PRESIDENT'S TESTIMONY

Likely by the time this Bulletin reaches you I will have completed three years on Taylor’s campus. I can say frankly that it has been three years of the most difficult tasks of my life, with burdens beyond human endurance. With a constant breath of prayer with the facing of each day, with the reaching out of my hand and saying, “Jesus take my hand and lead me this day,” but along with the difficulties will say that it has been three of the greatest years of my life. We did not come to Taylor University because we wanted to come. We came from one of the choicest pastorates of Methodism. We came after spending time in sleepless nights, thinking about the work here on Taylor’s campus and feeling it ought to continue, and at other times waking with a start at two or three o’clock in the morning and have to face the task at Taylor definitely the rest of the night.

We came in knowing it was a task impossible from any physical angle. But this side of the work appealed to us. Our own son, Marvin, who was in school here at that time wrote: “If you will come in and take Taylor I will go out and take your place in the pastorate. If you find one man like J. Frank Cottingham and get him through school it will be worth a lifetime. I feel we have many Cottingliams and Wengatz and Stanley Jones on our campus this very hour.

We have a very profound conviction that God wants an institution that has the finest scholarship, finest modern equipment possible, and along with this genuine, enthusiastic Christianity. If you were on our campus you would not feel any abnormal or strained atmosphere. You would find a group of students on their tip-toes, but you would soon find a shine on their faces and a definiteness in their testimonies that would attract you.

I think I know something of the conditions of the United States, and after twenty-five years of the pastorate I feel I know something of the problems of the churches, and I believe that right here on Taylor’s campus we are training a group of youth who can go out in this day and demonstrate that God is still on His Throne.

In these difficult times we have had financial problems that have tested us almost beyond endurance, but even in this God has sustained and helped beyond our dreams. We are bound to say today in deep humility of soul that the miracle has been performed every day since our coming. The beautiful letters that we get from bondholders and annuitants who are happy even in their losses because they have had a part in building and securing Taylor University, encourages our hearts to carry on. There is nothing that would make us happier than to personally find the funds to demonstrate to everyone of these loyal sacrificial givers of yesterday that we appreciate what they did and want them to know that we do. We are determined not to go into debt again. We must pay as we go, and we have done so every month this year. However, this can not continue without the sacrificial love gifts from friends all over the country. Even though your gift is small do not let the smallness of it keep you from sending it to us.

As we look forward to the future we covet the prayers of every consecrated man and woman who is interested in this kind of task. We want you to write to us telling us about other friends who could help if they knew about the work that is going on here at Taylor.

If students, parents, friends, pastors, and Christian workers who know about Taylor and who appreciate its work would put us definitely on his prayer list, upon his gift list and work personally for the institution we would soon see every building filled and the dreams that some of us have would come true.

In closing this personal word I feel like saying that I love the Old Book from Genesis to Revelation. We are determined that nothing shall be said or done here that will keep youth from believing in an uttermost Savior, and that the teachers will be selected not only with the highest scholastic attainments, but the thought of their having a personal knowledge of Jesus Christ themselves, for we think it is impossible to lead others to know the Christ if you do not know Him yourself. This morning we love Him with all of our hearts and feel the precious blood saves and cleanses and the Holy Spirit abides.

HOW ABOUT A SPECIAL REVIVAL in your community this summer? God is graciously using these GOSPEL TEAMS out of Taylor to lead many souls to Christ. Write us for full particulars.

MAY DAY FESTIVAL FRIDAY MAY 18TH

This was a great day last year. Plans are being made for a bigger and better time this year.

Make your plans now to enjoy that day on Taylor’s campus.

SEND YOUR LOVE GIFT TO TAYLOR UNIVERSITY

Whether large or small send it at once. It encourages the heart of the consecrated souls here on the campus to get your letters of appreciation with your gifts enclosed.
From Buffalo, N. Y.
The coming of Dr. Stuart and the male quartet to Buffalo for the meetings in Plymouth Methodist Church was not only a great blessing to the churches participating in the series of meetings, but in my opinion did more to make Buffalo know that Taylor University has a place in the world, than anything that has taken place here.

Many young people said frankly that they never saw the sort of college men they found in that quartet. I heard many fine comments from people who heard the quartet over the radio in the various broadcasts and their work before the different luncheon clubs of the city. I believe their work for Taylor will be of lasting value because of the fine impression they made as representatives of the student body.

