through the special 1986 Sharathon.

At this writing, Phase III is within $206,000 of completion. To date, $467,000 of the $500,000 Lilly Endowment matching grant is subscribed. In addition to timely gifts from private donors, the College recently received awards from the Bryon H. Somers Foundation, Knight Foundation, Krouse, Kern and Company, Krouse Foundation, and C & E Schust Foundation.
TWO ALUMNI HONORED

The faculty of Fort Wayne Bible College has elected two distinguished alumni to membership in Delta Epsilon Chi, the Honor Society of the American Association of Bible Colleges. Four students from the Class of 1988 were also honored with Delta Epsilon Chi memberships: Sherri Harris (Winchester, IN), Sally Reed (Fort Wayne, IN), Sally Slotterback (Ashland, PA), and Bradley Ulick (Springfield, IL).

MISS GERALDINE GERIG

After graduating from Fort Wayne Bible College in 1948 and Swedish Covenant School of Nursing (Chicago) in 1952, Geraldine made plans for missionary service in Sierra Leone, West Africa. Beginning in July of 1955 until the present she has given of herself unselfishly for the Kuranko tribes people of northeast Sierra Leone. For most of those 33 years Geraldine served at the Yifin Clinic, the only "modern" medical facility for the Kuranko people in a 2,000 square mile area. She has also been involved in translation, bookkeeping, and special ministries to Kuranko women.

DR. THOMAS YOUNGER

Church Planting is an important concept in Christian ministry today. Few men or women have been used of the Lord more effectively in church planting than Tom Younger and his wife Davina. Beginning with a church planting effort with seven families in Arcanum, OH the Youngers have spent most of their years of ministry either in starting churches or in encouraging and training others to do so. Tom served as pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church in Fort Wayne for seventeen years. It was during that time that he completed the Bachelor of Arts degree at Fort Wayne Bible College in 1968. Also during that time, under Tom’s leadership, Immanuel Baptist Church developed a church planting strategy which resulted in 12 different independent sister churches being started in the Fort Wayne Area. One of those churches is Blackhawk Baptist Church, now one of Fort Wayne’s largest churches.

In 1970 Tom was awarded the Doctor of Divinity Degree from Cedarville College where he serves on the Board of Trustees. From 1973 to 1982 he served as President of Western Baptist College in Salem, Oregon. For the last six years the Youngers have been ministering at the First Baptist Church of Walnut Creek, CA.

DON'T MISS IT NEXT YEAR -- MAY 5, 1989
AN OPEN LETTER TO T.V. EVANGELISTS...

Dear Sir:

In this year of major catastrophes for T.V. evangelists, I hesitate to add to your list of headaches. However, while you are undoubtedly scrutinizing your own ministry for potential land mines, this may be a good time to also rethink your "give-a-gift-to-get-a-gift" philosophy. I refer to your weekly free gift offer which strategically placed at the end of every broadcast, attempts (with varying degrees of taste) to entice viewers to send a donation to your ministry.

Over the months, I have been offered free medallions; books on all topics; glow-in-the-dark praying hands; gold-plated, cross-shapped pilgrimage to the Holy Land. All these are "free" if I write you this week "remembering that it is only through donations like mine that this ministry is possible."

Though this is undoubtedly true, I am offended by this saccharine and slightly underhanded way of offering a gift for a gift. If God is using your ministry, I believe He can and will prompt me to give so it may continue without the bribe of a genuine leather Bible cover inscribed with my name. It bothers me that a percentage of my gift must go to purchase these tokens, knowing that a high enough portion of each donation already is allocated for "overhead expenses."

Realizing that not everyone shares my irritation, I would like to suggest you compromise by extending your gift-for-a-gift offer only every other Sunday. This way, those who like the incentives would still have them available on a regular basis. Meanwhile, those of us who would rather skip the promotional talk in favor of a five minute longer sermon could tune in on alternate Sundays.

Not only would this compromise keep your viewers happy, it would also give you an added promotional gift: a free calendar listing the Sundays with and without a "free gift" ending. Even I will send for that one.

Sincerely,

Didymus