One comment concerning the preaching may be interesting. A man who heard Dr. Stuart preach several times, at least, said, "There is one college president who certainly believes there is a God running this world." Personally I believe the presence of this group has been a very wholesome experience for many who do not expect to find spiritual emphasis in the addresses of a college president. Of course, we who have known of your work through the years knew what to expect, and were not disappointed.

It seems to me that the place of such colleges as Taylor is one of increasing influence in the intellectual and spiritual world, and I feel that the type of work done here in Buffalo will open new and larger fields of service for the University.

Another very great satisfaction to some of us who love the Old School is that you have come out of the financial difficulties so well, and I hope you will be able to secure the necessary funds to keep going strong during these trying times.

—M. J. Hill, Class of '05

From Methodist Pastor, Corry, Pa.

Dear Dr. Stuart:

Just a note to tell you how God is blessing the work of the young men from Taylor University who are helping me in meetings in my church.

Thank God for a school that turns out such fine Christian characters. I praise God that He ever led me to send my boy to Taylor. I praise God that my boy has such friends and companions. Mrs. H. has fallen in love with the entire team and has adopted them all. They have been a blessing and benediction to our home as well as the Church.

They have been preaching and singing to increasing numbers every night. We expect the church to be taxed to its limit by Friday night. We have had seekers at the altar every night. This morning a young married man came to the Parsonage asking for one of the boys with the sole purpose in mind of having Robert help him find the Lord Jesus. The young man went away saved and is coming to church to make a public confession. His wife will also come.

Taylor University will certainly gain much from these young men's visit to our town. They have captivated my people as well as many citizens of our city. A number of young men and women are considering Taylor for their further education.

Ten days later comes this word: It would have done your heart so much good to have been present on the last night the Taylor boys were with us. Never in the memory of the old members was such a crowd seen in our church for a revival. The large auditorium seating three hundred was full, as well as the adjoining Sunday School room with the vestibules full of people standing. The people were loath to have the boys leave.—Rev. Perry Haines.
Indiana Youth’s Conference--Taylor University Campus--April 13, 14, 15

THE YOUTH MOVEMENT

A visitor who had spent several days in New York remarked, “It seems that everybody is going down the Great White Way, song, dance, wine and revelry.” The preacher replied, “That appears true unless you go where men like Dr. Reisner, Dr. Howard or Dr. Fosdick preach. If you go where these men are you think that everybody goes to church.

A writer, in a recent number of Harper’s, tells us that religion has passed away and that Protestant morals have been debunked never to return. That the debunkers of 1920 have overthrown the theological moral government of God. The writer appears unable to see the great army of Youth marching the other direction. Youth returning to go by the way of the Cross. The Cross has not lost its appeal to the young men and women of today. A year in churches where hundreds have promised to go with the Christ convinces us the Youth Movement of 1934 is Christian. They are debunking the debunkers who debunked and cast away forever (?) the moral government, the Ten Commandments and Sermon on the Mount in 1920. The movement toward God is not one of women only. Young men are moving. One leader stated that more young men are seeking God than young women. During the past four weeks our students have reached thirty or more churches each Sunday. Everywhere they have been welcomed. Sometimes there was time for nothing but a greeting and announcement. Other times they have had opportunity to bring a message. Young people have responded in a wonderful way. It is estimated that our Gospel teams and Quartets have reached at least five thousand young men and women in a month and their testimony indicates that if they were able to do so we would have thousands instead of hundreds at the Youth Conference in April.

In one small city a Booster Rally for the Conference had been announced. The pastor was somewhat concerned as to what would be done, so a Booster Rally is ... a Booster Rally. The hour arrived and with it two young men who were to lead . A song service, a testimony meeting, a sermon by a young man, the Personal Presence of Jesus, the Power of the Spirit, young people seeking and finding God, this was the program. An older man remarked, “This is the most wonderful Rally of Youth I have seen.” The meeting closed and it was then remembered that little had been said about the Rally. The leader was asked why he had not said much about the Conference. He replied, “If young people find God they will want to come and share their experiences with others.” A professor asked the young preacher about the meeting saying, “I hear there were converts?” “Yes,” was the humble answer, “that is why we preach.

It is the faith of youth, the love of youth, and the desire to share the Personal, Ever-present Savior with others that is sponsoring the Conference. It is the presence of the Holy Spirit bearing witness to their spirits that they are children of God that strengthens and empowers them to go forward in this holy quest, Christ for the Youth. Already the slogan adopted by these students is becoming the song of the countryside. It is: “Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me.” Do you want to hear five hundred earnest young people sing this and mean what they sing? If you do, come and be with us April 13-15.

J. F. Cottingham

RESULTS OF THE BULLETIN

One of the groups of young people that will be at the Youth’s Conference April 13-15 will be brought by the LADY who wrote us that she got the Taylor Bulletin and wanted to know the Christ that Taylor presents. By letter and prayer this woman was led into a blessed experience of full salvation. The President wrote to her and sent literature and instructed her how to pray through.

She is a leader in her community and will have a splendid group here at the YOUTH’S MEETING and then she hopes to have a group meeting in her community.

When we can get this kind of results we thank God and take courage and feel that God is with us.

Pray that many others may come to the conference and go back home to take the blessed message of salvation to others.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL YOUTH CONFERENCE

“The strength of our youth for Christ” is the splendid motto which our young people have chosen for the Youth’s Conference. The purpose of the Conference is to inspire the youth of Indiana to live for God and to let the Holy Spirit have complete control of their lives. It is the aim of the Conference to challenge the youth and send them back to their churches with a ringing testimony to the saving power of the Christ and also with the determination to pray and to work for a World Wide Revival of Youth.

The plans for the Conference are practically completed. Almost all of the meetings are to be handled entirely by the young people. However, the Rev. Paul Rees, of Kansas City, Missouri, will be present and speak Saturday. Miss Ora Simmons, a well known evangelist in Indiana, will be present and speak one day. Dr. J. Frank Cottingham and Dr. Robert Lee Stuart will also appear on the program as speakers.

The Conference will open on Friday evening, April 13, at 7:00 o’clock, and will close at 4:00 on Sunday afternoon.

Keen interest has been manifest in this Conference. The Gospel Teams have gone out from our campus announcing the Conference in all of the churches within a radius of fifty to seventy-five miles. They have been welcomed in every church and have found the pastors and young people interested in coming here to Taylor University and spending three days in learning more of the Master. It looks now as though there will be a great group of the youth from Indiana who will be here.

We ask that you will definitely pray for the Conference that these young people who come here may return to their churches with burning hearts and clear visions of the work they can do, and that this may mean the beginning of a great revival in our churches.

Limited number of selective honor scholarships are to be granted this year. If you succeed in getting one of these it will be worth $400 to you on your college course.
An Appreciation of Taylor

By GEORGE T. OBORN
A.B. DePauw, A.M. Boston
Ph.D. Chicago

The major problem of education to-day is not facts, but meanings. Institutions, almost without number, can be found throughout the land that will supply the sufficiently eager student with accurate information and technical training adequate to prepare him for effective participation in the competitive life of the world. But educators everywhere are realizing that that is not enough to ensure the preservation and further development of our civilization. Hence the movement for “character education” and the emphasis upon co-operation. The problem is particularly acute in connection with the denominational college with its avowed purpose of Christian education. Editorial headings such as, “Has the Church College Kept Faith?” “Can the Church College Survive?” “Dare Any College Be Christian?” are of frequent occurrence. It has often been said that “Christianity hasn’t failed; it has never been tried.” Taylor is one college that dares to be Christian. It is increasingly generous in its theological emphasis but insists upon the genuineness of the Christian life and experience.

The Christian life on Taylor’s campus is not a mere sham or pretense but a genuine vital Christocentric integration of all the energies and interests of youth. It has been a happy experience for Mrs. Oborn and me to participate in the spirit and morale on Taylor’s campus this year, after rather varied contacts with other colleges. Taylor is doing something for her students in the way of putting meaningful religious interpretations on the scientific facts of modern culture that is quite out of the ordinary. I have appreciated the opportunity of bringing to students a fully scientific approach to the problems of history and, at the same time, applying to those problems the principles of Christian interpretation and emphasis. There is nothing incompatible between genuine scholarship and genuine Christianity. It is an alliance that must be formed if Christian education is to become vital. It is an alliance that is being effected at Taylor University. I am happy to have a share in this vitally progressive development.

Taylor is giving her students a Christian experience that will abide throughout the trials and vicissitudes of life and is also seeking to avoid the very real danger incident to extreme radicalism on the one hand and fanaticism on the other. The middle road of social and religious adjustment is the fundamental aim of Taylor’s student life and training. Taylor students are taught to appreciate the eternal values of spiritual realities, of social life, of wholesome athletics, of intellectual acumen. I wish to add my testimony to an enriching Christian life and experience through contact with Taylor University. My faith, for many years, has been grounded on sturdy intellectual rocks but the warmth of the religious life at Taylor adds a quality that is not to be found in the purely intellectual experience and mind are even more aglow with the love of Christ and the cause of the kingdom. He hasn’t turned professional nor become calloused—he continues to be a man of God. For that reason he couples a sympathetic touch with the great soul-need of the day with an optimistic confidence that Christ in His fullness is adequate.

It was gratifying to observe that the pressing burdens of college administration have not crushed the preaching passion of Dr. Stuart. The many cares have not quenched the flame. If anything, his heart and mind are even more aglow with the love of Christ and the cause of the kingdom. He hasn’t turned professional nor become calloused—he continues to be a man of God. For that reason he couples a sympathetic touch with the great soul-need of the day with an optimistic confidence that Christ in His fullness is adequate.

Several weeks ago it was our happy privilege to have Dr. Robert Lee Stuart as one of the principal speakers in a Bible conference sponsored by the First Missionary Church. The purpose of these meetings was to give clear emphasis to the essentials of the Christian faith. Dr. Stuart, assisted by the Taylor University men’s quartet, made a distinct contribution to the conference. Their ministry was inspiring and helpful.

It was refreshing to observe that while Dr. Stuart is uncompromisingly true to “the faith of our fathers” yet he is free from shibboleth and mere dogma. The man, whether in the pulpit or out, conveys to others a sense of spiritual reality. Above all his preaching was Christ-centric and Spirit-anointed. “Great grace” was upon us all during the services.

Picture and Testimony of Some of This Year's Senior Class

I consider my years spent here at Taylor as definitely in accordance with God's plan for my life. It was here that I found Christ in a fuller and richer way than I had known Him before. My attitudes and conceptions of Christian living were changed. The Christian life became a privilege, rather than a duty. I first heard about the experience of sanctification at Taylor. Though I experienced many a conflict because of it, even until just recently, I am now thankful and assured that the experience is mine. His presence abides in my heart. I am thankful for a school like Taylor because it strives to build and strengthen young people in the Christian faith, rather than destroy.—Marvin Schilling

The last four years have been the happiest as well as the hardest period of my life. Taylor is my spiritual home for I first met my Master here and accepted Him as my Savior, Sanctifier, and Keeper for all time. I praise God that Taylor has given me a foundation firm enough that the storms of life can never separate me from His love. Today, I can truly say I thank Him for the hard places most of all, for they have made me realize how little I am and how much I must depend on Him. I've learned to rest on His promises and found that Jesus never fails. In my own experience, it has seemed that I have never known very far ahead what I was going to do or where I would be, but Jesus has never failed to open the doors for me by the time I got there. I love Him with all my heart. Everything that I am or have belongs to Him. He has blessed me abundantly and now I long to be in His service and doing something for my Master. My prayer is that my life may be so consecrated to Him that I may know His will for my life and that I may live true to that will.—Winifred Brown

I think that one of the greatest things that I can thank the Lord for is that he made it possible for me to come to Taylor where Jesus Christ is lifted up. He has been a wonderful Savior to me and I shall never be able to thank Him enough for His blessings to me. I am going to be a teacher and I want to be able to carry the spirit of Christ into the school-room.—Eliza Gould

As a Senior I consider my stay at Taylor priceless in giving me a sane conception of what Christianity should mean to a young person. I have seen portrayed in young people here a Christian life which is not void of laughter and mirth but a good proportionate combination of the physical, mental and spiritual phases. My prayer is that as I leave Taylor's halls I may be an influence in spreading among other young people a little of the Christian brightness I find here.

—Miriam Pugh

As my senior year at Taylor draws to a close I am thankful for the experiences I have had with my Christ. Since I found my Savior life has had a new meaning. My Christian life has not been an easy one but it has been a pleasant one primarily because He has been a constant companion, and secondarily because Taylor with its Christian faculty and student body have always been ready to lend a helping hand. I can truthfully say that Taylor is a Christian character building institution if one is fully surrendered to the will of the Christ who saves, keeps and satisfies. For all this I accept His challenge to tell to all the world that God is love.

—Herbert Boyd

Words are inadequate to express just what Jesus means to me. Although a Christian when I came to Taylor, I feel that I have grown immensely in my spiritual life. My faith has been strengthened greatly. The Christian devotion of the faculty and administration has been a great blessing to me. I am thankful every day, also, for the Christian fellowship with the students which has meant so much to me.—Rowena Walker

The two years I've spent at Taylor have meant much in my Christian experience. I've learned to trust my Savior more than ever before in my life, and He does supply all my needs, not only material but spiritual. These two years have brought to me a greater faith in my Lord.—Doris Wilson.
Taylor University Is Different

J. ARTHUR HOWARD
Dean of the College

As this bulletin goes to press, the final examinations for the winter term have been held. Two terms of the school year 1933 and '34 are now history, but they form a basis for an estimation of what the remainder of the college year shall be. A social group possessing proper ideals, worthy aims and purposes, and motivated by a wholesome determination to realize these goals, will have a satisfactory future if these principles are maintained as fundamental.

This year these ideals are much in evidence on Taylor's campus. Faculty and student body have resolved that this shall be a great school year and they are finding the realization of this purpose. On the basis of the victories and attainments of the past two terms there is great expectation of a very gratifying spring term.

The university conferred thirty-four Baccalaureate degrees at the last Commencement. There is a splendid class this year and it is expected that thirty-five students will receive the Baccalaureate degree in June. Think what value this may mean to the social order and to Christ and His Kingdom! These young people are being trained and developed in an environment permeated with a vital faith in the principles of the Bible as a correct foundation for a well ordered society; they are stimulated with a sense of the highest interests of human welfare.

A college professor of an American university stated that he has been elated as he has beheld the young people being trained and educated in that school. I shall condense this feeling when the will is probated.

Taylor University is not just another college; she is different. She has a definite purpose in calling youth to her halls and to this worthy goal she pledges fidelity. Service is the keynote of her program. A life directed and inspired by Jesus Christ and His principles is the goal for her students in active life. One would be convinced that Taylor University is a different college if he were to spend some time on her beautiful campus and study the wholesome social and Christian environment that is found here. If it were his privilege to spend some months and observe the students as they catch the vision of life's tasks and its noble ideals, he would sense the truth of the title of this article. Then were he to greet some of these students when after some years of active service, they return to the college of their choice and were he to hear them speak of their life dedicated to the Master, he would feel the force of the statement, "Taylor University is different.”

Remember this when you are selecting a college for your boy or girl. While possessing these virtues, Taylor University is a standard college of liberal arts, so accredited by the State Board of Education of Indiana. She is thus prepared to give thorough preparation to the youth of our day.

Put Taylor University upon your prayer list. Join Taylor's twenty-four hour Prayer League.

Commencement Activities

The first annual meeting of The William Taylor Foundation will be held on Friday, June 1. The membership of the Foundation includes those who have paid the membership fee of $10.00 per year.

The Baccalaureate services will be held on Sunday morning, June 3.

The Board of Directors of The William Taylor Foundation will hold their regular semi-annual meeting on Monday morning, June 4.

The Alumni Association of Taylor University will hold their annual meeting and banquet on Monday afternoon and evening.

The Commencement exercises will be held in the Maytag Gymnasium on Tuesday morning, June 5, at 9:30 o'clock. Bishop Adna W. Leonard, LL.D., of the Pittsburgh Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church will deliver the Commencement address.

A REAL FRIEND

From one of the outstanding Methodist pastors of America.

"Dear Dr. Stuart,

Enclosed you will please find my check for $25.00, which is part of the amount I promised you. My only regret is that I do not have $25,000 to turn over to Taylor University. I believe profoundly in you, my friend, and in the work you are doing in that school. I shall consequently be on the look out to turn any money, friends, or students in your direction."

IMPORTANT

Many estate notes have been given to Taylor University. It is hard for the office to keep in contact with all of these for these friends live in widely separated states. You can help by putting this amount in your wills so that the office will be notified when the will is probated.

Have your will remember Taylor University of the William Taylor Foundation, a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of Indiana, with its office and principal place of business at Upland, Grant County, State of Indiana.

If you wrote your will before the reorganization of Taylor University under The William Taylor Foundation will you please add a codicil so that there will be no question about your will being carried out.
In a recent number of this Bulletin appeared an article written by Prof. George Fenstermacher, A.M. He writes:

GEORGE FENSTERMACHER

high point in this attainment. The year began with a thorough revival which has not become a revival of the past but has developed into a constant active consecration on the part of both students and faculty almost without exception.

What I have said about the spiritual life of the school leads me to say that in my contacts with the students I note a unity which, I believe, is born out of the even, sane spiritual enthusiasm which pervades the student group. This is doublet the real source of the unity. However, there is another element which has furthered the feeling of school spirit and which has been demonstrated not to be incongruous with spirituality. I refer to the part which Taylor took this past winter in inter-collegiate basketball.

The last thing which I would mention which would indicate progress in the life of the school is the fact that although Taylor is undeniably in its appeal, its outside consistency is being more firmly united in the formation of the William Taylor Foundation. Membership in this organization clearly indicates an interest in the institution; it forms a definite nucleus around which the school can be built. Although the outlook for a balanced budget for this year seems to be encouraging, nevertheless, it is very necessary that this organization, The William Taylor Foundation, be built up in membership. To a great degree the financial success of Taylor University, which means the securing of students as well as dollars, rests in the success of The William Taylor Foundation.

NEW CATALOGUE READY

The new catalogue is ready for distribution. A request will bring you a copy. Prospects look bright for an increased student attendance when school opens Sept. 12, 1934.

As we close the work of this year and plan for the coming year we pray that God will help to fill our halls with students, further assure financial backing and continue Taylor's unyielding determination to aid the building of His Kingdom in this present age.

Class of '22
COACH CORNWELL SPEAKS

Knowledge of our situation last June and knowledge of the year we are just about to close is sufficient to convince anyone that we have had a remarkable year. With an enrollment only a few less than last year's, with a fine spirit prevailing the campus, and with an administration backing all moves which are in the interest of Taylor, we have enjoyed the best of our three years at Taylor.

With the institution organized on a sound economic basis, a large body of enthusiastic alumni, and promise of a much increased student body we will doubtless enjoy even a fuller year in 1934-1935.

There must be no let down. If anything there must be greater effort put forth by all interested in Taylor if she is to meet the growing demands made upon her from a widening sphere of influence.

A new innovation for Taylor was the introduction of intercollegiate athletics. I was not hired to put in intercollegiate athletics. I was not hired to try to carry to them the "Spirit of Taylor." In connection with this the introduction of intercollegiate athletics one hundred per cent outweigh the losses so last fall we thought it advisable to add a controlled program of intercollegiate athletics to our activities. The results have exceeded our expectations. Not from games won, although that has been very satisfactory, but from other standpoints.

First, the elimination of a split in our student body. As there are only two societies, Philo and Thalo which had become largely athletic, the students naturally joined one or the other with not even a third choice to relieve the intensity of feeling. Now we have a "common foe" and the spirit of the campus indicated a marked difference early in the year. We have made our societies more literary and our athletics more collegiate. Second, valuable contacts with other educational institutions. We get some good things from them, some we do not want to acquire, and at the same time we try to carry to them the "Spirit of Taylor." In connection with this we have been given much free publicity by the press. Reports of our games appeared as AP items, as many of you have doubtless noticed. Third, the good training received by the members of the teams which in turn is absorbed by the student body as a whole. How to win and lose, how to give and take, in short, how to be courteous, Christian gentlemen at all times.

THE REV. H. J. OCKENGA
LECTURES

The Rev. Harold J. Ockenga, a graduate of Taylor University in the class of 1927, now pastor of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, will give a series of lectures at Taylor on April 24, 25, and 26. Rev. Ockenga spent some time in Europe and the Near East during the past year, and comes to us well informed on the situation there. Several weeks of his trip abroad were spent in Russia, and he expects to emphasize the present situation and need in that great nation in this changing day.

The singing of the young men's quartet is worthy of commendation. They sing old hymns with the newness of life. Their evident sincerity and freedom from self-display made a wholesome impression upon hearers. All shared in the petition that God would graciously bless Dr. Stuart, the young men, and the school they so ably represent.

LET EVERY ALUMNUS AND FRIEND HEED

The school year draws rapidly to a close and the hard pull of the year is upon us. Within the school it has been a great year, and the school, through much gospel team work, has carried a very valuable spiritual ministry into surrounding churches.

When we come to the financial support given by the alumni and friends of the school, to be frank, we must confess disappointment with the number taking membership in The William Taylor Foundation. The sacrifice some have manifested almost moves us to tears, and we pray that the Heavenly Father will more than compensate them with his rich blessings; but the majority of our alumni are not rallying to our cause in a very encouraging manner.

These words are very realistic; but our financial needs are very realistic. Coal bills, grocery bills, utility bills, and salary bills are very real things: it takes something tangible and exchangeable to pay them. I hope that we shall have within the next sixty days many new membership payments for The William Taylor Foundation. Perhaps some who have paid only the minimum of ten dollars for the year's membership will find it possible to send additional help.

We do not wish to seem to be scolding; but we believe you want a true representation of the situation.

TAYLOR UNIVERSITY
